Among the main characters in the Two Rivers Area Theater production of the musical "Oliver" are (left to right) Tracy Sayler as Fagin, Eric Walter as Oliver and Mike Noel as The Artful Dodger. The production will be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 21, 22 and 23, at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, July 24, at 2 p.m. in the Red Lake Falls community hall.

Fall Conference on Aging

"20 Years—A Celebration" is the theme for this year's 20th annual Fall Conference on Aging to be held Wednesday, August 24, at the University of Minnesota campus in Crookston.

The Northwest Regional Development Commission's Area Agency on Aging sponsors the conference each year to provide information that will enhance the ability of seniors to remain independent for as long as possible, according to Danica Robson, director of the Area Agency on Aging.

Seniors and service providers will start the day-long conference with registration from 8:15 to 9 a.m. with coffee and doughnuts—made by the Roseau and Newfolden seniors—served in the Bede Ballroom on the Crookston campus.

Following the welcome and introductions, the keynote address will be given by Terry Pankow of the Northwest Mental Health Center. His topic will be "Am I Just Getting Older or Am I Getting Better?"

Following the lunch, Maryel Anderson and Diedre Nordin of Thief River Falls will entertain the group with a presentation entitled "They Who Laugh Last."

Many educational workshop sessions will be presented during the day. Displays with information about regional services and resources available to seniors in the seven northwestern counties of Minnesota will be available at the Trojan Inn.

Cost to attend the conference is $8 for persons 60 years of age and older and $15 for service providers and persons under 60 years of age.

A limited number of scholarships are available for senior citizens to attend the conference and are sponsored by Crossroads Displaced Homemakers Program, Roseau County Home Health Care, AARP and the Riverview Health Care Association. For information on receiving one of the scholarships, contact the Area Agency on Aging office at the telephone number listed below.

Brochures on the conference are available at senior centers in the seven county area or from the Area Agency on Aging. To contact the office for information, scholarships or brochures, call 681-2637 or 1-800-450-2637.

Soo Line employees on strike

United Transportation Union members working for Soo Line in Thief River Falls began walking the picket line in support of a nationwide strike against Soo Line on Thursday, July 14.

"Soo Line has just destroyed the last possible bridge that could have led us to a settlement without a strike," said United Transportation Union Vice President Bruce Wigent in Washington, DC, Wednesday.

At 12:01 a.m. EDT on Thursday, July 14, 1,100 members of the UTU went on strike. The Soo Line, a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Rail systems, has about 5,000 miles of track in 11 states.

"For six long, long years, our members have endured no pay increases from the Soo Line. But we had always hoped that we could work things out without a major conflict," said Wigent.

"But now the Soo Line has rejected binding arbitration to get this settled without a halt to rail service," he said. "We were willing to abide by the verdict of a neutral arbitrator because we think our position is fair and reasonable, but the corporation obviously prefers a strike to settle our differences."

Wigent was part of the union's negotiating team at a special session called by the National Mediation board. Beginning Monday, the session produced some modest progress on Tuesday based on a new proposal by the company, which moved away slightly from its hard-line stance. But on Wednesday morning, the company, in what the UTU labeled "an outrageous about-face," withdrew the proposal.

Key issues in the dispute include wages, health insurance, and staffing levels.

Mobile communications center operated by the Minnesota State Patrol was in Thief River Falls early this week to permit dispatchers at the state patrol office here to become familiar with operating the unit. The "Comcen van" is based in Duluth but available to law enforcement units throughout the state for disaster scenes or highly concentrated traffic situations such as the upcoming We Fest at Detroit Lakes. The 1988 unit is designed and built to function as a complete command post and is equipped with seven radio units, two land line phones and one cellular phone. Dispatcher Richard Melby is shown at the radio console which is designed to accommodate being worked by either one or two people.

County fair to start July 20

In the 4-H club division, conference judging will be done as the members bring their projects to the fair on Thursday, July 21. This involves having the judge review each entry with the exhibitor and giving the ribbon placing at that time.

This year the county 4-H department has 144 exhibitors entering 366 exhibits including 152 animals in the beef, dairy, dog, goat, horse, poultry, rabbits, sheep and swine projects.

The numbers are down from last year when 163 members had 402 exhibits including 182 animals and 1992 when 155 exhibitors showed 459 exhibits including 150 animals.

As has been the case for many years, Pennington county has a free gate fair with no admission to the grounds. There is a fee for auto parking on the grounds of $1 per day or $2 for a pass good for the entire fair. Car parking will be directed by the Boy Scouts of Thief River Falls and adult volunteers.

King Royal Circus shows in TRF Aug. 7

King Royal Circus will present two shows Sunday, August 7, in Thief River Falls. The circus will erect a huge canvas tent at Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center parking lot and shows are scheduled for 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls Women of Today are sponsoring King Royal Circus performances in Thief River Falls. Admission is $6 for adults and $4 for children ages 2 to 11. Special reduced-rate tickets are available from Jubilee Foods, Hugo's, Erl's Market and Kezar Music now through the day prior to August 7.

To make this remarkable program, a huge number of skilled and accomplished performers and trained animals have been recruited from throughout the circus world. Some of the dazzling acts and attractions lined up for this all new production include Little Miss Sophia on the aerial ladder, Oklahoma Shorty and his novelty western specialities, Miss Oi-Gi on the swinging trapeze; and, of course, those masters of merriment Bumbles and Sparkles, the crazy circus clowns. In all, the performance includes many feature displays that are packed with action from start to finish.

A pristine setting in Mud Lake township. The first settlers found a fertile promised land in Mud Lake territory and became poetic, describing "a beautiful winding creek adorned with evergreens overhanging both sides, a scenery rarely found."

Mud Lake saga told

and in Mud Lake as well. It was reported that Marshall county was on the verge of being insolvent.

Rumors of turning Mud Lake territory into a wildlife refuge became a reality as Mud Lakers were inundated with pro-refuge propaganda from the government. The literature maintained that a refuge would help restore the water table and provide many jobs.

To support their arguments to turn the area into a wildlife refuge, officials maintained that the area had never been effectively drained, emphasizing the flash floods in the area in 1916, 1919, and 1927. They further claimed that the Thief river was not large enough to hold the drainage from the land and classified the area around the lake bottom as "sub-marginal lands." The biggest blow to Mud Lakers, however, was the [illegible] opinion that the land that they had farmed for 30 years was suitable only for wildlife.

The state started condemnation proceedings in 1935, and in July of 1937 condemned approximately 10 square miles, 60,000 acres, of Mud Lake land in what was believed to be the largest single condemnation proceeding in the history of the United States.

Despite the condemnation, many Mud Lakers remained on their farms and raised as many crops as possible. In 1937, most of the lake bottom was planted in flax and it was reported to be one of the most beautiful crops ever. To the Mud Lakers, it appeared that nature was going to give them one final bounty before they left their land.

But that was not to be. During July and August of that year, an estimated 22 inches of rain fell in the area and crops in 20 townships were either all or partly drowned out.

Thus the failure of the crops in 1937 came as the final blow to the Mud Lakers, one last, parting shot. They joined one another for a final gathering on September 26 and then returned home to dismantle or move as much of their property as they could to new homes. Whatever was not removed was burned.

And so ended the saga of the Mud Lake Territory and began the Agassiz National [illegible].

A pamphlet on Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, published by the Department of the Interior in 1986, gives the following historical view of the refuge:

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, nestled in a picturesque bay on prehistoric Lake Agassiz, is located in the northwestern corner of Minnesota. The evolution of Agassiz serves as a symbol of people's ambitions to bend nature to their wills, and of the compassionate efforts to restore a part of the environment to its natural state.

This area, once vast grassland scattered with hardwood groves, lakes and potholes, was a paradise for waterfowl and other wildlife during presettlement times.

In 1909, a very extensive and costly attempt was made to drain the area now occupied by the refuge. By 1933, the area became so tax delinquent and expensive to maintain that the lands were purchased by the state.

It was later turned over to the Bureau of Biological Survey, now the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and developed as a vital link in the chain of National Wildlife Refuges in the Mississippi Flyway.

But now we know the real story of Mud Lake and how the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge came to [illegible].

The book, Memories of the Mud Lake Pioneers, will be available at the Mud Lake Reunion Saturday, July 23, at the Holt Community Center. Books may also be obtained from Gladys Anderson, Route 2, Box 237, Thief River Falls 56701, telephone 681-2142; Leslie or Verna Dahl, Route 1, Box 34, Argyle, 56713, telephone 437-8151; or Vivian Sagstuen, Newfolden, MN 56738.

Student-athletes are reminded to handle eligibility paperwork

A reminder has been issued to student-athletes who are planning to compete in a fall sport to have required forms completed and necessary physical examinations scheduled before the start of preseason practice drills.

Physicals can be taken at this time. Rest of the required forms for Thief River Falls programs can be picked up in the office of Activities Director Lee Alger beginning Aug. 1.

Under Minnesota State High School League guidelines, football, boys and girls cross country, girls swimming, and girls tennis programs have a Monday, Aug. 15 starting date. Volleyball practice can begin a week later on Monday, Aug. 22.

Thieves top Muskies

Thief River Falls scored three times in the bottom of the seventh inning Wednesday as the Thieves beat Warroad 6-3 in rescheduled amateur baseball at Irv Wilson Field.

Mike Swanson, Mike Steen and Chris Nelson had two hits apiece for the winners, who improved their record to 10-5-1. Swanson and Steen both drove in two runs; Swanson and Marc Haugen both scored twice.

The game was a make-up contest from a July 7 rain-out.

Starting pitchers were 1994 Northland Community College teammates Mike Steen of the Thieves and Mitch Bernstein of the Muskies. Steen went eight innings and got the win, despite giving up 11 hits. He struck out two and walked two. Nelson earned a save with a 1-2-3 ninth.

Bernstein went seven innings and took the loss before giving way to Troy Mattern in the seventh. All six runs were charged to Bernstein, but only three were earned because of six Warroad errors. He gave up seven hits, struck out six and walked two.

Dick Merrian was 3-for-4 and Shaun Stodgell went 3-for-5 to lead the Warroad hit parade. Bernstein and Mattern both had two hits.

The two teams have a 7:30 p.m. rematch tonight (Saturday) in Warroad. The Thieves will be in Crookston Tuesday for a 6:30 p.m. game.

Trap League

Northern State Bank, Eagles and St. Hilaire Elevator earned post-season championship shoot berths Monday in the Thief River Falls Trap League.

First Half season shooting actually ended a week earlier when Johnson Greenline, Johnson Trap Company, Main Street Standard, Bruce Pharmacy, and Nelson Implement collected five of the post-season spots awarded to the top eight First Half finishers. Six others tied for the final three positions – a tie that was broken using Monday's regular season shooting that kicked off Second Half competition.

Those top eight First Half teams will be joined by Second Half qualifiers in the season-ending championship shoot.

Post 117 offense shut down in Legion doubleheader

Crookston sweeps TRF 4-2, 9-4

Offensive shortcomings led to a 4-2, 9-4 Thief River Falls American Legion baseball doubleheader loss at the hands of Crookston Tuesday at Irv Wilson Field. The opener went nine innings.

Post 117 batters mustered just six hits and struck out 27 times against two Crookston pitchers. First game starter Chris Bruggeman fanned 13 in seven innings of work, while Josh Roueche, who was a double-winner with two innings of Game 1 relief and a complete-game seven-inning effort in the nightcap, struck out 14.

The losses dropped Thief River Falls to 9-17 heading into the Duluth Invitational this weekend. The trip will be followed by three Post 117 doubleheaders on the road next week – Tuesday, July 19, at Fergus Falls; Friday, July 22, at Detroit Lakes; and Saturday, July 23, at Fargo.

Crookston is 10-11.

Thief River Falls forced extra innings by coming up with a game-tying run in the bottom of the seventh, but Crookston scored a pair of unearned runs in the top of the ninth to win the doubleheader opener 4-2.

It was scoreless until Crookston's Chris Bruggeman slammed a two-run home run off the scoreboard in left field in the third inning.

Thief River Falls picked up a run on a fourth inning RBI single by Steve Burslie, then tied it on a two-out seventh inning single by Tim Barry. But Post 117 also left the bases loaded that inning.

Crookston won it in the ninth when a one-out single to left by No. 9 hitter Brent Pankow was followed by a pair of errors, including a two-out, two-run miscue at shortstop.

Brian Minks was the tough-luck loser. He turned in a solid complete-game pitching effort that included just two earned runs, eight hits, three walks and three strikeouts.

Burslie had two of the four Thief River Falls hits. Ben Parkin, Josh Roueche and Bruggeman had two hits apiece for the winners.

Crookston overcame a 4-3 deficit with two sixth inning runs, then broke it open with a four-run seventh en route to a 9-4 second-game win to complete the twinbill sweep.

Thief River Falls managed just two hits off Crookston righthander Josh Roueche, who did walk six, but also struck out 10.

The hits included a one out RBI single by Steve Burslie in the first inning and a third inning single by Andy Peterson. Roueche retired 13 of the last 14 batters he faced, giving up only a one-out seventh inning walk over the final 4 1/3 innings.

Burslie's base hit was part of a three-run Thief River Falls first inning that also included runs off a wild pitch and a balk to erase an early 2-0 deficit.

Ben Parkin's RBI single to right field in the second tied it 3-3, but a wild pitch plated a run and gave Post 117 a 4-3 lead in the third inning.

Crookston drew three straight walks to start the sixth against Thief River Falls reliever Eric Bjorgaard. A sacrifice fly by Bobby Stimpa tied it and a bloop single into short center field by Chris Bruggeman put the visitors ahead 5-4.

Bjorgaard did work his way out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth, but didn't make it through the seventh when a walk and two singles once again filled the bases with Crookston runners. A wild pitch, a bases-loaded walk issued to Brent Pankow, and a two-run single inside the third base bag by Bruggeman off Joby Looker, the third Thief River Falls pitcher, suddenly made it 9-4.

Bjorgaard took the loss, giving up six runs and three hits while walking five and striking out two in 1 1/3 innings. Chris Vanyo surrendered three runs on six hits and four walks over the first five innings. He struck out two.

David Clauson was 3-for-4 to lead the winners, and Bruggeman went 2-for-2, walked twice and was hit by a pitch to reach base in all five of his at-bats.

Colleges require forms

by Mike Lundgren, Sports Editor

High school student-athletes who have visions of playing college sports at the Division I or Division II level must now complete a set of NCAA forms to be eligible as a college freshman, it was pointed out by School District 564 Activities Director Lee Alger.

A recent change in NCAA regulations includes the Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse to review core courses and high school transcripts for all prospective Division I and Division II student-athletes.

The process starts with the student-athlete obtaining a clearinghouse brochure from a supply that has been distributed to each high school. A student-release form must be completed, and an $18 payment must be submitted to the clearinghouse. If a student received a fee wavier for the ACT or SAT test, he/she may also receive a waiver of the $18 clearinghouse fee.

The student-athlete is offered two options with reference to NCAA member institutions that will be authorized to obtain certification information.

Option 1 would permit release of the information to any NCAA institutions offering Division I or Division II sports that request such information.

Option 2 would authorize distribution of the information only to colleges selected by the student-athlete. Up to five colleges may be listed with the option. Additional colleges may be included after the initial five, but a new form must be completed, with the possibility of additional costs.

Athletic administration at each high school will be asked to speak with counselors about prospective student-athletes in the senior class to make sure they are made aware of the procedure; to notify members of the coaching staff of the new regulations; and to cooperate with the high school principal an counselor to make sure that student-athletes and their parents are informed about the clearinghouse.

It is expected that the clearinghouse procedure will be beneficial for high schools across the country. Previously, high school counselors had to mail transcripts and forms to each college recruiting a particular student-athlete. With the change, only one form will be required to be completed on each individual and placed with the clearinghouse.

Officials note that it is important to keep in mind that the NCAA Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse is not a recruiting service. It simply documents whether a prospective student-athlete has met the core-course requirements and is eligible to compete as a freshman at an NCAA Division I and Division II member institution.

It's emphasized that the new process is not voluntary. Every high school senior who expects to compete as a freshman at a Division I or Division II school must be certified with the clearinghouse.

The task of completing the form and sending it to the clearinghouse rests with the student and the high school guidance counselor.

Economic Security Commissioner here

unemployed to the employer has been well accepted by Job Service staffs because it serves both clients better, Brown said. The basic reality is that if it were not for employers there would be no jobs, and it is counterproductive for employers to interview unqualified applicants and for the unemployed to interview for jobs they have no chance to obtain.

The Department of Jobs and Training has also worked hard to change its perception as a service only for the blue collar, unskilled or temporary worker, Commissioner Brown added. It has made special efforts to redesign its services to market people to employers, including a number of white collar professional people who have lost employment due to down-sizing and cutbacks in major industry.

Deputy Commissioner Wilson said that employers should keep in mind that they are already paying for the services of the department through the unemployment taxes levied on the basis of their work-force.

"We have no problem with firms using private search companies to find workers for them," Wilson said. "In fact, we work with those search companies all the time when they come to us with needs for specific workers. It's just that the employers are already paying for our services and we will be glad to help them."

Commissioner Brown also said an announcement will be made in the near future regarding a reduction in the unemployment tax due to the lower rate of unemployment in the state. "We know there will be a reduction," she said, "but we don't know how much it will be at this time."

The department officials were unable to explain definitively why several counties in northwestern Minnesota have traditionally high rates of unemployment while there is a workforce shortage in communities around them. Red Lake county usually has one of the highest unemployment rates in the state despite its proximity to Pennington county. Marshall county has high unemployment despite part of the county being located between Pennington and Roseau counties.

To be considered in the ranks of the unemployed work force, persons must be considered able, available and actively looking for work.

TRF council discusses changes to sewer and service ordinance

An ordinance amending the municipal and public utilities rules regarding sewer and storm drain service moved a step closer to being approved by the Thief River Falls city council Tuesday.

Alderman Oon Barron said it should have been done years ago.

The city has an ordinance regarding sewer and storm drain service, but changes needed to be made to the ordinance. One aspect of the ordinance that needed to be worked out was its impact on local industries.

Russ Christianson, chief executive officer for Bridgeman's said Tuesday, that he found the new wastewater ordinance agreeable within his industry.

Steve Edwards of Bridgeman's complimented the committee for all their hard work on the ordinance.

The council approved a first reading of the ordinance, but upon discussing the ordinance learned that more additions had been made which need to be discussed. Those additions pertained to sump pumps, roof gutters and other drains emptying into the storm drains. Those additions were added because of the recent heavy rains.

After the city council meeting, Arlo Rude, utilities superintendent, explained that the rain last week increased the flow in the sanitation collection system to the point where pump stations were able to just keep even with the flow of water. If one pump had stopped for any reason, storm drains would have backed up into the basements of businesses and residences.

Rude said city crews worked at Kendel and First until 3 a.m. the night of the heaviest rainfall. The crews monitored the flow of water and had an extra pump operating to keep up with the flow.

The extra flow which caused the problems comes from roof drains, sumps pumps and drain tiles emptying into the sanitation sewer system. Under current statutes that is not allowed. The proposed addition would put some teeth into the ordinance by charging fines or fees to individuals who do not conform to a directive to address the problem by removing the source.

■ City takes steps towards ADA compliance.

Twenty-four buildings owned by the City of Thief River Falls need to be brought into compliance with the Aid to Disabilities Act. The city plans to begin with the public library, because it is highly visible, and is among the city buildings which need the least amount of adjustment. That adjustment, however, will cost $23,000 and the city council isn't sure where the money will come from.

Tuesday night the council approved a resolution to get quotes for the adjustments to the library. Those adjustments involve mostly plumbing.

The council seemed in agreement to a suggestion to hold a joint meeting between the BESS committee and the Finance committee to decide how to budget for on-going ADA improvements.

■ City council begins restructuring process.

The city council is also making progress on the re-organization plan for city government. Mayor Reeve passed around a council committee preference list and suggested that the city implement the new committee structure on August 1. The new structure basically reduces the number of council committees to four instead of six. At the conclusion of the council meeting, the council approved a resolution to implement the new structure on August 1.

The council also approved a resolution to advertise for a new city administrator. City Clerk Jerry Wigness retired last winter and since then the position has been redefined and is now titled "city administrator."

But an agenda item proposing a job description for a public works director was not approved. The job description presented from the BESS committee was sent back to the labor committee for further study.

■ Council discusses street lighting project.

A recommendation to take bids for the 1994 Street Lighting project was approved by the city council Tuesday night. The project includes lighting of the downtown area. A meeting with downtown merchants was held Wednesday evening, in which the project was described.

Results of an earlier survey of downtown merchants and property owners was used to determine the extent of the project. The utilities department ended up designing a lighting system that would be based on the standard type lighting poles. The number of poles per block was increased to six street lights per block, with 250-watt luminares that can be modified to 400-watts, and the design of the poles allows decorative lighting to be added in the future if desired. The poles will have flag holders and Christmas lighting recepticles as well.

■ The council approved a recommendation to install a storm sewer east of Belmont Drive.

The city council approved a recommendation from the BESS committee to install a storm sewer behind the area of the C'Mon Inn east of Belmont Drive.

Ron Lindberg, engineering services director, said it was a historical problem, meaning that drainage in the area had always been a problem. He further elaborated that the drainage problem was probably caused by obstructions.

Alderman Oon Barron urged caution and suggested that further study be conducted in order to avoid conflict with the Wetlands Act.

There was some urgency to getting the storm sewer installed. Property owners in the area need to get the storm sewer installed in order to proceed with development projects.

Lindberg said the project would consist of 140-feet of storm sewer and a catch basin. The total cost of the project would be divided between the city and three other property owners. The city owns park land in the area and its property would also benefit from the project.

In other business, the council: tabled discussion of airport reservoir bids; approved a dance permit for the Fine Line Dancers on Sunday, July 31, at the Elks Club from 8:30 to 12:30; approved a 3.2 beer permit for the Sno-Drifters at the fair; approved a motion to have city officials discuss alternatives for informing residents of the need to clean up property and the mowing of unkept property.

Kidney Foundation to conduct '94 fund drive

Kidney Foundation of TRF will be conducting its annual fund drive during the month of August. Board members of the organization met Thursday evening at the Ruth Nepper home to prepare materials for distribution.

A raffle will again be held with ticket purchasers designating their selection from three prizes offered in the raffle. Kathy Carlson has donated a hand painted porcelain doll and Duane Glass has donated a fishing trip for four on Lake of the Woods. The third prize offered is $100 in cash.

Founded in 1976, the Kidney Foundation of TRF provides financial assistance to area people with kidney disease, primarily for transportation to medical facilities for dialysis but also other necessary expenses. The Foundation currently serves seven people an a monthly basis and since its founding has distributed more than $81,000 in financial assistance.

For a number of years a community auction was held as a fund-raiser. This was discontinued for a number of reasons and the annual raffle was substituted. The organization is also an appropriate recipient for memorial funds.

None of the people involved with the foundation are paid and the entire organization functions entirely with volunteers. Board members include Ruth Nepper, Bob Bergan, Rick Erickson, Marilyn Winters, Cheryl Hinsehberger and Duane Glass. "People Helping People" is the foundation's theme.

The foundation has requested publication once again of the warning signs of kidney disease. They include:

(1) Burning or difficulty during urination;

(2) More frequent urination, particularly at night;

(3) Passage of blood in the urine;

(4) Puffiness around eyes, swelling of hands and feet, especially in children;

(5) Pain in small of back, just below the ribs; and

(6) High blood pressure.

If any of these symptoms appear to be present, contact a physician. Some forms of kidney disease may be present without symptoms.

Persons who would like to make donations to the foundation may contact any of the board members.

The Kidney Foundation of TRF also encourages people to become registered organ donors and to inform their families of their intent. Organs retrieved from people who have died and given consent for use of their organs in transplants can save the lives of many people with faulty organs.

A new name is added to the national waiting list for organ transplants every 20 minutes and about eight people die every day while waiting for a suitable organ to become available.

Filing period for next election closes on Tues.

Filing period for the next election in November is nearly over. The filing period for several Pennington county offices, including two seats on the county commission, auditor, treasurer, recorder, sheriff, county attorney and coroner, began on July 5 and will end on July 19.

Candidates who have filed so far include the following: Bob Jablinske for second district commissioner, Bud Comstock for fourth district commissioner, Ken Olson for county auditor, Vikki Bjorgaard for treasurer, Ken Schmalz and LeMay Moe for county recorder, Gerald Moe for sheriff, Dave Olin for county attorney and Dr. Richard Heinrichs for county coroner.

Preliminary investigation says Walker drowned

Preliminary report from an investigation into the death of Ann Marie Walker, 23, has concluded that she died from drowning.

The Minnesota State Patrol received a report of an accident 25 miles east of Thief River Falls on Highway 1 at 5 a.m. on June 25. Upon investigation, they discovered Walker pinned under her vehicle in the bottom of the ditch. Investigators now believe that Walker's car became disabled because of clutch failure. She then parked her car half on the road and half in the ditch and while at the front of the vehicle, the vehicle rolled free pinning her in the water-filled ditch.

To The Editor:

In your Northern Watch editorial July 9, you listed three kinds of people every community has. This is about one of them—those who make things happen.

Thursday night, July 9, I moved a camper into the St. Hilaire park and spent the night in the rain with a total conviction the All National Cultural Festival was a wash. With two and one-half inches of rain already fallen and more coming down, I was convinced it would never happen. At 5 a.m. Friday it was still raining.

But by 8 a.m. the people of St. Hilaire started coming to put the event together anyway. People like Jill Altendorf, Evelyn Treitline, Larry and Bea Kruse, Barb Bohm, Dave Rasmussen, Dave Hoefer, Don Apple, Bernard Huot, Ron Gilbert, members of the city council, Pennington county community service workers and a long, long list of others volunteered and went out of their way to get things in order.

It didn't stop there. Five days later we are just now winding it up.

These are the kind of people every community has—those who get up with a determination of getting things done no matter what. These are the people who battle the elements and those who are having a "hard day" and go about the task with as pleasant an attitude as possible. For making an event possible that families from all over the area can enjoy, these people deserve as big a round of applause as the performers.

The event would not have happened without the help and contributions of the sponsors. Deserving a big thank-you are the City of St. Hilaire, St. Hilaire Community Club, KTRF-KSNR, KYCK, WDAZ, Westside Motors, Hartz Foods, St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator, River Road Casino, Kruse In, Kruse Backhoe, Peterson Lumber Co., Northwest Beverage/Budweiser, St. Hilaire Municipal Liquor Store, The Times, Sorvig Oil Co., Taco John's, Super 8 Motel, C'mon Inn, Pepsi Cola 7-Up Co., Northern State Bank, Dan's Septic Service and B&E Car Wash and Laundromat;

Also Huot Apartments, Best Western Inn, Thygeson Construction, Prowler Express Ltd., Hutchinson Transfer, Cindy's Sunrise Cafes of Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire, Printing Point, Norwest Bank, Thief River Falls Convention & Visitors Bureau, Plummer State Bank, Otter Tail Power Co., St. Hilaire Supply, Old Dutch Foods, Garden Valley Telephone Co., Printing Plus, Les's Sanitation, Baker's Acres Auto Salvage, St. Hilaire Seed Co., Inc., First National Bank and Red Lake Electric.

The reports from the performers about the host families in our area were excellent. All of them were treated with great respect and they told me they enjoyed their stay in America. We can only credit the host families for this. They did a fine job of representing our area and we hope they can be called on next year at this same time.

So, to the editor, I must say: Yes! We do have people in our are who make things happen, and these are just a few.

Sincerely,
Ed Leeper, Director
All Nations Cultural Festival

For the 93rd Time.... Come To The Fair!

For the 93rd year, Pennington county will hold its annual county fair—this one a five-day exposition beginning Wednesday, July 20 and continuing through Sunday, July 24. The five-day format has been in vogue for the past several years, utilizing availability of the carnival on a Wednesday afternoon and evening to increase potential operating income.

While fair boards over the years have struggled with the problem of coming up with new ideas for entertainment and attractions to draw crowds, the backbone of the fairs since they began has been the local exhibits. The fair is a chance to trot out results of individual ability — whether it is raising prime livestock, creating fine art or canning great pickles—and to place them on display for all the world (or at least this small part of it) to see.

Since the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center became available to the Pennington County Fair Association as an exhibit area, the entries can be well displayed and the public has great viewing access. For the spectator who wants to only scan the headlines, so to speak, superintendents of the various departments have arranged collections of grand champion entries into concentrated areas where the items judged best of the best can be viewed quickly. For the visitor with more time and interest, all entries are on display throughout the entire fair for leisurely looking.

Particular attention has also been paid by the fair board to the livestock area which always draws the interest of people attending the fair and especially those with young children. A bright and airy cattle barn was constructed a few years ago and this year a new horse barn of similar type will be put to use. The barn has more than 90 box stalls and has been over-subscribed by exhibitors for this year's fair.

The curling club building on the fairgrounds serves adequately for the horticulture entries and there is sufficient space at the present for hogs, sheep, poultry and rabbits in the metal building near the curling building. The metal building has translucent roof panels that make it well lit during the day and it is sufficiently lighted at night. Lighting is a drawback in the curling building.

The only remaining exhibit area which demands immediate attention is the goat barn which is located in a low-lying area that catches the brunt of any rainfall before or during the fair. Goat pen improvement was made only a few years ago, but the building and its location are less than desirable for either exhibitors or spectators. Given the quality of the ADGA goat show held at the fair, a more suitable facility would be appropriate.

From an entertainment standpoint—in addition to the viewing of exhibits—the fair association has also made substantial strides in recent years. A headline entertainer (this year it is hot new country music star Joe Diffie) has been contracted each year as a star attraction. But establishment of the bandshell where free entertainment is available on a rotating basis Thursday through Sunday from 1:30 to 10:30 p.m. has been an exceptional achievement.

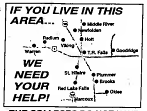
In fact, the free bandshell entertainment actually begins Wednesday evening, July 20, when a free Gospel music program will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Local soloists and groups will perform.

Although the 4-H department will have nearly 150 young exhibitors and there are children's and young people's divisions in open class competition, the occasional complaint is heard that the fair offers little for the young people. This year on Friday evening, July 22, the band "Numb" will perform from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. for a teen dance and drawings will be held for prizes, including a 20-inch color television set with remote control. Add that to the carnival and the demolition derby Sunday and young folks needn't feel they are being neglected.

What the fair board says is true—the county fair does have something for everyone. We don't care how many other summer events have made a demand on your time or sought your attendance, for the 93rd time.....don't miss at least one day of the Pennington County Fair!

It's Good To See A Responsive Agency

We appreciated having the opportunity early this week to spend some time in an interview with R. Jane Brown, commissioner of Minnesota's Department of Jobs and Training. Mrs. Brown was in the area with a couple of her high ranking staff members to visit offices at Thief River Falls and Roseau (see story in today's edition).



It is not unusual to see an increased statewide activity and renewed interest in the "outstate" by people in state agencies as elections approach. We would be somewhat naive to believe the timing of this week's visit was totally devoid of political motivation.

But we will give the commissioner and her staff the benefit of the doubt and accept that there is a sincerity of purpose in the visit here. Mrs. Brown is making good on her promise to visit each Jobs and Training office in the state. Over the past two years the department has made concerted efforts to involve its employees in the decision-making process and to direct its focus toward finding the right employees for the right jobs.

Over the years we have met a whole passel of people in governmental offices, elective and otherwise, and we have found most to be like a fish out of water once they leave St. Paul or Washington. They scarcely know where they are, much less what they are doing here. Commissioner Brown and her staff members Earl Wilson and Gary Sorensen impressed us with their openness and commitment and a genuine interest in understanding and helping solve area problems. If that's political, we need more people like that in politics.

Cancer Society has seminar on recertification

Reach-to-Recovery training and recertification seminar was conducted by the American Cancer Society recently at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls with Mary Theurer of Staples as the trainer.

Attending for certification were Elnora Bixby, Williams; Shirley Kellogg and Herzele Ouenin, Baudette; Sue Lisell, Roseau; Bonnie Johnson, Kennedy; Edith Herington, Bemidji; and Joy Gillespie, Thief River Falls.

Attending for re-certification were Gloria Bugge, Marie Engen and Vivian Brekke, all of Thief River Falls. The volunteers expressed their appreciation to the medical center for holding the seminar.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Now that the township roadsides are being mowed, I'd advise people with pets to be sure they are nowhere near the ditches as these guys stop for nothing.

July 4th (who expects anyone to be mowing roadsides early on the morning of the Fourth of July?) our grandson's puppies had evidently followed the mother down the road, lost their way back and were in the ditch. Poor things didn't have a chance—they were cut in pieces. Two were so badly hurt they had to be destroyed.

Of course, they were only animals, but the way they cried they suffered too. Needless to say, it was a very unhappy Fourth of July, even for Grandma. I couldn't get to sleep for two nights thinking of the way they suffered.

I think those that are doing the mowing better slow down and be more careful. Next time it could be a little child.

Sincerely,
Adelle J. Skjerven

Creamery picnic day for public at Old Mill Park

Recreation of the very popular "creamery picnic" of years ago will take place at the Old Mill State Park west of Newfolden Sunday, July 31, according to Mary Henry, park manager.

Creamery picnics were held at the park years ago when cooperative creameries in the area would host their patrons to a summer picnic. The popular events disappeared with the consolidation and closing of the creameries which has been located in nearly every small community.

Persons who have memories of their experiences at Old Mill State Park are encouraged to write them down and send them to the Old Mill State Park, Argyle, MN 56713. The memories will be shared during the afternoon musical program at the park July 31.

Stephen Auto Club invites anyone who has a car, pickup, truck or motorcycle older than a 1969 model to be part of the Auto Memory Lane at the park that day. Cars will be on display from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and a reduced price daily vehicle permit will be issued for vehicles more than 25 years old.

At 9 a.m. a one-hour "Big Pine Trees Trail Walk" will be held, including a visit to the Scotch pine trees planted by the Larson family over a century ago. Many species of wild flowers are in bloom and wild berries are ripe.

At 11 a.m. children may join in making cattail dolls similar to those made by the Indian children of Minnesota's past. Construction will also begin on sand castles which will be judged by crown approval at the beach at 4 p.m.

Quilts and crafts open display will take place from 1 to 3 p.m. at the picnic shelter and an open doubles horseshoe tournament will begin at 1 p.m. Gene Ljunggren is in charge of registration for the tournament.

Musical performance by the Red River Valley Fiddlers Association will take place from 1:30 to 3 p.m., the same time as the ice cream social is held (while supplies last) in the picnic area.

From 2 to 5 p.m. a chuck wagon provided by the Argyle Lions club will sell grilled meat in the picnic area.

Volleyball tournament at 2 p.m., moose softball at 3 p.m. and a 1,000-pound team tug of war at 4:30 p.m. are also planned.

Vehicle permits are required for all vehicles entering the park.

Co-sponsors of the event are the Marshall County Historical Society, Argyle Lions Club, Stephen Auto Club, Grove Valiants 4-H Club, Red River Valley Fiddlers Association and friends and volunteers who support the park.

Sparby meets on proposals for farm bill

Wally Sparby, former Thief River Falls resident and state legislator who is now executive director of the Minnesota Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), recently returned from a two-day meeting in Washington, DC, where he participated in sessions at the U.S. Department of Agriculture to develop proposals for the 1995 farm bill.

A total of 21 ASCS leaders from throughout the United States attended the meetings focusing on farm support programs and policies and other major issues that will be addressed in the new farm legislation. The USDA intent, according to ASCS Administrator Oront Buntrock, who is co-chairing the general commodities and farm programs group, is to put together recommendations for future farm programs.

Buntrock said he is seeking proposals that "will give us a solid basis to go to the country for a frank exchange of ideas. We want to be able to ask farmers and their organizations how their plans stack up against what will be on the table and how those plans meet the budgetary, environmental and other realities that exist."

According to Sparby, the farm program issue group examined how current programs and policies are performing, as well as such new approaches to protecting farm income as revenue assurance and the conservation incentives.

The group's agenda also included livestock feed and disaster assistance, payment limitations, planting flexibility, government stocks policy and the farmer-owned reserve program, industrial uses of farm commodities and the impacts of international trade agreements on domestic farm program.

"Our task," Sparby said, "was to identify issues for further analysis as the legislative proposals are formulated. Recommendations may include actions to improve the performance of existing programs or creating new ones."

The 1995 farm bill will replace legislation covering the current commodity support programs which will expire at the end of the 1995 crop year.

Accept capacity building grant requests in art

Arts council of the Northwest Regional Development Commission is accepting applications for the NWRDC/McKnight Capacity Building Grants round, according to Mara Lunde, arts council director.

Arts organizations classified under Section 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code with a biennial budget of at least $12,000 may be eligible to apply for a two-year $5,000 planning/implementing grant. This program is supported with funding from the McKnight Foundation. Deadline for grant applications is August 1.

Organizations interested in making application through the grant program may contact Lunde at 681-2637 or 1-800-450-2637 for application materials and eligibility information.

The story of the Soo

"Vintage Soo" is the name of this painting by Larry Fisher which appeared in the book, "Saga of the Soo" by John A. Gjevre. The picture reminds us of how the Soo Line looked as it traveled throughout northern Minnesota and North Dakota on those cold winter days. The engine is a H-1 class 4-6-2 locomotive which served the Soo Line from the early 1900's.

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

The railroad was the main means of travel and transport for the settlers in the United States. Immigrants came to America in the late 1800s looking for homesteads and land, bringing with them as many of their possessions as possible. They landed at Ellis Island and came on to the midwest to seek their fortunes, traveling by train to areas where friends and relatives had settled before them.

The name "Soo Line" came from the Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie and Atlantic railroad, which was organized in 1883 to provide a direct route to ship flour from Minneapolis to Europe.

In 1895, the Soo Line advertised land available for $3 to $10 an acre, stating there were fertile prairie lands in Minnesota and North Dakota and magnificent timbered lands in Wisconsin and Michigan. Half fare was offered for homesteaders and settlers, as well as their household goods, tools, teams, cattle, sheep and hogs.

From 1903 to 1915, newspapers and periodicals printed advertisments in Norwegian, Swedish and German encouraging immigrants to come to seek their fortunes in the "Golden Grain Belt," where land was available for $10 to $15 an acre. Naturally, travelers were urged to make their trips to the land of plenty via the Soo Line, where cheap fares were available.

In 1903, the line from Glenwood to Winnipeg was begun. The first 16 miles north of Glenwood were farmland, so construction of the railroad lines was fairly easy through to Alexandria. However, grading north into the wooded lake country was not so simple. Despite the fact that laying of track was difficult because of the lakes and bogs, and 200 feet of track sank and slid into a poor fill across Lake Irene, rail was laid as far as Detroit Lakes by the fall of 1903, when the winter freeze halted work.

The year of 1904 had a wet summer and by the time the newly-named town of Wild Rice was reached, the yard site was a pool of water.

At this time, towns along the Soo Line were being named along the way by the railroad's chief engineer, Thomas Green, and general manager, Edmund Pennington.

However, the Indian council on the White Earth reservation drafted a petition that all towns on the Soo Line that were in the reservation were to be given Indian names. Thus, the newly-named town of Wild Rice was renamed with the Chippewa name for wild rice, Mahnomen; Angora became Ogema (Chippewa for "chief"); Graydon became Waubun ("rising sun"), and Sultan became Bejou ("hello").

Rails arrived in Thief River Falls on September 24, 1904, and the Soo Line immediately become the town's largest employer. When the county that encompassed Thief River Falls was named, it was named in honor of Edmund Pennington, general manager of the Soo Line.

The man after whom Pennington county is named was born September 16, 1848, to Edmund and [illegible] England and Scotland. Sarah Pennington died the year after Edmund Jr. was born, and the family moved to St. Anthony Village in St. Paul in 1853.

Pennington began his railroad career at the age of 16 as a switchman with the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. In 1899, he became general manager of the Soo

Thrifty White Stores buys TRF drug stores

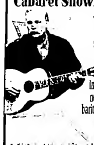
Bruce Pharmacy and Corner Drug to be merged into one store

Sale of Corner Drug and Bruce Pharmacy to Thrifty White Stores with headquarters in Minneapolis effective July 26 was announced at a meeting Wednesday in the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce office.

Plans are to extensively remodel the Corner Drug store at the corner of LaBree Avenue and Second Street and consolidate the two businesses into that space with Allan Black, presently of Little Falls, as store manager. Both stores will remain open at their present locations until late October when the single store operation will begin.

Lee Erickson, owner of Corner Drug, and Mike and Bill LaSalle, owners of Bruce Pharmacy, are all licensed pharmacists and will operate the pharmacy department of the store which will have a name change to Thrifty White Drug. All employees of the two present stores will be offered continued employment by the new owner.

In a [illegible] customers, Corner Drug and Bruce Pharmacy stated that "during this time of uncertain and rapid change in the health care industry, the trend is, and must be toward more efficient and cost conscious delivery of quality health care." It added that the announcement of an alliance with Thrifty White Drug is being made with "much excitement and anticipation."



Erickson and the LaSalles stated that the amount of time required for government reporting and paperwork stifled their ability to provide the proper service to their customers in listening to concerns, discussing use of medications and giving other advice. With the ability

The story of the Soo

"Vintage Soo" is the name of this painting by Larry Fisher which appeared in the book, "Saga of the Soo" by John A. Gjevre. The picture reminds us of how the Soo Line looked as it traveled throughout northern Minnesota and North Dakota on those cold winter days. The engine is a H-1 class 4-6-2 locomotive which served the Soo Line from the early 1900's.

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

The railroad was the main means of travel and transport for the settlers in the United States. Immigrants came to America in the late 1800s looking for homesteads and land, bringing with them as many of their possessions as possible. They landed at Ellis Island and came on to the midwest to seek their fortunes, traveling by train to areas where friends and relatives had settled before them.

The name "Soo Line" came from the Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie and Atlantic railroad, which was organized in 1883 to provide a direct route to ship flour from Minneapolis to Europe.

In 1895, the Soo Line advertised land available for $3 to $10 an acre, stating there were fertile prairie lands in Minnesota and North Dakota and magnificent timbered lands in Wisconsin and Michigan. Half fare was offered for homesteaders and settlers, as well as their household goods, tools, teams, cattle, sheep and hogs.

From 1903 to 1915, newspapers and periodicals printed advertisments in Norwegian, Swedish and German encouraging immigrants to come to seek their fortunes in the "Golden Grain Belt," where land was available for $10 to $15 an acre. Naturally, travelers were urged to make their trips to the land of plenty via the Soo Line, where cheap fares were available.

In 1903, the line from Glenwood to Winnipeg was begun. The first 16 miles north of Glenwood were farmland, so construction of the railroad lines was fairly easy through to Alexandria. However, grading north into the wooded lake country was not so simple. Despite the fact that laying of track was difficult because of the lakes and bogs, and 200 feet of track sank and slid into a poor fill across Lake Irene, rail was laid as far as Detroit Lakes by the fall of 1903, when the winter freeze halted work.

The year of 1904 had a wet summer and by the time the newly-named town of Wild Rice was reached, the yard site was a pool of water.

At this time, towns along the Soo Line were being named along the way by the railroad's chief engineer, Thomas Green, and general manager, Edmund Pennington.

However, the Indian council on the White Earth reservation drafted a petition that all towns on the Soo Line that were in the reservation were to be given Indian names. Thus, the newly-named town of Wild Rice was renamed with the Chippewa name for wild rice, Mahnomen; Angora became Ogema (Chippewa for "chief"), Graydon became Waubun ("rising sun"), and Sultan became Bejou ("hello").

Rails arrived in Thief River Falls on September 24, 1904, and the Soo Line immediately became the town's largest employer. When the county that encompassed Thief River Falls was named, it was named in honor of Edmund Pennington, general manager of the Soo Line.

The man after whom Pennington county is named was born September 16, 1848, to Edmund and Sarah Pennington, immigrants from England and Scotland. Sarah Pennington died the year after Edmund Jr. was born, and the family moved to St Anthony Village in St Paul in 1853.

Pennington began his railroad career at the age of 16 as a switchman with the Chicago, Milwaukee and St Paul Railroad. In 1899, he became general manager of the Soo

Thrifty White Stores buys TRF drug stores

Bruce Pharmacy and Corner Drug to be merged into one store

Sale of Corner Drug and Bruce Pharmacy to Thrifty White Stores with headquarters in Minneapolis effective July 26 was announced at a meeting Wednesday in the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce office.

Plans are to extensively remodel the Corner Drug store at the corner of LaBree Avenue and Second Street and consolidate the two businesses into that space with Allan Black, presently of Little Falls, as store manager. Both stores will remain open at their present locations until late October when the single store operation will begin.

Lee Erickson, owner of Corner Drug, and Mike and Bill LaSalle, owners of Bruce Pharmacy, are all licensed pharmacists and will operate the pharmacy department of the store which will have a name change to Thrifty White Drug. All employees of the two present stores will be offered continued employment by the new owner.

In a letter being mailed to their customers, Corner Drug and Bruce Pharmacy stated that "during this time of uncertain and rapid change in the health care industry, the trend is, and must be toward more efficient and cost conscious delivery of quality health care." It added that the announcement of an alliance with Thrifty White Drug is being made with "much excitement and anticipation."

Erickson and the LaSalles stated that the amount of time required for government reporting and paperwork stifled their ability to provide the proper service to their customers in listening to concerns, discussing use of medications and giving other advice. With the ability

SINCE YOU'VE GONE
I've learned to value each moment,
I've learned to sing a new song,
I'm learning to be much more patient,
And not say, "It's taking too long."
I'm learning to fill in the spaces
With tasks that I know I must do,
I do them now gladly for others,
Without my depending on you.
Thank you for giving me memories,
Thank you for giving me life
Thank you for blessed assurance
And for holding my hand in the smile.
The seasons of Life now are changing,
As over Life's pathways I tread,
And if this be my springtime or winter,
I leave that decision to God.

Shevlin — A Clearwater county mother and son were arrested and charged in connection with an armed robbery which occurred at the Flowing Well Tavern near Mahnomen about 4 p.m. on July 8. Evangeline "Shirley" Bourcy, age 41, was charged with armed robbery and her son, Richard, age 20, was charged with aggravated armed robbery. According to the Mahnomen County Sheriff's Department, a masked, armed man entered the tavern and announced a hold up. The individual fired a warning shot into the ceiling and instructed the bartender to give him all the cash from pull tab sales and the cash register, an amount of nearly $1,500. The man then left the store and ran to a vehicle waiting three quarters of a mile down the road. The Bourcys made their initial court appearance in Mahnomen on July 12. Shirley Bourcy is free on $25,000 bond and Dick Bourcy is being held at the Becker County Jail on $100,000 bond.

Stephen — A Stephen man made an emergency landing of his airplane on Highway I-29 near Drayton Monday evening. Richard Stelzke was piloting a crop spraying plane when he experienced engine trouble about 8:45 Monday. Traffic prevented his landing on Highway 17, so he landed on the northbound lane of I-29. A 5 Letter Word for a Technical College Grad From NORTHWEST TECHNICAL COLLEGE Thief River Falls
HIRED

THE RESULTS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES...

Going back to school 17 years after I graduated from high school and with 3 small children was the hardest thing I ever did, but it paid off in a big way. I have a great job that I really like, and I make much more than I could with only a high school diploma.
Jenny Pulczinski, Roseau Area Hospital

The experience I have gained through the Legal Secretarial course at the Northwest Technical College has given me the education I have needed to reach my positions working with the court. I have worked 4 years with the Penn. Co. Court Administrator's Office and am currently in my 4th year working for the MN Dept. of Corrections as a Clerk Typist. The knowledge of legal terminology and correct format for legal papers had been a great factor in obtaining these positions. Also, the typing ability I toned up on during school put me in the top percentile for the positions.
Coreen Erickson, Department of Corrections, Probation/Parole

As a result of the excellent medical secretarial training I received at the Tech College, I have had two medical secretarial jobs and two secretarial/receptionist jobs and am currently working at a state agency dealing with job/training program.
Pat Bjerknes, MN Dept. Of Economic Security (Jobs & Training)

The Medical Secretarial program gave me the experience and knowledge I needed to have the job that I have today. The course was a very interesting one, especially the Medical Terminology & Transcription. In the position I carry today, I use everything I learned at the Tech and it is a great feeling to be doing something that I really love to do.
Thanks Mrs. Goldesberry! Becki Wavra, Inter-County Nursing Service Red Lake Falls & Thief River Falls

Christensens are Pennington Agassiz Leaders

Keith and Ruth Christensen of rural Thief River Falls have been selected as Pennington County Agassiz Leaders for 1994-95. Selection was made by a committee consisting of past participants in the program, Agri-business people and Pennington county extension personnel.

Keith and Ruth Christensen

The Christensens succeed Steve and Roxane Sorvig who served in the Agassiz Leader program for 1993-94.

The Agassiz Leaders program is a combination of the King Agassiz program of the Red River Valley Winter Shows and the Emerging Leadership program of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Recognition of the Christensens will take place Sunday, July 24, at 2 p.m. at the bandshell during the 93rd annual Pennington County Fair.

The Emerging Leadership program involves four sessions, beginning in January of 1995, that seek to help individuals develop as community participants and leaders. The Christensens will also be Pennington county's representatives at the Red River Valley Winter Shows and be candidates for Red River Valley Agassiz Ambassadors designation.

Keith and Ruth have three children: Katie, 13; David, 10; and Danny, 8. They farm east of Thief River Falls with Keith's father, Clyde, Keith's brothers Curt and Kent and brother-in-law Scott Hutton.

Heavy rains slow construction projects in TRF

Phase I of the Thief River Falls downtown street and utility reconstruction project is well underway. Despite all of the notices and signs and barricades on Horace Avenue or adjacent streets, people are still trying to drive through the construction area, said Ron Lindberg, engineering services director. Lindberg is asking that residents please follow the signs and stay out of the areas under construction.

During the weekly construction progress meeting held at the city auditorium Wednesday morning, a number of minor problems were discussed. The contractor's project foreman said the project is somewhat on schedule. He hasn't had any days cancelled because of rain yet. His crews, however, have experienced delays of several hours and those "hours" are beginning to add up. He also expressed concern about trucks going in and out of the muddy construction areas, the trucks carrying mud out onto the main roads, and the difficulty being experienced by trucks getting in and out of areas where they are storing dirt from the project.

Lindberg explained that under the terms of this contract, "days off" because of rain are not included in this contract. The contractor has until a certain date to complete the project and that's it.

Linberg said they have been asked to keep track of any damage caused by severe weather. Those damage amounts will be added to the disaster declaration for the county.

The sidewalk project is progressing despite the weather. Lindberg said he estimated the project 75 per cent complete.

Phase I of the downtown street and utility reconstruction project was scheduled to take about two weeks. Phase II, LaBree Avenue, will not begin until Phase I is passable to traffic.

Mother and son charged with armed robbery

Shevlin — A Clearwater county mother and son were arrested and charged in connection with an armed robbery which occurred at the Flowing Well Tavern near Mahnomen about 4 p.m. on July 8. Evangeline "Shirley" Bourey, age 41, was charged with armed robbery and her son, Richard, age 20, was charged with aggravated armed robbery. According to the Mahnomen County Sheriff's Department, a masked, armed man entered the tavern and announced a hold up. The individual fired a warning shot into the ceiling and instructed the bartender to give him all the cash from pull tab sales and the cash register, an amount of nearly $1,500. The man then left the store and ran to a vehicle waiting three quarters of a mile down the road. The Boureys made their initial court appearance in Mahnomen on July 12. Shirley Bourey is free on $25,000 bond and Dick Bourey is being held at the Becker County Jail on $100,000 bond.

Stephen man lands plane on I-29

Stephen — A Stephen man made an emergency landing of his airplane on Highway I-29 near Drayton Monday evening. Richard Steinke was piloting a crop spraying plane when he experienced engine trouble about 8:45 Monday. Traffic prevented his landing on Highway 17, so he landed on the northbound lane of I-29. An approaching semi provided traffic control for the landing. No one was injured and the plane was not damaged in the incident.

A 5 Letter Word for a Technical College Grad From NORTHWEST TECHNICAL COLLEGE Thief River Falls

HIRED

THE RESULTS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES...

Going back to school 17 years after I graduated from high school and with 3 small children was the hardest thing I ever did, but it paid off in a big way. I have a great job that I really like, and I make much more than I could with only a high school diploma.
Jenny Pulczinski, Roseau Area Hospital

The experience I have gained through the Legal Secretarial course at the Northwest Technical College has given me the education I have needed to reach my positions working with the court. I have worked 4 years with the Penn. Co. Court Administrator's Office and am currently in my 4th year working for the MN Dept. of Corrections as a Clerk Typist. The knowledge of legal terminology and correct format for legal papers had been a great factor in obtaining these positions. Also, the typing ability I toned up on during school put me in the top percentile for the positions.
Coreen Erickson, Department of Corrections Probation/Parole

As a result of the excellent medical secretarial training I received at the Tech College, I have had two medical secretarial jobs and two secretarial/receptionist jobs and am currently working at a state agency dealing with job/training program.
Pat Byeknes, MN Dept. Of Economic Security (Jobs & Training)

The Medical Secretarial program gave me the experience and knowledge I needed to have the job that I have today. The course was a very interesting one, especially the Medical Terminology & Transcription. In the position I carry today I use everything I learned at the Tech and it is a great feeling to be doing something that I really love to do.
Thanks Mrs. Goldesberry! Becky Wavra, Inter-County Nursing Service Red Lake Falls & Thief River Falls

Christensens are Pennington Agassiz Leaders

Keith and Ruth Christensen of rural Thief River Falls have been selected as Pennington County Agassiz Leaders for 1994-95. Selection was made by a committee consisting of past participants in the program, Agri business people and Pennington county extension personnel.

The Christensens succeed Steve and Roxane Sorvig who served in the Agassiz Leader program for 1993-94.

The Agassiz Leaders program is a combination of the King Agassiz program of the Red River Valley Winter Shows and the Emerging Leadership program of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Recognition of the Christensens will take place Sunday, July 24, at 2 p.m. at the bandshell during the 93rd annual Pennington County Fair.

The Emerging Leadership program involves four sessions, beginning in January of 1995, that seek to help individuals develop as community participants and leaders. The Christensens will also be Pennington county's representatives at the Red River Valley Winter Shows and be candidates for Red River Valley Agassiz Ambassadors designation.

Keith and Ruth Christensen

Keith and Ruth have three children: Katie, 13; David, 10; and Danny, 8. They farm east of Thief River Falls with Keith's father, Clyde, Keith's brothers Curt and Kent and brother-in-law Scott Hutton.

Heavy rains slow construction projects in TRF

Phase I of the Thief River Falls downtown street and utility reconstruction project is well underway. Despite all of the notices and signs and barricades on Horace Avenue or adjacent streets, people are still trying to drive through the construction area, said Ron Lindberg, engineering services director. Lindberg is asking that residents please follow the signs and stay out of the areas under construction.

During the weekly construction progress meeting held at the city auditorium Wednesday morning, a number of minor problems were discussed. The contractor's project foreman said the project is somewhat on schedule. He hasn't had any days cancelled because of rain yet. His crews, however, have experienced delays of several hours and those "hours" are beginning to add up. He also expressed concern about trucks going in and out of the muddy construction areas, the trucks carrying mud out onto the main roads, and the difficulty being experienced by trucks getting in and out of areas where they are storing dirt from the project.

Lindberg explained that under the terms of this contract, "days off" because of rain are not included in this contract. The contractor has until a certain date to complete the project and that's it.

Linberg said they have been asked to keep track of any damage caused by severe weather. Those damage amounts will be added to the disaster declaration for the county.

The sidewalk project is progressing despite the weather. Lindberg said he estimated the project 75 per cent complete.

Phase I of the downtown street and utility reconstruction project was scheduled to take about two weeks. Phase II, LaBree Avenue, will not begin until Phase I is passable to traffic.

The Pendulum May Be Swinging Back

There is one thing to be said for our American system of justice, and that is that in most instances, given enough time and attention, what is right will eventually prevail. Usually what it takes for that to happen, however, is for the government to become oppressive and greedy enough for the courts to intervene and protect the citizenry.

The situation is frequently likened to the pendulum on a clock which will go just so far in one direction before it swings back again. In the case of unreasonable and impractical environmental issues, it would appear that the pendulum has reached the end of its arc to the left and is on its way back toward center.

And it's about time.

More and more court cases are being won by persons who have been restricted in the use of their private property by laws or governmental agency regulations. This reflects a greater common sense viewpoint by the courts and a more appropriate viewpoint on what federal law actually means by what it says.

The U.S. Constitution is a superb document intended to protect the people from the misuse of power by their government. It has provisions in many areas which leave the ultimate decision of what is right up to the people. A prime example is the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution's Bill of Rights. Protection of the public in the courts is at the heart of the amendment, but its last provision makes specific reference to the private ownership of property. That provision reads: "....nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

Over the years this has been practiced in the use of "eminent domain" or "condemnation" proceedings, whereby private property may be taken by the government for public use, such as highway construction. Most Americans would agree that such a provision is necessary to an orderly society, but the key to its practice has always been the payment of fair compensation for value of the property. The government is prevented by law from seizing private property without paying for it.

When there is a transfer of title from the individual to the government, the issue is rather clear-cut. Where the issue becomes cloudy is where the ownership of property remains with the private party but how that property can be used is in the control of government. This has become an increasing problem with the passage of a number of laws intended to protect "the environment."

Until recently, courts had ruled that laws which strip the property owner of the ability to use his or her land were not takings.

But in 1990 the U.S. Supreme Court, in the case of Lucas vs. the State of South Carolina, ruled that beach protection legislation "substantially" deprived Lucas of the value of his property and he was due compensation. Unfortunately, the Supreme Court did not define what "substantially" meant.

Attorney John Helderschelt of the Washington Legal Foundation writes that property owners can fight back through the tax code. When environmental restrictions reduce the value of property, he says, it is only fair that property owners pay less in taxes. He cites, among others, a case in New Jersey where a developer had his property declared a partial wetland. The developer went to the courts which agreed that his property was less valuable and ordered his tax assessment reduced from $20 million to $1 million.

Increasingly restrictive wetlands laws have put many Minnesota farmers in a position of being in violation of the law if they do a good job of farming their land. Most object to being in that position, but few if any are willing or able to expend the time and money necessary to challenge the law in the courts. The expense would be greater than the value of the land.

Helderschelt ventures the opinion, however, that "If the government has substantially reduced the value of your property through restrictions on development in the name of 'environmental protection,' the law increasingly recognizes that you have a right to relief."

We fully recognize the importance of concern for our environment as a societal issue and we are well aware of the value of wetland areas in flood control and wildlife preservation. But we also believe it is unfair to expect private owners of property to bear the costs of public benefit, which they now do under law, and we strongly suspect that the courts would agree that the current situation is neither right nor proper. Until the challenge is made, however, the status quo will prevail.

The pendulum of government control of privately held property is indeed on the return swing. If anyone really wants to seek fairness in the "taking" of property, this would be a good time to jump on and catch a ride.

"A Republic, If You Can Keep It...."

Benjamin Franklin was the 27th of 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence and one of only a few who were able to persevere and be of continuing service to the new nation following the Revolutionary War. Asked in his later years what kind of government had been created on July 4, 1776, he replied: "A Republic, if you can keep it."

Keeping our Republic as a land of free people where responsibility is equal to opportunity has not been easy. It continues to be difficult now as socialistic views prevail in government and people expect to have a good life provided for them as a "right" of living in America. A reminder of what it took to create our nation is in order.

John Adams, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, wrote to his wife that it was, in fact, an act of treason. Those who signed it stood a good chance to incur the penalty meted out to traitors.

The 56 signers included 25 lawyers or jurists, 11 merchants, nine farmers or plantation owners and a number of doctors and educators. Their goal was liberty and they knew the potential consequences.

The 22nd signer, William Ellery of Rhode Island, stood where he could watch the others. "I was determined," he wrote, "to see how they all looked as they signed what might be their death warrant....Undaunted resolution was displayed on every countenance."

And suffer they did. Francis Lewis of New York has his home burned by the British and his wife imprisoned for two years, dying soon after her release. Lewis Morris' New York estate was ransacked and destroyed. He eluded capture by taking refuge in caves and forests but his ailing wife died and their 13 children were scattered.

After signing, Richard Stockton rushed home to Princeton, NJ, to rescue his family from advancing enemy troops. He was captured, thrown into prison, repeatedly beaten and nearly starved, dying an invalid in 1781. Robert Morris of Pennsylvania spent his entire fortune—more than a million dollars—to finance the war effort. He was never reimbursed, served three years in a debtor's prison and died soon after his release.

Thomas Heyward Jr. served in the Revolutionary army, was captured, his plantation was raided and buildings burned and his grief-stricken wife died before his release at war's end.

And today's generation thinks it is too much trouble to go to the polls and vote. Ben Franklin was wise in the ways of people.

Board asked to consider name change for school district

Thief River Falls-St. Hilaire suggested

In reviewing his goals for School District 564 at the July meeting of the board of education recently, Supt. Bob Duncan suggested that the board consider changing the name of the district to the Thief River Falls-St. Hilaire School District.

Supt. Duncan said that since School District 564 is comprised of the former St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls school districts, and that St. Hilaire operated its own schools—including a high school—for many years, it seems appropriate to recognize that entity in the name of the present district. He said the idea had been brought to the St. Hilaire City Council for comment and that the response was that the name change seemed like a good idea.

Board members were asked to give the suggestion some consideration and to discuss it with others. It will be presented again at a future meeting of the board.

The board acted on a variety of matters at the meeting and heard several reports from board and staff members.

David L. Peterson updated the board on the district's technology plan, reviewing accomplishments to date and noting work remaining to be done.

Carol Ihle, coordinator of the volunteer program, presented the 1993-94 annual report showing that there were 576 volunteers donating almost 10,000 hours of volunteer time to the district last year and that the program is still growing.

Reporting for Darla Twomey as a member of the Multi-Events Cultural Center Joint Powers Board, Supt. Duncan noted that the construction management approach would be used and that four architects had been approved for interviews to be conducted this month.

Kezar Music was awarded the contract for providing 73 VCRs and 97 television monitors for the Challenger elementary school at a total cost of $48,879, as well as an optional bid in the amount of $485 for installation of these units. Bids for network electronics at Challenger were rejected and the administration authorized to re-bid.

Recognition was given to Lincoln junior Jill Dekkera for being selected to the MMEA all-state band and to board member Carl Clark for being named as school board representative on the Northwest Regional Development Commission.

Resignations were accepted from Monica Swanson as assistant girls tennis coach and Jeff Loe as sixth grade football coach. Assignment of Nancy Harbott as activities director secretary effective for the 1994-95 school year was approved, as well as the transfer of Sandra Radloff from three-hour kitchen helper at Lincoln to 4.5-hour kitchen helper at Franklin.

Employment was approved for David S. Clausen, sales and marketing instructor long-term substitute at Lincoln; Larry Weber, bus driver and Amy Erickson, lifeguard.

Extra-curricular assignments approved were Gary Laidley as high school assistant football coach, Helen Anderson as high school head volleyball coach, Amy Roche as eighth grade volleyball coach and Sharon Fugleberg and Roxi Nicholson as ticket sellers.

Contract with Northwest Medical Center and Dakota Clinic—Thief River Falls to provide athletic trainer services for the 1994-95 school year was approved at the increased rate of $2,000 for the school year. A lease was also approved with Home Lumber Company to use its property on Eighth Street as a bus transportation hub at an annual fee of $900.

Two used station wagons and two 19-passenger buses were sold on bids. Purchasers of 1984 Pontiac Parisienne station wagons were Howard Dalager at $810 and Carolyn Haugen at $771.95. Monty Thygeson purchased the two 1985 model buses for $1,599.76 and $1,651.

Donna Konickson, an employee at Corner Drug in Thief River Falls, won honorable mention in the Crazy Days Costume Contest Thursday with her construction worker costume.

New law permits lien against MA recipient property

A new law was passed by the 1993 Minnesota Legislature permitting a lien against the real property of a Medical Assistance (MA) recipient in certain circumstances. The law went into effect on July 1, 1993, and liens will start to be filed after necessary policies and procedures have been completed.

This new law only affects MA recipients who reside in care facilities and own an interest in any real estate, according to Darlene Weber, paralegal with Legal Services of Northwest Minnesota.

A lien is a claim against an individual's property to satisfy a debt. An MA lien may be filed against the real property owned by a person when he or she receives MA benefits while in a medical institution. A medical institution is defined as a nursing facility, intermediate care facility for persons with mental retardation, or inpatient hospital.

A lien may only be filed after it is determined by the local MA agency (county social services) that the recipient cannot reasonably be expected to return to his or her home.

The local MA agency cannot file a lien against an MA recipient's property in the following situations:

(1) While the MA recipient is reasonably expected to return home;

(2) While the real property is the homestead of the MA recipient's spouse or child under age 21;

(3) While the recipient's child of any age who is blind or disabled resides in the household;

(4) While the property is the homestead of a child of any age who lived in the home for at least two years immediately before the parent's admission to the care facility and who provided care during that time that kept the parent from being institutionalized; or

(5) While the property is the homestead of a brother or sister who lived in the home for at least one year immediately before the person's admission to the care facility and who has an equity interest in the home.

The MA recipient and his or her spouse or legal representative will receive a written notice of the agency's intent to file a lien. They will also have the right to request an appeal of this decision. For more information or assistance in appealing a lien filing, contact Legal Services at 1-800-450-8585.

Immunization clinics set in Marshall Co.

Marshall County Nursing Service will hold immunization clinics at five locations in the county during August, according to Nancy Maurstad, RN.

The vaccine used is provided free of charge by the Minnesota Department of Health for use in community-based clinics. There will be a $4 fee for administering the vaccine, but no one will be refused because of inability to pay.

Maurstad said that families are asked to bring their infants to their family physician for the initial DTP and oral polio immunization or to bring a signed referral from the physician indicating that the immunization is to be given by the nursing service.

"We also want to make it known that immunization services given at these public clinics should not be substituted for the child's usual well-child visit with his or her physician," Maurstad added. "Please bring the child's immunization record each time the child is brought to the immunization clinic. Immunizations will not be given unless the record is presented, except when the first shot is being administered."

Clinic schedule includes the following:

Tuesday, August 2, 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Newfolden Community Center;

Wednesday, August 3, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Middle River Community Center;

Thursday, August 11, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Grygla Civic Building;

Monday, August 15, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Evangelical Covenant Church in Warren; and

Monday, August 29, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Marshall County Nursing Service Office in Warren.

For more information contact Nancy Maurstad at the nursing service office, phone 745-5154.

Diane Freemen, an employee at Mr. Duane's in Thief River Falls, dressed up as a construction worker on Thursday and won Third place in the Crazy Days Costume Contest. The "construction worker" theme was a common theme at many stores in downtown Thief River Falls on Crazy Days, but Diane showed a little muscle and an attitude that was hard to resist.

Crazy Days Costume Contest winners in TRF announced

Crazy Days Costume Conteal judging was conducted Thursday morning at many downtown Thief River Falls businesses. At the conclusion, judges said everybody got so involved and had such wonderful costumes that it was really hard to decide who to award tho prizes to. Prizes in the Crazee Clerk Costume Contest were $50 for first, $25 for second place, and $10 for third place.

First place in the individual competition went to Ellen Groo, an employeo at Subway who dressed up as Pippy Longstocking. Second place went to one of the "Babes in Bedrock" at Annette's Fabrics — Deb Williams. Third place went to one of the "Construction Workers" at Mr. Duane's — Diane Freeman. Honorable mention went to Donna Konickson, an employee at Corner Drug who dressed up as a construction worker, and Angie Hasnedl, an employee at Subway who dressed up as a Spider.

First place in the store competition went to Mr. Duane's. Employees at the store dressed up as construction workers, a most appropriate costume considering the construction work that just began in downtown Thief River Falls. Honorable mention in the store competition went to Annette's Fabrics, where employees dressed up as members of tho "Bedrock" gang from "The Flintstones".

Although tho sidewalk sale is over, Thief River Falls businesses wish to remind customers that many of the sales at stores will extend through Friday and Saturday, July 22 and 23.

Thief River Golf Club Ladies Invitational...

Familiar champ wins golf title

by Mike Lundgren, Sports Editor

Sylvia Olson made a habit of winning titles at the Thief River Golf Club. Sylvia Christensen is following suit.

She's one in the same. Remarried following the death of her first husband, long-time Thief River Falls community leader and KTRF Radio owner/operator Don Olson, Sylvia Christensen remains a winner.

Sylvia Olson won some 20 Thief River Falls women's club titles before that tournament was eliminated after the 1984 competition. Twice she enjoyed a championship reign that stretched nine years.

She added another half-dozen or so Ladies Invitational titles – the last coming in 1986 – before a 39 on the first nine Tuesday put her in position to have Sylvia Christensen announced as the Championship Flight winner in the awards program that followed the rain-soaked 18-hole tournament.

Christensen finished with an 86 and a two-stroke victory over runner-up Deb Jacobson. Marilyn Collins of Park River, ND, shot a 93 for third place.

"I was really happy with the 39," said Christensen. "I played so well that first nine. The rain came on the second nine, and I couldn't handle the clubs. It was terrible."

Sylvia and husband Collin Christensen are dividing the year into six-month segments being spent in Thief River Falls and Sun City, Arizona, providing an opportunity for year-around golf. "We play a couple of times a week," said Sylvia, who is playing more golf now than she did while dominating the local links. "I used to play only once a week – usually in the ladies' league," she explained. "I enjoyed it, but if I played too much, I got tired of it."

Two of her children live in this area – Bill, a dentist in Grand Forks, and Mary Daley, a dental assistant in Fargo. A third Olson with current North Dakota ties is son Jim, a television anchorman in Minot. Daughter Linda Larson is a teacher in Irvine, California.

A Northland Community College instructor/coach, Jacobson wound up Championship Flight runner-up for the second straight year. Second to former Concordia College All-America golfer Kelly Cornell in 1993, Jacobson won the tournament in 1987 and 1988, beating Sylvia Olson for the title in '88 after finishing behind her in another 1-2 finish between the two in '86.

Collins was the Championship Flight third place finisher for the second straight year. She won it in 1990.

Rain wipes out TRF doubleheader with Fergus Falls squad

Wet weather washed out a scheduled Thief River Falls American Legion baseball doubleheader at Fergus Falls Tuesday.

Post 117 took a 12-19 record into back-to-back weekend doubleheaders – Friday night at Detroit Lakes and this afternoon (Saturday) at Fargo.

Thief River Falls will close out its regular season schedule with 5:30 p.m. doubleheaders at home Tuesday vs. Roseau, Thursday vs. East Grand Forks and Saturday (July 30) vs. Devils Lake.

Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament will be played Aug. 3-7 in Fergus Falls.

Thieves clinch playoff spot

Marc Haugen collected 4 hits in 6 at-bats, while Chris Nelson went 3-for-4 and drove in four runs Monday as the Thief River Falls Thieves picked up a 10-8 amateur baseball win over Roseau.

Officials first said the game would be postponed because of wet grounds, but with little time left to complete the regular season, the contest was played as scheduled on the soggy Irv Wilson Field diamond.

The two teams are scheduled to play again Monday in Roseau.

Jeremy Olson turned in a complete-game pitching effort for the win.

Monday's victory clinched a post-season playoff spot for the first-year Thieves, who will play a 2-out-of-3 series against Warroad or Roseau. Sites and dates will be announced later. Winner will advance to the state-qualifying Region 12C tournament in Detroit Lakes.

Rain did erase a scheduled Thief River Falls game at Crookston Tuesday.

The Soo Line as it is today, shown at the yard in Thief River Falls. This is the 560 train which runs from Thief River Falls to Glenwood. The picture was taken on June 29 as the train spent some time in the yard "blocking cars," which means grouping the cars so that they can be removed in blocks at their final destination.

Line, and then became president of the railroad in 1909. He married Mrs. Ella Lawler in 1905, and died May 1, 1926, at the age of 77.

Towns along the Soo Line prospered with the influx of trainmen and settlers, along with businesses to serve the swelling population.

Mahnomen became a boom town when lands on the White Earth reservation became eligible for settling because of the Clapp Amendment.

Prior to the Clapp Amendment, no reservation lands could be sold for settlement, but the amendment allowed those of mixed blood to sell their lands. Many native Americans felt that the amendment was derogatory to the full-blooded Indians because it inferred that they were incapable of managing their own affairs and must be watched over by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

A list was made of reservation land owned by those who were allowed to sell and a land boom resulted. Land companies from the area rushed to buy up and then sell land to immigrants and settlers for a profit. As a result, the city of Mahnomen prospered. A four stall round house was constructed in Mahnomen and it became a layover point for the trainmen as well as those people who came on the trains to homestead the newly-opened reservation land. This resulted in the need for hotels, boarding houses, eating establishments and other businesses to accommodate the visitors.

In 1905, the 300 mile "Wheat Line" from Thief River Falls to Kenmare, ND, opened the door between North Dakota and Minnesota. From Thief River Falls, the Wheat Line passed through Rosewood, Radium, Viking, Warren, Alvarado and Oslo before crossing the Red River into North Dakota. A grand swinging bridge was constructed over the Red River in Oslo.

In 1909 and 1910, the eastern extension of the Soo ran from Plummer to Moose Lake near Duluth, allowing traffic from the Wheat Line to Duluth, which was called the "Head of the Lakes," and then on to the east coast or overseas.

In October of 1914, an 18-mile track from Thief River Falls to Goodridge was completed. The train made as many as three round trips daily, pulled by a General Electric motor car engine. The train could carry 91 passengers. Trips declined during the Depression until the line was abandoned in 1940.

(The ending of the Story of the Soo will be in next week's edition of The Northern Watch.)

Semester system studied for community colleges

Acting on a suggestion from college presidents, the State Board for Community Colleges recommended at its July meeting that a formal study be made of switching Minnesota's public colleges and universities from quarters to semesters.

A resolution adopted by the board called it "an opportune time" to review the merits of semesters versus quarters. Moorhead State University has received permission from the State University Board to switch to semesters in the fall of 1995 and the idea is being discussed at Winona State, St. Cloud State and Mankato State Universities.

Semesters are generally used in surrounding states, but Minnesota's public higher education institutions —Including the University of Minnesota—have long used a fall-winter-spring quarter system with one or two short summer sessions.

There are two forms of semester systems. Many Minnesota private colleges use a fall and winter semester sandwiched around a January "winterim" term. Other institutions use a trimester plan without a long winter break, adding a third semester over the summer.

Proponents contend that longer semesters have educational benefits, especially for research and writing projects. Semesters also cut down on the costs of registration since there are fewer entry times. Fans of the quarter system like the more frequent opportunities for students to enter higher education, especially for adult students who may drop in and out for one quarter at a time.

The community college board asked Chancellor Geraldine Evans to organize a study of potential costs, financial benefits and long-term educational benefits that might accrue if community colleges adopt a semester-based calendar in the future. The board resolution suggested that the study include participation by technical colleges and state universities, since all three systems will become part of a new merged higher education system next year.

Effective July 1, 1995, community colleges, state universities and technical colleges will all be governed by a single state Higher Education Board. Results of the study will be turned over to the Higher Education Board.

Under the new system, the 15-member Higher Education Board will govern a statewide network of 62 campuses with 162,000 students and 21,000 employees. Current governing board for community and technical colleges and state universities will be eliminated.

Most individual colleges and universities will keep their own names and operate much as they do now. However, in some locations such as Thief River Falls, Brainerd and Duluth, adjacent technical colleges and community colleges may merge into single institutions that offer a range of both occupational and academic programs. Other mergers and collaborations are also being discussed at schools around the state.

For its final year of operations as a separate statewide system, the community college board adopted a budget of $170.7 million for the year beginning July 1, 1994. The budget covers all 21 campuses and includes a 3.25 per cent average wage increase for employees in the second year of their contract. Most received no increase the first year.

Governor approves disaster declaration

Minnesota Governor Arne Carlson has signed Pennington county's disaster declaration and passed it on to the United States Secretary of Agriculture.

According to a copy of a letter sent to Mike Espy, United States Secretary of Agriculture, Governor Carlson requested that Pennington county be declared an agriculture disaster area. The request was sent to Governor Carlson last week by local officials.

The letter states, "The county of Pennington has sustained heavy crop losses as a result of several severe storm systems which began on June 13, and continue. These storms consisted of hail, excessive wind and heavy rain. Many fields still have standing water, and where water has drained away only dead crops remain. Excessive moisture is creating disease problems. An estimated 624 to 693 farmers have suffered crops losses of 30 per cent or greater. Estimates of crop loss for select crops is provided as follows:

Crop	Acres	Loss
Corn	2,625	60%
Soybeans	382	50%
Sunflowers	25,337	45%
Alfalfa	16,000	45%
Wheat	99,024	45%

"The Pennington county U.S.D.A. Emergency board has assessed the damage and found it to be significant enough to request the assistance of the United States department of Agriculture. Specifically, the low-interest emergency loan (EM) program administered by the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is needed. I respectfully request that you declare Pennington county an Agriculture Disaster Area, so that farmers can receive the assistance they so desperately need."

Sell drug stores to Thrifty White

of Thrifty White—which has 50 stores in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Montana—to manage much of those record keeping and reporting requirements, the pharmacists feel they will be better able to do the work that they studied to do.

Clifford G. Wallace, president of Thrifty White Stores, is a registered pharmacist and said at Wednesday's meeting that the company's primary focus is its pharmacy business along with associated drug store operations. He said the company's success results from doing what it knows how to do best, set forth as follows in its mission statement:

"Thrifty White will professionally operate progressive, well stocked, high volume, mass merchandised drug stores and pharmacies.

"The company will provide quality products at competitive prices and trustworthy, friendly, helpful, knowledgeable service from convenient, well maintained and inviting environments."

Corner Drug has a long service record in the community, with predecessor stores including Parkin's Corner Drug and J & B Drug, which were merged in 1980 as Thomas Drug. The name reverted to Corner Drug in 1985. Lee Erickson has been associated with the business since 1975.

Bruce Pharmacy was established by Bruce Prichard in 1970 and purchased by Jack LaSalle in 1972. Mike and Bill LaSalle, sons of the late Jack LaSalle, have operated the business for a number of years.

Thrifty White Stores is comprised of two companies—White Drug Enterprises, founded in 1884 in Jamestown, ND, by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. White, and Thrifty Drug Stores, founded in 1957 by Doug Stark, Jack Lindoo and Edward Olson. Stark is currently chairman of the board for Thrifty White Stores, which acquired the 38 White Drug stores in 1985. Mrs. H. E. White was the first female pharmacist in what was then the Dakota Territory.

Company president Wallace said that his company emphasizes the importance of community involvement and personalized service as aspects of all employees' jobs. Store employees are encouraged to be involved in the community and help others where possible. Last year over 18,000 meals were served by employees through such programs as Meals on Wheels and senior center or senior apartment meal programs. More than 1,500 students and teachers were presented with information on poison prevention by pharmacists working for the company. Approximately half of the company's pharmacists are women.

Thrifty White Stores is an employee-owned company with only qualifying full-time and part-time employees permitted to own shares. Whenever profits permit, a contribution of company stock is made to all eligible employees. At the present time, 67 per cent of all employees own some stock in the company.

Owners of Corner Drug, Bruce Pharmacy and Thrifty White Stores all said that there will be no changes nor interruptions in prescription service which will continue under the present system at both stores for the next three months. It is expected that transfer of records at that time can also be made with no interruption in service.

In addition to the remodeling and consolidation of store operations, including continuation of the one-hour photo service presently offered by Bruce Pharmacy, services which the public may expect to see include a delivery vehicle, emergency service and possibly expanded hours.

Among its 50 stores, Thrifty White Drug has operations in Crookston, Bemidji and two in Grand Forks, ND. Its territory extends from Virginia, MN on the northeast to Winona on the southeast, to Yankton, SD on the southwest to Glendive and Sidney, MT on the far west.

Employees of Corner Drug and Bruce Pharmacy gathered for this photo following a meeting at which the sale of those stores to Thrifty White Stores was reviewed. Thrifty White Stores said all present employees will be offered employment with the new owner.

Hospitals get grants

Kittson Memorial Hospital and Home and the Warren Community Hospital were among six rural Minnesota entities to receive grants totaling $750,000 from the Minnesota Department of Health, according to MDH Commissioner Mary Jo O'Brien.

The funds come from a program established by the 1993 session of the Minnesota Legislature called the Community Health Center (CHC) program.

Grants were made to the six rural communities for the establishment of new community-owned and operated health centers, O'Brien said. Other communities receiving grants were the Leech Lake Tribal Council, McGregor Area Clinic, City of Bricelyn and Lakefield Health Care Board.

"These grants, which are being awarded for the first time by the state, will enable communities to work with their current health care providers to improve the availability of services and to stimulate better utilization of existing resources," Commissioner O'Brien said.

"These grants are an integral part of health care reform in Minnesota because they will help bring to fruition our goal of improving access to health care services throughout the state."

The legislature created the CHC program to enable the creation of new community-owned and operated health centers in underserved areas where primary care services are not currently available. It will be administered by the Department of Health's Office of Rural Health.

Kittson Memorial Hospital and Home, which operates a 20-bed acute hospital and 95-bed nursing home, received a grant of $75,000 from the CHC program, according to Rick Failing, administrator of the hospital, home and medical clinic.

Failing said that a request had been made for a $127,500 grant to develop and operate a mobile primary care clinic to provide services to the communities of Stephen and Lancaster. With the grant received falling more than $50,000 short of the amount requested, the hospital opted to establish fixed sites instead.

A building in Stephen has been remodeled as a clinic facility and is being served by the two doctors from Hallock on a rotating basis each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 8:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. The first patients were seen at the Stephen site last week.

With continued success of the Stephen venture, the Kittson facility is making plans to open a fixed site clinic on a similar basis late this fall in Lancaster.

At Warren a grant of about $50,000 was received and used to update office equipment and cover operational expenses in the merger of the LeBlanc Clinic under the auspices of the hospital.

Phil Thompson, chairman of the Warren Hospital board, said the merger was accomplished about two months ago. The LeBlanc Clinic was renamed the Warren Hospital Clinic and continues to be located off site due to space limitations in the hospital. Dr. Frank LeBlanc, a general practitioner, is the only physician in that clinic at the present time.

The hospital also operates the Warren Clinic located in the hospital and served by Dr. Lal since 1989, Thompson said. When the Warren Hospital completes its current remodeling project, it will have 35 acute care beds. It also offers home health care service.

Scout camp used as fishing camp

Northern Lights Council of the Boy Scouts of America is making Camp Wilderness north of Park Rapids available as a fishing instruction camp for scouts and others. Everything from rod and reel to boats and instructors are provided.

The program is set up in four levels for youngsters from nine to 18 years of age. Knowledgeable instructors teach the basics of fishing, lure presentation, fish location, lake structure, use of electronic depth finders and safe boating practices.

The campers' classroom is a large fishing pier, a pontoon boat and numerous fishing boats with motors. An advanced program includes fishing area lakes with experienced instructors in well equipped fishing boats. Camp fees range from $57 for a half week to $115 for a full week.

The camp's fishing program is open to scouts and non scouts alike. The summer camping season for scouts is from the second week in June through the third week in August. A program for non-scouts is offered on July 31-August 3.

A family fishing weekend, open to the general public, is scheduled for August 19-21 and includes camping facilities, meals and a weekend of program for $15 per person. For further information contact the Northern Lights Council, 301 Seventh Street South, Fargo, ND 58103, phone (701) 293-5011.

Whole Wheat Bible Study

What people need to know

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

People need to know how to repent. They need to be told more than to turn around and go the other way. They need to be told how to go the other way. They need to be told that practicing righteousness is the Way of the Lord (Matt. 21:32; Acts 18:25-26). Some 2,000 years ago, the disobedient spoke evil of this Way and this caused no small disturbance (Acts 19:9, 23). It will be the same today.

This Way is simply overcoming evil by doing good for the Father in heaven, as Jesus did (Rom. 12:21; Psalm 37:27). Jesus did all His good works in the Father's name (John 10:25). Now, we are to do good works in the Lord Jesus Christ's name, giving thanks through Him to God the Father (Col. 3:17). Jesus always did things that were pleasing to the Father (John 8:29). We, too, are to learn what is pleasing to the Lord by living to the Spirit and by doing all we do in love (Eph. 5:10; Gal. 5:25; 1 Cor. 16:14). We are to do good works, like Dorcas, who was continually doing deeds of kindness and charity (Rom. 2:6-8; Acts 9:36-41). She died in the Lord and was brought back to life to show us that those who do good works will be partakers in the resurrection of the righteous (John 5:29).

Doing good works is how you repent and return to God so that your sins are wiped away (Acts 3:19). Job knew his sins were not being held against him because he lived to be a servant of others for God (Job 14:16-17; 29:12-18; Matt. 25:33-40). He knew God considered him blameless and upright because he was turning away from evil by doing good for God (Job 1:1, 8; 2:3; Rom. 12:21).

Have you started to do good for God daily in your life? If so, can you say with Paul, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith; in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also all who have longed for His appearing" (2 Tim. 4:7-8)? Have you overcome the pulls of the flesh as our perfect example, Jesus Christ, did (John 16:33)? Do you have Jesus Christ formed in you (Gal. 4:19)? Have you been tested and perfected by God (2 Cor. 13:9, 11; 1 Peter 5:10)? Are you a new creation yet (Gal. 6:15)? Have you overcome by keeping Jesus Christ's works in your life daily (Rev. 2:26)?

Now you know how to live this Way, which Jesus Christ said is easy and pleasant (Matt. 11:30). It doesn't take intelligence, just daily obedience to your loving Father in heaven (Acts 6:7; 1 Cor. 1:26-28; 2:9). All you need to do is make all your words and deeds pleasing to Him (Heb. 13:16; Col. 3:17). Learn to be selfless, like Jesus Christ, by being a servant to others (Matt. 23:11). Put others first (1 Cor. 10:24). Practice love and charity to everyone you meet (Luke 11:41). Be a friend to everyone (Matt. 5:46-47). In short, live only to do good for God, as Jesus Christ said you should (Matt. 5:48).

A full color limited edition print, image size 13-1/2" by 19" personally signed and numbered by the artist. Commissioned in 1970 by the Thief River Falls Golf Club, the original oil painting measuring 45" by 68" still hangs in the clubhouse as a constant reminder of the propriety and decorum of this dignified sporting event. Although there has been speculation as to similarities between the characters in the painting and certain characters whom occasion the links of this northern Minnesota course, the artist assures us any likeness is entirely coincidental, almost.

1890s corn binder is restored for display

Restoration of a McCormick corn binder built in the mid 1890s has been completed by young people working at the Pennington County Historical Society's Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village.

John Gunstad was project manager with Lydia Morken as assistant and Eddie Swantek as helper. It is one of several pieces of vintage farm equipment totally restored and on display in the village's farm equipment and automotive building.

Bonnie Swantek, director of the village and museum for the county historical society, said that other equipment is available to the society for restoration and display. She said that the society is looking for more old tractors to be displayed in the farm equipment building.

Asked to summarize the process involved in restoration, Gunstad and Morken prepared the following summary:

"The restoration process usually begins with a thorough washing. Most machinery comes covered in years of dirt and grease. Once the donated object is clean, we begin to sand and scrape. This time-consuming process lives up to its name. All surfaces are sanded by hand— without the smooth texture the primer and paint would appear blotchy and/or run.

"The majority of priming is done using a spray gun, although some require brushing by hand. The messiest step is also the most readily visible. Painting is done with a spray gun, but all touch-up is done using small brushes.

"The time required for each step varies depending on the size of the object being worked on, weather conditions (high humidity is terrible for painting) and the number of visitors exploring the Engelstad building.

"We try to maintain an upbeat atmosphere during each one of these steps. Conversation is jump-started through odd or unusual questions. The topics range from universal endpoint (What is at the edge of the universe?) to industry (How is tape made?) to human nature (Why aren't there playgrounds for adults?).

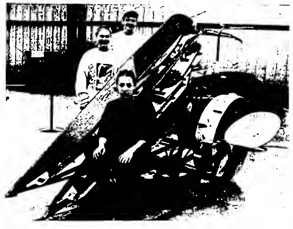
"Overall, restoration is challenging, messy....and a great summer job."

Lydia also researched the background of corn binders and found a considerable amount of information in a book entitled "American Farm Tools." It indicated that A. S. Peck of Geneva, IL, in 1892 was the first inventor to patent a satisfactory corn binder. Of all cereal grains, corn required more hand labor for harvesting than any other crop. Stalks were heavy and cumbersome to handle.

While Peck's machine did not work well enough to warrant widespread use, it contained the essential principles used on all the corn binders produced thereafter.

"Most corn binders had row dividers attached to the frame," Morken wrote. "Two or three endless chains caught the stalks and carried them to a serrated cutting knife which was given a reciprocating motion by a pitman attached to a weighted flywheel. The flywheel gave the cutter enough force to slice through the toughest corn stalks.

"A conveyor carried the stalks back to the binding deck where the bundle was packed and tied with twine by a knotting device similar to that used on grain binders. Discharge arms then pushed the bundle onto the ground.



"Corn binders weighed an average of 1,500 pounds and worked best in fields where the corn had been planted in check-rows. The binder had a draft of 420 pounds and three horses were required to pull it.

"The corn binder harvested from seven to nine acres per day, and two or three shockers were needed to follow behind the binder.

"Although the cost of cutting an acre of corn with a binder was about the same as cutting it by hand and was slightly more expensive than by cutting it with a sled (largely due to the cost of the binder and the expenditure for the twine), farmers still preferred the binder because it made the corn harvest easier.

"The binder, however, knocked some ears off the stalks which had to be picked up by hand after the corn was shocked. By the late 1890s the implement companies were producing thousands of corn binders each year."

People interested in seeing this latest restoration and other equipment in the building are invited to visit the village on Oakland Park Road.

Another farm machinery restoration project has been completed by young people working at the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village. John Gunsted and Lydia Morken were project manager and assistant on the project and Eddie Swantek (seated) was a helper in restoring this McCormick corn binder now located in the farm equipment building at the village. Restoration involved a thorough cleaning, sanding and scraping, some wooden part replacement, and priming and painting to what research showed to be the original colors.

Soon, Long-distance Calls Within Your Minnesota Area Code Will Become 1+ Area Code + Number Calls

NEW DIALING PLAN IN MINNESOTA - EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 17, 1994

Beginning September 17, 1994 telephone customers in Minnesota will have to change the way they make long distance calls within the state. At that time it will be necessary for customers to include the 218 area code on every long distance call they make even if dialing from and to the same area code.

Customers currently dial 1 + the telephone number to make these calls within their home area code. With the new plan, customers will dial 1 + area code + the telephone number to make any long distance calls.

The new plan will not increase telephone rates and will be easy to use since the calls will be dialed the same way as out-of-state long distance calls. All other dialing remains the same.

"Minnesota customers steadily demand more telephone numbers each year. By implementing the new plan, more numbers will be available for customers," said Dolores M. Wikstrom.

In addition to growth, the expansion of the cellular telephone industry, an increase in requests for additional lines by residential and business customers, customized systems for large business customers and an increase in the use of pagers have placed a higher demand on telephone numbers.

Other states with major cities, such as Washington, D. C., Maryland, Virginia and Georgia, have adopted similar plans.

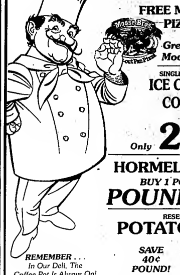
"Wikstrom Telephone Company will have an optional dialing period beginning May 14, 1994 so that customers may place calls dialing the old or new way. The optional dialing period will give customers time to get used to the new way of dialing," said Dolores M. Wikstrom.

Wikstrom Telephone Company recommends that large businesses and government customers with complex dialing systems reprogram their systems in anticipation of the change. Systems which are currently reprogrammed to dial 1 + the telephone number will need to be reprogrammed to incorporate the area code into the automatic dialing system for in-state toll calls.

Additionally, small businesses and residence customers with custom calling features, such as speed calling and call forwarding, will need to reprogram these features to include the 218 area code for any long distance call made within the state. Small businesses will also need to reprogram fax machines, alarm dialers, and personal computers that contain preprogrammed telephone numbers.

Alternatives to the new dialing plan were considered. Also, customer research showed that Minnesota customers wanted to know when a toll call was being made.

Other alternatives, such as being able to dial a telephone number without a 1 or an area code, would not indicate to customers that a charge applied to the call.



Customers dialing the old way after September 17, 1994 on calls that require the 218 area code will receive a recorded reminder.

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Should You Be Entitled To Entitlements?

Interestingly enough, among the materials to come across our desk in recent days were articles on the same topic by two people with opposing viewpoints. The topic was entitlements and the writers were Dr. Richard Lesher, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and Martha McSteen, president of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare.

As might be expected, the full truth is probably somewhere between the two views, but both writers make compelling arguments for their positions.

Dr. Lesher laments the "absence" of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski from chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee because he was "one of the few members of Congress willing to acknowledge the fiscal crisis rapidly descending upon our government.

"The root of our peril," Dr. Lesher writes, "is the runaway entitlement spending machine—Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, federal retirement programs—that is consuming an ever larger share of the federal budget, leaving less and less available for other uses, such as national defense, drug enforcement, infrastructure and health care."

McSteen states there are two types of entitlement programs. "Social entitlements are one type," she writes. "They are social because the government and citizens feel a moral obligation to ensure these services are available to those in need. These entitlements include programs such as food stamps and Medicaid. Persons who meet the eligibility requirements set by law are 'entitled' to them. The money to pay for these programs comes from the general budget, or income tax revenues.

"The second type of entitlement is the 'earned' or 'true' entitlement. Social Security and Medicare Part A fall into this category. Money for these benefit programs does not come from the general budget, but rather from special, dedicated trust funds. Each worker and each employer contributes to these trust funds through payroll taxes. These trust funds are earmarked for one purpose—and one purpose only—to provide benefits to the nation's current and future retired and disabled workers, their dependents and survivors. Other 'earned' entitlements include civil service pensions and unemployment compensation."

Dr. Lesher counters that Rostenkowski is one of the few leaders of the Washington political establishment who will admit publicly that claims of a vast Social Security Trust Fund set aside to accommodate the needs of future retirees are nonsense. "Uncle Sam is spending the excess income generated by Social Security today as quickly as it comes in," Dr. Lesher writes. "There is nothing in the bank except a stack of IOUs reflecting our obligations to ourselves."

McSteen says that Social Security trust funds are running a surplus of close to $50 billion a year and that the larger the surplus, the easier it is for Congress to hide the true size of the deficit. If self-financed trust funds are taken out of the budget and deficit calculations, she writes, defense spending makes up 26 per cent of the deficit and interest payments on the debt account for another 26 per cent.

Dr. Lesher says that assuming the government IOUs to the Social Security Trust Fund are honored, it is still projected to go bankrupt by 2029, seven years earlier than the experts were predicting as recently as last year. Prospects for Medicare are even bleaker. He points out that "for young people entering the work force today Social Security is a poor financial investment. A basic investment in a six per cent annuity would produce a retirement income many times that provided by Social Security."

McSteen states that the founders of Social Security envisioned and designed a universal social insurance program, one to which all workers would contribute and from which all workers would receive benefits. Removing this universal aspect (through a means test which would reduce benefits in accordance with other income) would turn Social Security into a welfare program for thousands of Americans.

"Social Security is a compulsory program—an earned right guaranteed by law," she writes. "What would happen, if after a working lifetime of paying Social Security taxes, you suddenly were told your benefits were reduced, or even eliminated, because you had managed to invest and have additional income after retirement? Social Security was designed to encourage workers to save to supplement their retirement earnings—not to penalize them for doing as much."

We agree. Had government invested Social Security tax income as it should have instead of carrying paper balances and spending the money, there would be no crisis in the program and greater reality in the federal budget and deficit. The temptation to raid earned entitlements would be removed and the retirement future of millions of Americans would not be in jeopardy.

"Solutions are available, but none of them is politically palatable," Dr. Lesher writes. ".....Also lacking is any sensible explanation of how Congress can hope to pay for a health care reform plan when the federal treasury is bare and entitlements are exploding. A fiscal reality check is needed in Congress, and soon."

"Contact your lawmakers and let them know how important protecting Social Security and Medicare is to you," McSteen summarizes. "We must insist that the federal government keep its promise to today's and tomorrow's retirees, workers, survivors and disabled."

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher
Marvin Lundin, editor
David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Should You Be Entitled To Entitlements?

Interestingly enough, among the materials to come across our desk in recent days were articles on the same topic by two people with opposing viewpoints. The topic was entitlements and the writers were Dr. Richard Lesher, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and Martha McSteen, president of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare.

As might be expected, the full truth is probably somewhere between the two views, but both writers make compelling arguments for their positions.

Dr. Lesher laments the "absence" of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski from chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee because he was "one of the few members of Congress willing to acknowledge the fiscal crisis rapidly descending upon our government.

"The root of our peril," Dr. Lesher writes, "is the runaway entitlement spending machine—Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, federal retirement programs—that is consuming an ever larger share of the federal budget, leaving less and less available for other uses, such as national defense, drug enforcement, infrastructure and health care."

McSteen states there are two types of entitlement programs. "Social entitlements are one type," she writes. "They are social because the government and citizens feel a moral obligation to ensure these services are available to those in need. These entitlements include programs such as food stamps and Medicaid. Persons who meet the eligibility requirements set by law are 'entitled' to them. The money to pay for these programs comes from the general budget, or income tax revenues.

"The second type of entitlement is the 'earned' or 'true' entitlement. Social Security and Medicare Part A fall into this category. Money for these benefit programs does not come from the general budget, but rather from special, dedicated trust funds. Each worker and each employer contributes to these trust funds through payroll taxes. These trust funds are earmarked for one purpose—and one purpose only—to provide benefits to the nation's current and future retired and disabled workers, their dependents and survivors. Other 'earned' entitlements include civil service pensions and unemployment compensation."

Dr. Lesher counters that Rostenkowski is one of the few leaders of the Washington political establishment who will admit publicly that claims of a vast Social Security Trust Fund set aside to accommodate the needs of future retirees are nonsense. "Uncle Sam is spending the excess income generated by Social Security today as quickly as it comes in," Dr. Lesher writes. "There is nothing in the bank except a stack of IOUs reflecting our obligations to ourselves."

McSteen says that Social Security trust funds are running a surplus of close to $50 billion a year and that the larger the surplus, the easier it is for Congress to hide the true size of the deficit. If self-financed trust funds are taken out of the budget and deficit calculations, she writes, defense spending makes up 26 per cent of the deficit and interest payments on the debt account for another 26 per cent.

Dr Lesher says that assuming the government IOUs to the Social Security Trust Fund are honored, it is still projected to go bankrupt by 2029, seven years earlier than the experts were predicting as recently as last year. Prospects for Medicare are even bleaker. He points out that "for young people entering the work force today Social Security is a poor financial investment. A basic investment in a six per cent annuity would produce a retirement income many times that provided by Social Security."

McSteen states that the founders of Social Security envisioned and designed a universal social insurance program, one to which all workers would contribute and from which all workers would receive benefits. Removing this universal aspect (through a means test which would reduce benefits in accordance with other income) would turn Social Security into a welfare program for thousands of Americans.

"Social Security is a compulsory program—an earned right guaranteed by law," she writes. "What would happen, if after a working lifetime of paying Social Security taxes, you suddenly were told your benefits were reduced, or even eliminated, because you had managed to invest and have additional income after retirement? Social Security was designed to encourage workers to save to supplement their retirement earnings—not to penalize them for doing as much."

We agree. Had government invested Social Security tax income as it should have instead of carrying paper balances and spending the money, there would be no crisis in the program and greater reality in the federal budget and deficit. The temptation to raid earned entitlements would be removed and the retirement future of millions of Americans would not be in jeopardy.

"Solutions are available, but none of them is politically palatable," Dr. Lesher writes. ".....Also lacking is any sensible explanation of how Congress can hope to pay for a health care reform plan when the federal treasury is bare and entitlements are exploding. A fiscal reality check is needed in Congress, and soon."

"Contact your lawmakers and let them know how important protecting Social Security and Medicare is to you," McSteen summarizes. "We must insist that the federal government keep its promise to today's and tomorrow's retirees, workers, survivors and disabled."

Roseau Spanish students take trip to Costa Rica

Warroad — Five Warroad high school students took a trip to Costa Rica to learn the Spanish language in a Hispanic country. Every year Spanish teacher Judy Turenne takes students to a Spanish-speaking country so her students can learn more about the culture, as well as the language. One of the highlights of the trip was a two hour walk through the rain forest to visit the home of a family who lives off the land in the rain forest. While trekking through the forest, the students saw howler monkeys, toucans, poison arrow frogs, and leaf cutter ants, but no snakes. The students also ate one of the country's main dishes almost every day so they would learn more about the food of the country they were visiting. Another highlight of the trip was a visit to a lush tropical island on the Pacific coast. Students participating in the trip were Erinn Comstock, Julie Soltis, Colleen Lockhart, Nicole Kennedy and Ann Higdem.

Klingons invade Voyageur's View in Red Lake Falls

by Donna Myhrer

If I begin this story by stating that I spent the last week in the company of a lot of space aliens, please don't imagine that this is your typical tabloid piece: "I Was Abducted By a UFO!" You know better than that. The Northern Watch doesn't run that sort of thing. Until today.

Actually my son, Patrikk, and I spent a delightful week at a campout at Voyageurs' View in Red Lake Falls for a group of "space aliens" whose characters are based on the Klingons of "Star Trek" fame. The science fiction warrior race was developed about 25 years ago by Paramount Studios to be the archenemies of Captain Kirk, Mr. Spock and the crew of the Starship Enterprise. Their hostility to humans decreased over the years however and in more recent episodes, they have united against a common enemy, the Romulans, in a somewhat uneasy truce, reflected in "Star Trek: the Next Generation" and the last couple of "Star Trek" movies. In the course of these changes a lot of cultural information and even an "alien language" were developed by Paramount.

While all of this was going on, I squeaked by in high school Latin and German and Patrikk, after having a very difficult time with a term of German in school, was convinced that he wasn't capable of learning a foreign language.

Then last week we attended the camp run by Olen Proechel of Red Lake Falls with a goal of learning an artifically developed language with all of the most difficult aspects of any other language on Earth. The word order is almost completely backwards from English, there are sounds we don't usually hear or use, there are no adjectives as such and sentences are formed by stringing a lot of prefixes and suffixes to about 2,000 nouns and verbs.

About 30 to 40 people gathered during the weekend to participate in a Klingon festival with some activities in Red Lake Falls and some in Crookston. Patrikk did demonstrations of the use of a wooden replica of a "batleth," a Klingon weapon shown on "Star Trek" and I even tried my hand at a form of Klingon opera. Accompanied by spooky-sounding music and wearing a Klingon bony forehead and wig, I shouted and howled and enjoyed myself very much.

At a banquet sponsored by the Elm Street Inn of Crookston, Patrikk even read a piece of Klingon love poetry until a group of the contestants from the Ms. Klingon pageant lost control of themselves, pelted him with (sponge) bricks to show their approval and dragged him offstage. In their enthusiasm, they also dragged off a photographer from Details magazine, who was covering the event. Strangely, neither of the two young men appeared to be fighting very hard against the experience of being attacked by a crowd of screaming young women.

On Sunday morning Patrikk accompanied a crowd of Klingons

At the closing ceremony for the Klingon language camp at Voyageur's View in Red lake Falls last week, two-year-old Conner Van Emmerik, son of Patti Grendstrand of Viking and Eric Van Emmerik of Milbank, SD, poses with a batleth, a traditional Klingon weapon. He is also wearing the forehead and wig of a Klingon warrior.

King Royal Circus will present two performances in Thief River Falls Sunday, August 7, under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls Women of Today chapter. The circus tent will be erected on the parking lot of the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center and shows will be held at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.

The circus elephants will help raise the tent and the public is invited to come to the fairgrounds and watch the tent go up around 10 to 10:30 a.m.

The circus has four baby elephants which will be on display with their six-ton adult "nannies" from 9 a.m. throughout the day August 7.

Soo Line Railroad carried many dreams

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

The Winnipeg Flyer, or "Winnipeger," provided first class, overnight service between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Glenwood, Alexandria, Detroit Lakes, Mahnomen, Erskine, Thief River Falls and Winnipeg.

In 1914, the Manitoba Express, later to be called the Winnipeger, was "a modern train affording excellent service" from "courteous, careful employees" in "all steel, vacuum cleaned, electric lighted coaches."

In 1926, the train, still called the Manitoba Express, was touted as leaving St. Paul at 5 p.m. and arriving in Winnipeg at 8:15 a.m. the following morning.

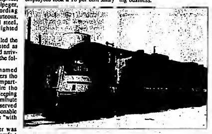
By 1928, the now named Winnipeger offered passengers the comforts of home with compartments "for those who desire the utmost in Travel Luxury," sleeping cars that provided "up-to-the minute comfort," dining cars that served "the best in the market at reasonable prices," and observation cars "with the atmosphere of your club."

By 1946, the Winnipeger was advertising air conditioned comfort in coaches and sleeping cars, leaving Detroit Lakes at 2:21 a.m. and arriving in St. Paul at 8 a.m., just in time to catch an early morning "streamliner" to Chicago.

Passenger service began to decline in the mid-1920's with the popularity of automobiles. The Soo Line purchased an elegant, palatial business car which was used by dignitaries traveling the country. The elegantly-equipped car was used by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor many times, by Presidents Coolidge and Harding, and by King Gustave of Sweden.

During the Depression years the Soo Line hauled grain to drought-stricken northern farmers. Soo Line employees took a 10 per cent salary reduction in September of 1931 and several reductions in the work force affected many Soo employees during the Depression years.

Since no major railroad displayed a dependence on the wheat crop like the Soo, the Depression years hit the railroad hard. In 1936, only about 10 per cent of today's usual crop was harvested in the wheat belt because of drought, and trucks were preempting the cattle and hog-hauling business.



The only time in its history, the Soo Line filed for bankruptcy reorganization in 1938. The reorganization was completed in 1944.

During World War II, the Soo Line was used for transportation of soldiers as well as commodities and some defense materials. Defense contracts were limited because of Equalization Agreements in which the Soo Line was required to meet the lowest net Land Grant Railroad rate.

The Soo Line granted 1,543 employees leave for military duty during the war and 524 of them returned to work for the Soo after the war was over. The Soo was also involved in a strong war effort publicity campaign during the years of World War II.

Mail contracts, railway express, and grain and freight hauling came to provide revenue for the Soo Line after the war, along with a contract

From beginning to end, Soo Line trains were familiar sights in northwestern Minnesota. The switch to diesel engines occurred in 1955 and the Soo Line donated over a dozen of its old steam engines to various communities along its line, including Thief River Falls. The Soo Line caboose was a welcome sight at railroad crossings, but has become increasingly infrequent since the introduction of end-of-train detection devices that make cabooses unnecessary. In the 1970's, side windows of cabooses were eliminated or covered with steel because vandals were injuring and killing trainmen by shooting at cabooses.

Disaster information meeting scheduled for August 3 in TRF

A disaster information meeting for Pennington county will take place Wednesday, August 3, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Rooms 101 and 103 of Northwest Technical College in Thief River Falls.

According to Arlene Tucker, rural life outreach coordinator with office at the Northwest Mental Health Center in Crookston, the Pennington county disaster team has actively been collecting information concerning damages caused by recent severe weather. Additional information is needed as the team continues to collect data for the county.

Several agencies will be represented and their directors will be on hand to distribute information on what is available to assist in disaster recovery. A question and answer session will also give those attending an opportunity to receive additional information and help.

Representatives of participating agencies which will be represented at the meeting include Phil Bergland, director, Pennington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; Howard Person, University of Minnesota Extension Service; Sheriff Gerald Moe, Pennington County Disaster Coordinator; Ken Murphy, chairman of the Pennington County Board of Commissioners; and Arlene Tucker and Willard Brunelle of the Rural Life Outreach staff.

"The recurring rains, hail, storms and slow recovery process can result in increased stress for families suffering with disaster-related losses," Tucker said. "A program titled 'How To Cope With Disaster' will be presented by Dr. Steve Levinson, clinical psychologist and director of the mental health center at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

"We encourage everyone affected by the disaster to attend. Those who have questions are encouraged to call me at 281-3940."

Construction starts on Hwy. 1

Construction is scheduled to begin August 1 at the junction of Highway 1 and the Wells road, 28 miles east of Thief River Falls, according to Roger Hille, area resident engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

In a cooperative agreement with the transportation department, the Red Lake Watershed District will be installing an 88-inch wide arch culvert through Highway 1 as part of the Good Lake flood control project. Construction will consist of cutting through Highway 1, placing 90 feet of the arch culvert and regrading and resurfacing the affected area.

Contractor for the project is Plummer Excavating of Plummer and the work is expected to be completed in two to three weeks.

Traffic will be detoured for approximately one week, beginning Monday, August 1. Eastbound traffic will be detoured via Pennington county 28 and Marshall County 54 to Highway 89 and thence returning to Highway 1. Westbound traffic on Highway 1 will be detoured in reverse of the route for eastbound traffic.

Hille reminds motorists to slow down in work zones for their own safety and the safety of construction workers. Double fines for speeding in a work zone have been in effect since July 1.

Oklee man dies in one vehicle accident Wed.

Ryan Robert Melby, 19, Oklee was killed in a one vehicle accident near Oklee Wednesday, July 27.

The Minnesota State Patrol reported receiving a report of an accident at 2:50 a.m. Wednesday and located one and one-half miles west of Oklee on Red Lake county highway 92. Upon arrival they found Melby dead at the scene. The accident report from the State Patrol states that Melby was driving a 1984 Oldsmobile Delta 88 east on Red Lake county highway 92 when he lost control of the vehicle. The vehicle hit a guardrail on the north side of the road, then a guardrail on the south side of the road, and then went into the ditch on the south side of the road where it rolled and came to rest on its top in a water-filled ditch. The vehicle was considered a total loss.

Warroad — Five Warroad high school students took a trip to Costa Rica to learn the Spanish language in a Hispanic country. Every year Spanish teacher Judy Turenne takes students to a Spanish-speaking country so her students can learn more about the culture, as well as the language. One of the highlights of the trip was a two hour walk through the rain forest to visit the home of a family who lives off the land in the rain forest. While trekking through the forest, the students saw howler monkeys, toucans, poison arrow frogs, and leaf cutter ants, but no snakes. The students also ate one of the country's main dishes almost every day so they would learn more about the food of the country they were visiting. Another highlight of the trip was a visit to a lush tropical island on the Pacific coast. Students participating in the trip were Erinn Comstock, Julie Soltis, Colleen Lockhart, Nicole Kennedy and Ann Higdem.

Klingons invade Voyageur's View in Red Lake Falls

by Donna Mybrer

If I begin this story by stating that I spent the last week in the company of a lot of space aliens, please don't imagine that this is your typical tabloid piece: "I Was Abducted By a UFO!" You know better than that. The Northern Watch doesn't run that sort of thing. Until today.

Actually my son, Patrikk, and I spent a delightful week at a campout at Voyageurs' View in Red Lake Falls for a group of "space aliens" whose characters are based on the Klingons of "Star Trek" fame. The science fiction warrior race was developed about 25 years ago by Paramount Studios to be the archenemies of Captain Kirk, Mr. Spock and the crew of the Starship Enterprise. Their hostility to humans decreased over the years however and in more recent episodes, they have united against a common enemy, the Romulans, in a somewhat uneasy truce, reflected in "Star Trek: the Nest Generation" and the last couple of "Star Trek" movies. In the course of these changes a lot of cultural information and even an "alien language" were developed by Paramount.

While all of this was going on, I squeaked by in high school Latin and German and Patrikk, after having a very difficult time with a term of German in school, was convinced that he wasn't capable of learning a foreign language.

Then last week we attended the camp run by Glen Proechel of Red Lake Falls with a goal of learning an artifically developed language with all of the most difficult aspects of any other language on Earth. The word order is almost completely backwards from English, there are sounds we don't usually hear or use, there are no adjectives as such and sentences are formed by stringing a lot of prefixes and suffixes to about 2,000 nouns and verbs.

About 30 to 40 people gathered during the weekend to participate in a Klingon festival with some activities in Red Lake Falls and some in Crookston. Patrikk did demonstrations of the use of a wooden replica of a "batleth," a Klingon weapon shown on "Star Trek" and I even tried my hand at a form of Klingon opera. Accompanied by spooky-sounding music and wearing a Klingon bony forehead and wig, I shouted and howled and enjoyed myself very much.

At a banquet sponsored by the Elm Street Inn of Crookston, Patrikk even read a piece of Klingon love poetry until a group of the contestants from the Ms. Klingon pageant lost control of themselves, pelted him with (sponge) bricks to show their approval and dragged him offstage. In their enthusiasm, they also dragged off a photographer from Details magazine, who was covering the event. Strangely, neither of the two young men appeared to be fighting very hard against the experience of being attacked by a crowd of screaming young women.

On Sunday morning Patrikk accompanied a crowd of Klingons

At the closing ceremony for the Klingon language camp at Voyageur's View in Red lake Falls last week, two-year-old Conner Van Emmerik, son of Patti Grandstrand of Viking and Eric Van Emmerik of Milbank, SD, poses with a batlath, a traditional Klingon weapon. He is also wearing the forehead and wig of a Klingon warrior.

King Royal Circus will present two performances in Thief River Falls Sunday, August 7, under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls Women of Today chapter. The circus tent will be erected on the parking lot of the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center and shows will be held at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.

The circus elephants will help raise the tent and the public is invited to come to the fairgrounds and watch the tent go up around 10 to 10:30 a.m.

In promotion of the circus, "Baby Dumbo," purported to be America's youngest and smallest touring elephant, will be in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, August 2. It will be on display at Jubilee Foods from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and at Hugo's from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

The circus has four baby elephants which will be on display with their six-ton adult "nannies" from 9 a.m. throughout the day August 7.

Admission to the circus August 7 will be $6 for adults and $4 for children ages two to 11. Reduced price tickets are now available from Jubilee Foods, Hugo's, Erl's Market and Kezar Music through August 6.

The circus features Capt. Whitey Hungerford and his mixed arena of Bengal tigers and African lions. It also has more than 100 animals and birds from many places around the world. There will be a kiddie petting zoo and exhibition of "Ying" and "Yang," Tibetan miniature horses only 27 1/2 inches tall, and "Winkum" and "Blinkum," twin pygmy midget zebras from Africa.

The circus show will include acrobats, jugglers, clowns, aerialists and high wire artists. Aerial acts

Soo Line Railroad carried many dreams

by Sherry LaCourslere
Northern Watch Reporter

The Winnipeg Flyer, or "Winnipeger," provided first class, overnight service between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Glenwood, Alexandria, Detroit Lakes, Mahnomen, Erskine, Thief River Falls and Winnipeg.

In 1914, the Manitoba Express, later to be called the Winnipeger, was "a modern train affording excellent service" from "courteous, careful employees" in "all steel, vacuum cleaned, electric lighted coaches."

In 1926, the train, still called the Manitoba Express, was touted as leaving St. Paul at 5 p.m. and arriving in Winnipeg at 8:15 a.m. the following morning.

By 1928, the now named Winnipeger offered passengers the comforts of home with compartments "for those who desire the utmost in Travel Luxury," sleeping cars that provided "up-to-the minute comfort," dining cars that served "the best in the market at reasonable prices," and observation cars "with the atmosphere of your club."

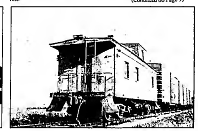
By 1946, the Winnipeger was advertising air conditioned comfort in coaches and sleeping cars, leaving Detroit Lakes at 2:21 a.m. and arriving in St. Paul at 8 a.m., just in time to catch an early morning "streamliner" to Chicago.

Passenger service began to decline in the mid-1920's with the popularity of automobiles. The Soo Line purchased an elegant, palatial business car which was used by dignitaries traveling the country. The elegantly-equipped car was used by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor many times, by Presidents Coolidge and Harding, and by King Gustave of Sweden.

During the Depression years the Soo Line hauled grain to drought-stricken northern farmers. Soo Line employees took a 10 per cent salary reduction in September of 1931 and several reductions in the work force affected many Soo employees during the Depression years.

Since no major railroad displayed a dependence on the wheat crop like the Soo, the Depression years hit the railroad hard. In 1936, only about 10 per cent of today's usual crop was harvested in the wheat belt because of drought, and trucks were preempting the cattle and hog-hauling business.

The only time in its history, the Soo Line filed for bankruptcy reorganization in 1938. The reorganization was completed in 1944.



During World War II, the Soo Line was used for transportation of soldiers as well as commodities and some defense materials. Defense contracts were limited because of Equalization Agreements in which the Soo Line was required to meet the lowest net Land Grant Railroad rate.

The Soo Line granted 1,543 employees leave for military duty during the war and 524 of them returned to work for the Soo after the war was over. The Soo was also involved in a strong war effort publicity campaign during the years of World War II.

Mail contracts, railway express, and grain and freight hauling came to provide revenue for the Soo Line after the war, along with a contract

From beginning to end, Soo Line trains were familiar sights in northwestern Minnesota. The switch to diesel engines occurred in 1955 and the Soo Line donated over a dozen of its old steam engines to various communities along its line, including Thief River Falls. The Soo Line caboose was a welcome sight at railroad crossings, but has become increasingly infrequent since the introduction of end-of-train detection devices that make cabooses unnecessary. In the 1970's, side windows of cabooses were eliminated or covered with steel because vandals were injuring and killing trainmen by shooting at cabooses.

Disaster information meeting scheduled for August 3 in TRF

A disaster information meeting for Pennington county will take place Wednesday, August 3, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Rooms 101 and 103 of Northwest Technical College in Thief River Falls.

According to Arlene Tucker, rural life outreach coordinator with office at the Northwest Mental Health Center in Crookston, the Pennington county disaster team has actively been collecting information concerning damages caused by recent severe weather. Additional information is needed as the team continues to collect data for the county.

Several agencies will be represented and their directors will be on hand to distribute information on what is available to assist in disaster recovery. A question and answer session will also give those attending an opportunity to receive additional information and help.

Representatives of participating agencies which will be represented at the meeting include Phil Bergland, director, Pennington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; Howard Person, University of Minnesota Extension Service; Sheriff Gerald Moe, Pennington County Disaster Coordinator; Ken Murphy, chairman of the Pennington County Board of Commissioners; and Arlene Tucker and Willard Brunelle of the Rural Life Outreach staff.

"The recurring rains, hail, storms and slow recovery process can result in increased stress for families suffering with disaster-related losses," Tucker said. "A program titled 'How To Cope With Disaster' will be presented by Dr. Steve Levinson, clinical psychologist and director of the mental health center at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

"We encourage everyone affected by the disaster to attend. Those who have questions are encouraged to call me at 281-3940."

Construction starts on Hwy. 1

Construction is scheduled to begin August 1 at the junction of Highway 1 and the Wells road, 28 miles east of Thief River Falls, according to Roger Hille, area resident engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

In a cooperative agreement with the transportation department, the Red Lake Watershed District will be installing an 88-inch wide arch culvert through Highway 1 as part of the Good Lake flood control project. Construction will consist of cutting through Highway 1, placing 90 feet of the arch culvert and regrading and resurfacing the affected area.

Contractor for the project is Plummer Excavating of Plummer and the work is expected to be completed in two to three weeks.

Traffic will be detoured for approximately one week, beginning Monday, August 1. Eastbound traffic will be detoured via Pennington county 28 and Marshall County 54 to Highway 89 and thence returning to Highway 1. Westbound traffic on Highway 1 will be detoured in reverse of the route for eastbound traffic.

Hille reminds motorists to slow down in work zones for their own safety and the safety of construction workers. Double fines for speeding in a work zone have been in effect since July 1.

Oklee man dies in one vehicle accident Wed.

Ryan Rohen Melby, 19, Oklee was killed in a one vehicle accident near Oklee Wednesday, July 27.

The Minnesota State Patrol reported receiving a report of an accident at 2:50 a.m. Wednesday and located one and one-half miles west of Oklee on Red Lake county highway 92. Upon arrival they found Melby dead at the scene. The accident report from the State Patrol states that Melby was driving a 1984 Oldsmobile Delta 88 east on Red Lake county highway 92 when he lost control of the vehicle. The vehicle hit a guardrail on the north side of the road, then a guardrail on the south side of the road, and then went into the ditch on the south side of the road where it rolled and came to rest on its top in a water-filled ditch. The vehicle was considered a total loss.

Summer play at Pelan Park August 6-7

This summer's Pelan Park Play near Dreenbush is "Little Luncheonette of Terror", a musical-comedy loosely based on "Little Shop of Horrors."

Performances are scheduled for Saturday, August 6, and Sunday, August 7. There will be a barbeque turkey dinner preceding the plays, beginning at 4:30 p.m. The cost is $7 for adults and $4 for children 12 and under.

The play takes place in "Pete's Luncheonette, Home of the World Famous Chili Eggroll" in a small California town. Business is booming and life is running smoothly until a giant earthquake shakes the diner thrusting the alien "Mongo" to the stage. Despite his hideous appearance and unusual appetite for rocks and boulders, Mongo is very friendly and outgoing. However, he suddenly turns vicious and transforms all the area youths into teenage zombies. Now Pete has to save his girlfriend from the alien's grasp and the whole town from his powers before it is too late.

Directing the play is Christina Dieseke. Assistant directors and sound technicians are Mary Ann Johnson and Jeanne Novacek, both of Dreenbush. Novacek is also the musical director.

Pelan Park is located between Dreenbush and Karlstad on Minnesota Highway 11.

Here are some plain, down home recipes you might like to try.

CHOCOLATE CHIP OATMEAL COOKIES

2 cups white sugar (1 cup)
2 cups brown sugar (1 cup)
1 cup shortening (1/2 cup)
1 cup butter (1/2 cup)
4 eggs (2 eggs)
2 teaspoons almond extract (1 teaspoon)
3 cups flour (1 1/2 cups)
2 teaspoons soda (1 teaspoon)
1 teaspoon salt (1/2 teaspoon)
6 cups quick oatmeal (3 cups)
1 package chocolate chips (1/2 package or 6 ounces)

Cream sugars, shortening and butter. Add eggs and almond.

Add flour, soda, salt and oatmeal and mix well.

Add chips.

Roll in balls and flatten slightly or drop by teaspoonfuls. Bake at 350 degrees.

This is a great summer cake — the frosting is already melted into the cake and that's the way it is supposed to be:

GOLDEN OLDIE CAKE

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour or cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter

Beat eggs, sugar and vanilla on high for four minutes.

Combine dry ingredients and add to egg mixture, beating on low until just combined.

Heat milk and butter until butter is melted. Add to batter, beating well. (Batter will be thin.)

Pour into greased and floured 9 inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Cool slightly before frosting.

Frosting

3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup butter, melted
2 tablespoons cream
1 cup coconut

Mix all ingredients together. Spread over top of cake while warm and then broil about four inches from heat until lightly browned.

ZUCCHINI BARS

3/4 cup softened butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup white sugar
1 3/4 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3/4 cup raisins
3/4 cup coconut
2 cups shredded zucchini, peeled or unpeeled
3/4 cup dates, cut up

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 10x15 inch pan and set aside.

Cream butter and sugars together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla and beat well.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt into creamed mixture, blending well.

Stir in remaining ingredients. Spread in prepared pan and bake about 35 minutes.

4-H Market Livestock Auction Gets Bigger

Public support for the 4-H market livestock auction on Sunday afternoon of the Pennington County Fair has been growing each year and this year added $4,363.42 to premiums to the sale price of market cattle, hogs, sheep and chickens. It is a nice touch for the 4-H club members and shows support of the program by the community.

Many of the members enrolled in 4-H livestock projects work hard with their animals throughout the year and more than a few become at least a little emotionally attached to them. And since only blue ribbon animals are allowed in the sale—to encourage quality in the various areas of the livestock projects—it is frequently the young people with animals which have earned championships for them that bring them into the sale ring.

While the youngsters recognize that the purpose of raising the animals is for the meat market, an extra boost in the sales price can make them feel a little better about letting the animals go.

For instance, this year the market show brought an extra $2,881 for the seven exhibitors who had beef animals to sell, an average premium of $411.57 over the established market price. Some took home a little more than that, some a little less, but in each case the added money was appreciated and an incentive to do well and earn a blue ribbon on their project next year.

The six hog exhibitors split premium money of $698.96 for an average of $116.49, while the market value of their hogs was only $471.04. The auction more than doubled the value of the animals show.

Seven sheep brought a premium of $530.61, nearly doubling the market price of these animals. And eight chickens were purchased for $350—more than three times the market value of $98.30.

While the results were good and the club members certainly appreciate the support, there is always room for additional bidders. Next year's sale promises to be another good one and a great opportunity to get in on the action. Why not make a promise to yourself that next year you or your business will join in the fun?

Fair Board Service Means Extra Effort

For a lot of Pennington county citizens, the annual Pennington County Fair isn't the attractive diversion that it is for most of the general public. It is an all out effort that really never ends, but becomes most intensive shortly before, during and after the five-day event. These are the fair board members, the department superintendents and other volunteers who donate their time and talents to creating the most successful fair possible.

For a year like this one, that effort involves dealing with the elements as well as buildings and people. Being a county fair volunteer could literally mean digging ditches, as workers this year faced extremely wet grounds before the fair started and additional rainfall during the event.

This year the county fair association again received an assist from the Sentence To Serve program conducted through the Pennington County Sheriff's Department. It involves men, women and juveniles who receive credit toward fine payment or jail time by working in community service.

Sheriff Gerald Moe said that about 20 different people put in about 400 total hours to help the county fair through the Sentence To Serve program. For each hour worked, the STS participant received either a $5 credit toward fine payment or a one-hour credit toward serving a jail sentence.

What did they do? They painted and put up the new signs on the fair buildings, painted the new horse barn, helped bring in and clear out fixtures from the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center, assisted the Boy Scouts with parking cars, provided labor for preparation of the exhibit buildings and worked on grounds clean-up Monday after the fair was over.

While the STS workers were compensated for their efforts, many of the county fair volunteers use vacation time from their regular jobs or take time from other responsibilities to donate their time to the county fair. It is because of this extra effort that the fair has not only survived for 93 years but has grown into the major area attraction that it now is.

Improvements have been made in buildings and grounds as the fair board addresses needs. In a recent editorial we mentioned that only the goat barn seemed to be in need of improvement. Given the amount of rain at fair time, we expected to find that building ankle deep in water.

Not to fear. The fair board had already tackled that problem area, doing some ditching and adding gravel to build up the floor of the building. In spite of the rain and wet grounds, the goats and their owners stayed high and dry throughout the entire fair. It was a major improvement over a couple of the prior wet years.

The new horse barn also worked out well, staying mostly dry while lower ground around it was extremely muddy. Friday night's rain and wind storm, which had rain moving horizontally as well as vertically, did penetrate into some areas of the open barn, but the conditions were unusually extreme. For the most part, the new facility is appreciated by horse people and that was evidenced by the nearly 100 horses entered at the fair this year.

This will not be a good year financially for the Pennington County Fair, primarily because of lack of attendance for the "big show," the Joe Diffie concerts Saturday night. Diffie presented excellent performances that his audiences thoroughly enjoyed, but there were not enough people there to cover the costs. Ticket sales once again showed that a large percentage of the audience came from some distance to attend but that local attendance fell short. Last year the Tanya Tucker concert had excellent local support and the "big show" was a financial success.

Hats (and this year, boots as well) off to the volunteers who make the Pennington County Fair a great event every year. Your efforts are recognized and appreciated.

Polaris reports record sales and earnings

Polaris celebrates anniversary

Polaris Industries has announced record sales and earning for the second quarter and record results for the first six months of 1994. The partnership said the results are attributed to continued strong demand for all of its products.

For the second quarter ended June 30, 1994, Polaris recorded sales of $180,884,000, up 63 per cent over sales of $111,235,000 for the same quarter last year. Net income for the quarter increased 61 per cent to $10,542,000 or $0.51 per unit, compared with $6,542,000 or $0.32 for the second quarter of 1993.

Sales for the first six months of 1994 were a record $326,355,000, up 49 per cent over the same period last year, and earnings, also a record, increased 51 per cent to $19,108,000 or $0.93 per unit compared with $12,680,000 or $0.62 per unit in 1993.

The results reflect continued strength in demand for Polaris snowmobiles, as well as significant growth in personal watercraft and all-terrain vehicle sales.

The financial condition of the partnership remains strong, with cash and cash equivalents of $23,595,000 and no long-term debt. For the first six months of 1994, the Partnership generated cash flow from operations before changes in working capital items of $35,254,000 compared to $25,802,000 for the prior year period.

Polaris Chief Executive Officer Hall Wendel, Jr., said, "The outlook for the full year looks good. We are seeing strong demand in all three product lines as well as clothing and accessories. New products including the SLT750 personal watercraft, the Magnum four-stroke all-terrain vehicle, and the new features in the snowmobile line have had outstanding acceptance."

According to Wendel, Polaris anticipates total year 1994 sales will increase appreciably over 1993, when Polaris recorded sales of $528 million.

The Partnership expects to declare its next regular quarterly distribution of $0.63 per unit in September. This distribution would be payable on or about November 15, 1994, to holders of record on September 15, 1994.

Polaris has also announced that to meet the increased demand for Polaris personal watercraft, the company will dedicate production at its new 223,000 square-foot Spirit Lake, IA, facility to watercraft production. This facility is expected to be on-line this fall.

The company will mark its 40th anniversary on July 29-30, 1994, with a grand celebration in Roseau. The company expects upwards of 10,000 snowmobile, ATV and personal watercraft enthusiasts will descend on the town to mark the occasion. Activities will include historic displays, snowmobile and personal watercraft races and the conclusion of a 1900 mile Polaris Watercraft tour through the Canadian wilderness on Polaris personal watercraft. This tour is expected to reach Roseau on July 29.

Polaris reports record sales and earnings

Polaris celebrates anniversary

Polaris Industries has announced record sales and earning for the second quarter and record results for the first six months of 1994. The partnership said the results are attributed to continued strong demand for all of its products.

For the second quarter ended June 30, 1994, Polaris recorded sales of $180,884,000, up 63 per cent over sales of $111,235,000 for the same quarter last year. Net income for the quarter increased 61 per cent to $10,542,000 or $0.51 per unit, compared with $6,542,000 or $0.32 for the second quarter of 1993.

Sales for the first six months of 1994 were a record $326,355,000, up 49 per cent over the same period last year, and earnings, also a record, increased 51 per cent to $19,108,000 or $0.93 per unit compared with $12,680,000 or $0.62 per unit in 1993.

The results reflect continued strength in demand for Polaris snowmobiles, as well as significant growth in personal watercraft and all-terrain vehicle sales.

The financial condition of the partnership remains strong, with cash and cash equivalents of $23,595,000 and no long-term debt. For the first six months of 1994, the Partnership generated cash flow from operations before changes in working capital items of $35,254,000 compared to $25,802,000 for the prior year period.

Polaris Chief Executive Officer Hall Wendel, Jr., said, "The outlook for the full year looks good. We are seeing strong demand in all three product lines as well as clothing and accessories. New products including the SLT750 personal watercraft, the Magnum four-stroke all-terrain vehicle, and the new features in the snowmobile line have had outstanding acceptance."

According to Wendel, Polaris anticipates total year 1994 sales will increase appreciably over 1993, when Polaris recorded sales of $528 million.

The Partnership expects to declare its next regular quarterly distribution of $0.63 per unit in September. This distribution would be payable on or about November 15, 1994, to holders of record on September 15, 1994.

Polaris has also announced that to meet the increased demand for Polaris personal watercraft, the company will dedicate production at its new 223,000 square-foot Spirit Lake, IA, facility to watercraft production. This facility is expected to be on-line this fall.

The company will mark its 40th anniversary on July 29-30, 1994, with a grand celebration in Roseau. The company expects upwards of 10,000 snowmobile, ATV and personal watercraft enthusiasts will descend on the town to mark the occasion. Activities will include historic displays, snowmobile and personal watercraft races and the conclusion of a 1900 mile Polaris Watercraft tour through the Canadian wilderness on Polaris personal watercraft. This tour is expected to reach Roseau on July 29.

"All aboard" was the call when the Winnipeger was loaded and ready to pull out of the station. In 1928, the passenger train provided sleeping cars, dining cars and observation cars, running from St. Paul to Winnipeg in 15 hours.

as the sole railhead for the Garrison Dam project from 1947 to 1952. During the Korean War, the Soo Line was able to haul military materials, since the Equalization Agreement had been repealed.

The complete switch to diesel engines occurred in 1955 and the Soo donated over a dozen of the old steam engines to various communities along the line, including Thief River Falls. The Soo Line sought to discontinue passenger service, and in 1959 the Duluth-Thief River Falls service was discontinued. That same year computer data processing was introduced into the railroad.

In 1960, the ICC approved a merger of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Railroad Company; the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad; and the Wisconsin Central Railroad. They became the Soo Line Railroad Company on January 1, 1961. The remainder of passenger train service was discontinued during the sixties. In 1961, dispatch offices were closed in Gladstone, MI, and Thief River Falls. The last telegraph line, from Minneapolis to Noyes, closed in 1978.

During the 1960s and 70s, revenue was good for the Soo Line. Grain and crops were still predominant ladings, along with potash from Canada, sulfur, machinery, manufactured goods, pulpwood and wood products.

With the purchase of the bankrupt Milwaukee Road in 1985, the shape and character of the Soo Line changed with a new traffic mix, a new, faster mail line to Chicago, and a route to Kansas City. The purchase also put additional burdens on the Soo Line.

January 23, 1990, the Canadian Pacific Limited, parent company of Canadian Pacific Rail, purchased almost all remaining minority ownership in the Soo Line.

Today the Soo Line Railroad is one of three railroads that operate as part of the CP Rail System, joining CP Rail in Canada and the Delaware and Hudson Railway in the northeastern United States.

Each of the carriers is a wholly owned subsidiary or division of Canadian Pacific Limited, based in Montreal. Because of different laws, labor contracts, and other unique characteristics, however, the Soo Line remains a separate U.S. company. Labor contracts are negotiated separately on the three railroads and the provisions of the contracts differ.

The Soo Line is presently the ninth largest railroad in the United States. It operates over 5,000 miles of line in 11 midwestern states, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, North and South Dakota, and Wisconsin. The Soo Line generated 593 million dollars in revenues in 1993.

Soo Line trains presently cover 23,000 miles each day, requiring approximately 900 crew members. The Soo carries grain and other agricultural products, coal, automobiles, lumber, paper, chemicals, fertilizers, food, metals and general consumer goods.

So it appears that the Soo has nearly as important a job carrying goods today as it did in the days when the settlers came to the area. But, sad to say, the one difference between that day and this is that the Soo of today no longer carries dreams — the dreams of settlers seeking prosperous new lives in a new land.

Thieves will open playoffs at Irv Wilson Field Sunday

Thief River Falls will face Warroad in the Northwest Border League amateur baseball championship playoff series starting Sunday at 1 p.m. at Irv Wilson Field.

Winner in the 2-out-of-3 game series will advance to the state tournament-qualifying Region 12C playoffs at Concordia College in Moorhead. Hutchinson will be the site of the 1994 Class C state tournament.

Game 2 will be played Monday at Warroad and Game 3, if needed, would be played Tuesday in Thief River Falls. Those games have 7 p.m. starting times.

Warroad beat Roseau in a 2-out-of-3 game series to start the Northwest Border League playoffs.

The Thieves went 14-5-1 during the regular season, sweeping both Warroad and Roseau in the process.

Youth Baseball

Due to the large number of rain days that interrupted the 1994 Thief River Falls Parks & Recreation Department summer youth baseball program, additional games have been scheduled Aug. 8-12.

Program director Jon Anderson emphasized that it was not mandatory for players to be on hand for the games if the dates conflict with other scheduled activities. "We understand family vacations, etc. have been scheduled for this time," acknowledged Anderson. "However, we would like to give players an opportunity to get in a few more games, weather permitting."

TRF, Roseau split twinbill

Howard Dalager and Corey Poole shared the Thief River Falls American Legion baseball coaching duties in a Tuesday doubleheader against Roseau at Irv Wilson Field.

Dalager, in an attempt to slowly step away from the head coaching position he has held the past six years, has been handing more and more of the on-field responsibilities to Poole, who has been converted into a co-head coach instead of an an assistant.

Tuesday, Dalager was on hand for a 3-2 first-game win before leaving to complete a previous personal appointment. Poole didn't fare as well in the nightcap as Roseau held off a seventh inning Thief River Falls rally and then scored five times in the eighth for an 8-5 extra-inning victory.

The match-up began a regular season-ending home stand for Thief River Falls that also included a Thursday doubleheader vs. East Grand Forks and a 5:30 p.m. twinbill today (Saturday) against Devils Lake, ND.

Thief River Falls.....3
Roseau.....2

Brian Minks almost didn't make it out of the first inning. But after giving up two walks, two hits and two runs in his initial trip to the mound, the lefthander pitcher put together six innings of shutout baseball to lead Thief River Falls past Roseau 3-2 in Game 1.

A two-out, two-run Jeremy Kvien single into short left field scored the two batters Minks walked to start the game. But he got out of a bases-loaded jam on an infield pop-up and pitched effectively the rest of the way – scattering three walks and three hits over the final six innings.

Thief River Falls overcame the early deficit on an RBI single by Joby Looker in the second inning, a single and stolen base by Steve Burslie in the fourth that set up a run on an infield ground-out by Eric Bjorgaard, and a two-out single up the middle by Chris Vanyo in the fifth to score Adam Henney, who had a lead-off double.

Roseau starter Andy Jensen left after two innings with a 2-1 lead because of arm trouble. Aaron Stromlund worked the final four innings and took the loss. The two Roseau pitchers combined on five strike-outs and two walks.

Roseau.....8
Thief River Falls.....5

Walks will kill you. The old baseball axiom held true in Game 2 when Thief River Falls pitchers issued 13 walks, and saw six of those runners eventually score in an 8-5 eight-inning Roseau win.

And complicating matters was the fact Thief River Falls lost three runners at the plate, including the potential game-winner in the bottom of the seventh.

Roseau outfielders Mike Benke and Brent Eaton threw out Thief River Falls runners at home the third and fourth innings, respectively, and a missed suicide squeeze bunt in the seventh cost Post 117 another runner.

Two Roseau errors plated a pair of Thief River Falls runs in the fourth inning, but a two-out, two-run single by Jason Lund put the visitors ahead 3-2 in the sixth.

Thief River Falls tied it in the seventh when one-out singles by Adam Henney and Chane Keefe were followed by an infield error on a ball off the bat of Brad Thayer.

In addition to scoring Henney, the error put Keefe at third with just one out. Twice Thief River Falls tried to win it with a suicide squeeze bunt by Chris Vanyo. But his first try rolled foul down the first base line and when he missed the second attempt, Keefe was an easy inning-ending, game-extending out at the plate.

Roseau then used six walks and an error to score five times in the top of the eighth for the win. Thief River Falls starter Tim Barry left after two walks and an error had produced a 4-3 Roseau lead. Relief pitcher Eric Bjorgaard gave up an RBI double to Aaron Larsen, then walked four of the next five batters he faced, forcing in three runs. Joby Looker came in to get the final out.

A two-out, two-run triple by Looker in the bottom of the eighth cut into the Roseau lead, but didn't alter the outcome.

The loss went to Barry, who gave up six runs, walked nine and struck out three in his 7 1/3 innings of pitching.

Larsen went the distance for the win. He gave up six hits and walked six while striking out three and benefitting from the three outs at the plate.

Lund went 2-for-5 to become the only batter in either game to have a multiple-hit effort at the plate.

A 4-for-4 game by Barb Weiss and three hits in three at-bats, including a pair of doubles, by Buse keyed a 15-1 victory over Northwest Eye Center. Shannon Mosbeck had a 5-for-5 game, Weiss was 4-for-4 with a home run, Schultz went 4-for-5 with two doubles, and Barbot collected three hits in four at-bats, including a triple, in a 32-4 make-up game romp over Best Western Inn.

Classes on coping with cancer here Aug. 9

The "I Can Cope" program, a free, six-session educational series designed to help cancer patients deal with their disease, begins at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls, August 9. The program is co-sponsored by the Pennington County Unit of the American Cancer Society and by Northwest Medical Center.

"I Can Cope" includes presentations and videos on the disease process, daily health problems, nutrition, expressing feelings, living with limitations, and locating resources that can help. Speakers will include nurses, physicians, a dietitian, social worker, occupational therapist, and an attorney. The program is open to cancer patients, their families, friends, and anyone interested in learning more about the disease.

The six two-hour sessions will begin Tuesday, August 9, and continue every Tuesday and Thursday evenings for three weeks through August 25, from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Chapel at Northwest Medical Center.

Evadell Tangquist, RN, patient education coordinator, and Jone Poole, RN, Chemotherapy nurse, at Northwest Medical Center will co-facilitate the sessions. According to Tangquist, "I Can Cope" is a proven educational program developed by the American Cancer Society and has been widely endorsed by health professionals. Graduates of the hospital "I Can Cope" program have felt that they emerged with an improved life outlook, less anxiety and better knowledge of their disease.

Persons wishing to register or learn more about the program should contact Tangquist at 681-4240, ext. 446, or Poole at 681-4240, ext. 208.

Klingons invade Voyageur's View

to the Wesley United Methodist Church in Crookston where they sang "Amazing Grace" in Klingon, dressed in full costume. Proechel assisted with the church service as he has with a number of others in southern Minnesota.

During the afternoons of Saturday and Sunday respectively, a softball game and naval battle on inner tubes at Voyageurs' View were held. During the ball game against a team of Planetary All-Stars headed by hockey star Henry Boucha of Warroad, the Klingons were holding their own by defending third base with batleths until the All-Star players treacherously began throwing tribbles (golf balls with fake fur glued on them) at the Klingons. Any Star Trek fan knows that the furry cute little tribbles are the one thing Klingons are afraid of. The word of tribble in Klingon, by the way, is 'yIII' (which sounds a little like 'yuck' in English).

After the festival ended Sunday evening and some of the participants returned to their normal lives, a dozen or so remained to spend the week intensely studying the Klingon language, as taught by Proechel and Rich Yampell, a computer software designer of the Boston area, who is better known as Captain Krankor. Patrikk was also an instructor, teaching martial arts and batleth training.

It rained during the first part of the week, but we were informed that Klingons don't melt and to stop whining about it. The mosquitoes attacked in swarms but it appears that Klingons are tough and can't complain about that either. The food, however, which was prepared and served by Mrs. Proechel and the camp accommodations supervised by Dick and Diane Brumwell of Voyageurs' View, were much better than the austere Klingons would normally expect.

There was a campfire almost every evening and on Thursday night Patrikk celebrated his 21st birthday. Since in the Klingon culture, a rite of passage is celebrated by being hit with "painsticks" (sort of like cattle prods) it was decided that a roast should be held for Patrikk at the campfire that evening and he enjoyed being creatively insulted by everyone from 12-year-old Corey Hake of Bemidji, with whom he shared a tent at the camp, to his mother, me, who conveniently recalled a lot of embarrassing things from Patrikk's past.

From rising each morning to shouts of "yIvem" (Wake up!) which is the Klingons' equivalent of "Good morning," to the end of each dying campfire, our days were full of shared laughter and good fun. By Wednesday I overheard Patrikk tell someone that studying a language wasn't so bad and maybe he will be willing to give it another try, "because no Earth language could be as hard as Klingon, and I'm doing better than I expected to in this." This change in his attitude is exactly what Rich Yampell and Glen Proechel say is one of the main goals of the camp experience. According to Yampell, "You can't learn Klingon without finding out what an object of a sentence is or what an imperative (an order like "Do that!") is. These concepts are the same in English and all other Earth languages. It gives the student a chance to learn about language in general." Yampell has been a "Klingon" for about four years and is considered one of the top experts in the language. "If you can learn to speak Klingon," he adds, "you can learn any language." He also states that he enjoyed being a batleth student as an unexpected bonus, since he hadn't expected to like this type of activity but actually enjoyed it very much.

Another student, Randal Gross, who works in the electronics field in Brandon, Manitoba, says that studying Klingon for the first time this week was a bit of a surprise. "It really wasn't jibberish. After a couple of days I could understand what the others were saying and they could understand me. There were a lot of inside jokes floating around the camp by the end of the week."

One of the most common jokes involved the active dislike of Romulans and a mild comtempt for the soft-living Humans. My favorite was a riddle: "How do you stop a war between the Romulans and the Humans?" Answer: "SaH 'Iv. (Who cares?)"

Gross, who attends an average of five or six Star Trek conventions each year known as Captain MHax taI-O'Beyn, studied drama for a time in college, and has designed an impressive uniform and facial make-up for himself. He adds, however, that he hasn't met a border-crossing guard yet who is a Star Trek fan and generally has to do some explaining about the war-like armor and equipment when he enters the United States.

By Wednesday Gross says that he found himself dreaming in Klingon. "I suddenly realized that I was really learning this language, that I could do it. It was the most interesting challenge I've had for a while."

Donna Herbster, an employee of NASA in Cleveland, OH, was at the camp for her second year and holds the title Major Kitch in a Star Trek fan club at home. She admits that she hears the question of "Why study Klingon?" often. All of the fans agree to the answer to that: "It's fun and it's educational."

Patrikk and I agree. And we both hope to be in the company of space aliens soon as we pursue this entertaining and enjoyable hobby.

Batleth training and instruction at the Klingon language camp at Voyageur's View in Red Lake Falls last week was provided by Patrikk Myhrer (right) of St. Hilaire. He is shown blocking an attack by Rich Yampell of the Boston area, a language instructor at the camp.

Farmers try to cope with

by David Hill
Associate Editor

In addition to too much water, nearly every disease in the book is attacking crops, according to Pennington county extension agent Howard Person.

Over 40 people attended the Coping with Disaster evaluation and assistance meeting at the Technical College in Thief River Falls Wednesday night. Speakers at the event coordinated by Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe, talked about the extent of the disaster, reporting requirements and the status of Pennington County's Agriculture disaster declaration application.

Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe explained that the disaster application process began when several local officials met to discuss the disaster, shared information and looked at pictures of crops taken from the air.

There are at least three types of disaster applications — agriculture, public and private. Pennington county has applied for an agricultural disaster. Moe said his office will continue to do everything possible and monitor the situation. In addition he is still collecting information about damage to public and private property in the county. But so far, his office has recorded uninsured losses on public property of $16,000, and $18,000 on private property.

Howard Person, Pennington county extension agent, explained farmers are faced with three problems this year — crops that have been drowned out, crops infected with scab or other diseases, and soil saturation. At this point he believes there is a 50 to 60 per cent loss in small grain crops and confectionary sunflowers.

Person said crops appear to be infected with "every disease in the book". He said he had been discussing the problems with a plant pathologist and he said those counties with the heaviest rain on June 19 will have the heaviest losses due to scab. Those counties include the southern tier of Marshall county townships, Pennington county, Red Lake county, and portions of Polk county.

In addition to crop damage, Person described the first hay as "just crap", and said that the third cut would come too late in the season and would do more harm if cut.

Phil Bergland, Pennington County ASCS director, said farmers can obtain permission to hay and graze CRP. He said it's a simple test. However, it will reduce CRP payments by one-fourth. In addition he said that if farmers are seeing a feed loss it is possible to get assistance.

Minnesota Senator LeRoy Stumpf said his office had received numerous calls about the weather modification program in North Dakota. He visited with director of the program and they said they would be willing to meet with farmers in the area and explain why the weather has been so wet.

Person said he also received numerous calls about the weather and the seeding operation in North Dakota. He said the furthest east

Arctco Inc., to enter All-Terrain Vehicle market

Arctco Inc. Thief River Falls, has announced plans to enter the all-terrain vehicle (ATV) market, stating that it will begin marketing ATVs in the summer of 1995 and begin production later that year. The announcement was made at the company's annual meeting of stockholders.

Christopher A. Twomey, Arctco's president and chief executive officer, said the company is entering the ATV market primarily in response to ongoing requests by Arctco's dealers and customers. Twomey said the addition of ATVs to the Company's product line is a "perfect fit" with its current products, Arctic Cat snowmobiles and Tigershark personal watercraft.

Twomey commented, "Arctco has been at the forefront of the motorsports industry for many years, designing, manufacturing and marketing award-winning snowmobiles and most recently, personal watercraft. We believe it is a natural extension for the company to apply this expertise, as well as its reputation for superior product quality, to the ATV market."

Twomey said that before making this decision, the company studied the market closely. "We are very pleased by what we learned," he said. "ATV sales in the United States have been increasing, reaching nearly 195,000 units in 1993. The market for utility/work-saving models — used by outdoorsmen as well as farmers, ranchers and hunters — perfectly complements our existing dealer network. With the addition of our Tigershark personal watercraft line, Arctco's dealer network now spans across every major U.S. market."

Arctco is currently negotiating a purchase and supply agreement with Suzuki Motor Corporation of Japan for ATV engines and drive trains. Arctco will design, engineer and manufacture the suspension, chassis, body and trim of the ATVs at its main manufacturing plant in Thief River Falls.

Polio victims face postpolio syndrome

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

For many of us who grew up in the 1940s and 50s, polio was something very real and very frightening. Mothers constantly warned us not to get overtired or chilled for fear of the disease. I remember my mother telling me not to eat ice in the summer because I might get polio.

Most of us knew someone, classmate, friend or family member, who was stricken with the disease. After months of illness and exercises, some recovered fully, but others still bear the effects of the debilitating virus today.

Since the development of a polio vaccine by Dr. Jonas E. Salk in 1953, and the implementation of childhood vaccinations in 1955, the disease has been nearly eradicated in the United States.

But polio has returned once again to haunt its victims in a different way. Today, forty years after the polio epidemic of the 1940s and 50s, polio survivors are being stricken with an elusive set of symptoms called postpolio syndrome.

Many people in our area are afflicated with postpolio syndrome. Many more have the syndrome but have not been diagnosed yet. At the first meeting of the newly-formed local postpolio support group in December of 1993, approximately 40 people from all around the area showed up.

Gloria Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the group, said she was very surprised to see so many people at the meeting. "We never expected that many — we didn't even have enough room for all of them."

The Thief River Falls Area Postpolio Support Group is the only active group in northern Minnesota. Johnson said those attending have come from as far away as Warroad, Baudette, Argyle, Goodridge, Euclid, Orygla and Erskine.

Fr. Joe DeCrans, pastor of St. Bernard's church in Thief River Falls, is also a postpolio syndrome sufferer. He says many people are not aware of the illness and most doctors do not know much about it either because it has not been around very long. "It has just started to appear in those of us who had polio when we were young and the doctors have not seen a lot of cases."

> —Fr. Joe DeCrans

Four years ago Fr. Joe began experiencing aches and pains and had an episode where he found his legs unable to function and get him up a river bank while he was fishing. He sought medical attention when he began having trouble holding things. Meanwhile, he had heard of postpolio syndrome and began reading about it and talking to others who had the illness.

"I heard about the postpolio group and decided to go to a meeting," he said. "I thought postpolio syndrome sounded like what was happening to me. Afterward I went back to my doctor and told him what I thought."

Meanwhile, Fr. Joe's doctor had also been researching postpolio syndrome. He agreed with Fr. Joe and sent him to a nerve specialist in Grand Forks. After several tests, most of which were to eliminate what diseases Fr. Joe did not have, he was diagnosed as having postpolio syndrome.

Doctors do not know what causes postpolio syndrome and often fail to diagnose it, or misdiagnose it as psychosomatic illness, treat patients with inappropriate, unnecessary prescriptions, or order extensive testing for its symptoms.

Symptoms of postpolio syndrome are much like the symptoms of polio, but less. The most commonly reported symptoms of postpolio syndrome are:

- unusual fatigue, either rapid muscle tiring or feelings of total body exhaustion;
- new weakness in muscle, both those originally affected and those unaffected by previous polio;
- pain in muscles and/or joints;
- poor endurance and reduced mobility;
- sleep problems;
- breathing difficulties;
- swallowing problems; and
- intolerance to cold.

What causes postpolio syndrome? Doctors do not really know the cause. One theory is that the polio virus has become reactivated. Another theory, perhaps the most widely-held one, is that certain nerve cells, those that took over for cells destroyed by the polio virus, have been overused and, now that the patients are older, at an age when cells die off naturally, the cells are dying at a more rapid rate than normal.

Other theories of the cause or contributing factors of postpolio syndrome include underexertion, overexertion, inactivity because of illness or injury, hypo-oxygenation, sleep apnea or deconditioning.

According to Fr. Joe, postpolio syndrome is not a disease at all. He says, "It is a product of what happened to polio victims years ago that is affecting their bodies now. There is no cure for it and we have to live with it. We just have to learn to live productive lives even though we have it and it may possibly shorten our lives."

He said postpolio syndrome is a type of anomaly and will be short-lived. "The syndrome will come and go and that will be the end of it. Since polio is no longer around (to any extent), some of us who had polio will get postpolio syndrome and after we are gone, the syndrome will be gone. But because there is no more polio around, there will be no more postpolio syndrome."

Polio, or poliomyelitis, sometimes called infantile paralysis, is an inflammation of the brain and spinal cord. It may affect people of any age, although most of its victims are children between the ages of four and 15.

Gloria Johnson was five and a half when she had polio. She was paralyzed from the waist down. Fr. Joe was six years old and he was fully paralyzed. Both recovered from the disease and led normal lives until postpolio syndrome struck.

The disease has been around since ancient times, but after World War II it became more and more prevalent in the United States. It reached epidemic proportions in 1952, affecting as many as 60,000 people, most of whom were children. Over 640,000 were afflicted with varying degrees of the disease during the polio epidemic of the 1940s and 50s.

The tiny polio virus is tranferred from person to person through the nose, mouth and intestines. It passes into the bloodstream and from there into the central nervous system. The viruses multiply rapidly and kill the nerve cells. Paralysis occurs as nerve cells die.

Paralysis developed in 47 to 75 per cent of the cases, but many of Yampell has been a "Klingon" for about four years and is considered one of the top experts in the language. "If you can learn to speak Klingon," he adds, "you can learn any language." He also states that he enjoyed being a batleth student as an unexpected bonus since he hadn't expected to like this type of activity but actually enjoyed it very much.

Another student, Randal Gross, who works in the electronics field in Brandon, Manitoba, says that studying Klingon for the first time this week was a bit of a surprise. "It really wasn't jibberish. After a couple of days I could understand what the others were saying and they could understand me. There were a lot of inside jokes floating around the camp by the end of the week."

One of the most common jokes involved the active dislike of Romulans and a mild comtempt for the soft-living Humans. My favorite was a riddle: "How do you stop a war between the Romulans and the Humans?" Answer: "SaH 'Iv. (Who cares?)"

Gross, who attends an average of five or six Star Trek conventions each year known as Captain MHax tal-G'Beyn, studied drama for a time in college, and has designed an impressive uniform and facial make-up for himself. He adds, however, that he hasn't met a border-crossing guard yet who is a Star Trek fan and generally has to do some explaining about the war-like armor and equipment when he enters the United States.

By Wednesday Gross says that he found himself dreaming in Klingon. "I suddenly realized that I was really learning this language, that I could do it. It was the most interesting challenge I've had for a while."

Donna Herbster, an employee of NASA in Cleveland, OH, was at the camp for her second year and holds the title Major Kitch in a Star Trek fan club at home. She admits that she hears the question of "Why study Klingon?" often. All of the fans agree to the answer to that: "It's fun and it's educational."

Patrikk and I agree. And we both hope to be in the company of space aliens soon as we pursue this entertaining and enjoyable hobby.

Batleth training and instruction at the Klingon language camp at Voyageur's View in Red Lake Falls last week was provided by Patrikk Myhrer (right) of St. Hilaire. He is shown blocking an attack by Rich Yampell of the Boston area, a language instructor at the camp.

Farmers try to cope with

by David Hill
Associate Editor

In addition to too much water, nearly every disease in the book is attacking crops, according to Pennington county extension agent Howard Person.

Over 40 people attended the Coping with Disaster evaluation and assistance meeting at the Technical College in Thief River Falls Wednesday night. Speakers at the event coordinated by Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe, talked about the extent of the disaster, reporting requirements and the status of Pennington County's Agriculture disaster declaration application.

Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe explained that the disaster application process began when several local officials met to discuss the disaster, shared information and looked at pictures of crops taken from the air.

There are at least three types of disaster applications — agriculture, public and private. Pennington county has applied for an agricultural disaster. Moe said his office will continue to do everything possible and monitor the situation. In addition he is still collecting information about damage to public and private property in the county. But so far, his office has recorded uninsured losses on public property of $16,000, and $10,000 on private property.

Howard Person, Pennington county extension agent, explained farmers are faced with three problems this year — crops that have been drowned out, crops infected with scab or other diseases, and soil saturation. At this point he believes there is a 50 to 60 per cent loss in small grain crops and confectionary sunflowers.

Person said crops appear to be infected with "every disease in the book". He said he had been discussing the problems with a plant pathologist and he said those counties with the heaviest rain on June 19 will have the heaviest losses due to scab. Those counties include the southern tier of Marshall county townships, Pennington county, Red Lake county, and portions of Polk county.

In addition to crop damage, Person described the first hay as "just crap", and said that the third cut would come too late in the season and would do more harm if cut.

Phil Bergland, Pennington County ASCS director, said farmers can obtain permission to hay and graze CRP. He said it's a simple test. However, it will reduce CRP payments by one-fourth. In addition he said that if farmers are seeing a feed loss it is possible to get assistance.

Minnesota Senator LeRoy Stumpf said his office had received numerous calls about the weather modification program in North Dakota. He visited with director of the program and they said they would be willing to meet with farmers in the area and explain why the weather has been so wet.

Person said he also received numerous calls about the weather and the seeding operation in North Dakota. He said the furthest east

Arctco Inc., to enter All-Terrain Vehicle market

Arctco Inc, Thief River Falls, has announced plans to enter the all-terrain vehicle (ATV) market, stating that it will begin marketing ATVs in the summer of 1995 and begin production later that year. The announcement was made at the company's annual meeting of stockholders.

Christopher A. Twomey, Arctco's president and chief executive officer, said the company is entering the ATV market primarily in response to ongoing requests by Arctco's dealers and customers. Twomey said the addition of ATVs to the Company's product line is a "perfect fit" with its current products, Arctic Cat snowmobiles and Tigershark personal watercraft.

Twomey commented, "Arctco has been at the forefront of the motorsports industry for many years, designing, manufacturing and marketing award-winning snowmobiles and most recently, personal watercraft. We believe it is a natural extension for the company to apply this expertise, as well as its reputation for superior product quality, to the ATV market."

Twomey said that before making this decision, the company studied the market closely. "We are very pleased by what we learned," he said. "ATV sales in the United States have been increasing, reaching nearly 195,000 units in 1993. The market for utility/work-saving models — used by outdoorsmen as well as farmers, ranchers and hunters — perfectly complements our existing dealer network. With the addition of our Tigershark personal watercraft line, Arctco's dealer network now spans across every major U.S. market."

Arctco is currently negotiating a purchase and supply agreement with Suzuki Motor Corporation of Japan for ATV engines and drive trains. Arctco will design, engineer and manufacture the suspension, chassis, body and trim of the ATVs at its main manufacturing plant in Thief River Falls.

Polio victims face postpolio syndrome

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

For many of us who grew up in the 1940s and 50s, polio was something very real and very frightening. Mothers constantly warned us not to get overtired or chilled for fear of the disease. I remember my mother telling me not to eat ice in the summer because I might get polio.

Most of us knew someone, classmate, friend or family member, who was stricken with the disease. After months of illness and exercises, some recovered fully, but others still bear the effects of the debilitating virus today.

Since the development of a polio vaccine by Dr. Jonas E. Salk in 1953, and the implementation of childhood vaccinations in 1955, the disease has been nearly eradicated in the United States.

But polio has returned once again to haunt its victims in a different way. Today, forty years after the polio epidemic of the 1940s and 50s, polio survivors are being stricken with an elusive set of symptoms called postpolio syndrome.

Many people in our area are afflicated with postpolio syndrome. Many more have the syndrome but have not been diagnosed yet. At the first meeting of the newly-formed local postpolio support group in December of 1993, approximately 40 people from all around the area showed up.

Gloria Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the group, said she was very surprised to see so many people at the meeting. "We never expected that many — we didn't even have enough room for all of them."

The Thief River Falls Area Postpolio Support Group is the only active group in northern Minnesota. Johnson said those attending have come from as far away as Warroad, Baudette, Argyle, Goodridge, Euclid, Grygla and Erskine.

Fr. Joe DeCrans, pastor of St. Bernard's church in Thief River Falls, is also a postpolio syndrome sufferer. He says many people are not aware of the illness and most doctors do not know much about it either because it has not been around very long. "It has just started to appear in those of us who had polio when we were young and the doctors have not seen a lot of cases."

> — Fr. Joe DeCrans

Four years ago Fr. Joe began experiencing aches and pains and had an episode where he found his legs unable to function and get him up a river bank while he was fishing. He sought medical attention when he began having trouble holding things. Meanwhile, he had heard of postpolio syndrome and began reading about it and talking to others who had the illness.

"I heard about the postpolio group and decided to go to a meeting," he said. "I thought postpolio syndrome sounded like what was happening to me. Afterward I went back to my doctor and told him what I thought."

Meanwhile, Fr. Joe's doctor had also been researching postpolio syndrome. He agreed with Fr. Joe and sent him to a nerve specialist in Grand Forks. After several tests, most of which were to eliminate what diseases Fr. Joe did not have, he was diagnosed as having postpolio syndrome.

Doctors do not know what causes postpolio syndrome and often fail to diagnose it, or misdiagnose it as psychosomatic illness, treat patients with inappropriate, unnecessary prescriptions, or order extensive testing for its symptoms.

Symptoms of postpolio syndrome are much like the symptoms of polio, but less. The most commonly reported symptoms of postpolio syndrome are:

- unusual fatigue, either rapid muscle tiring or feelings of total body exhaustion
- new weakness in muscle, both those originally affected and those unaffected by previous polio;
- pain in muscles and/or joints;
- poor endurance and reduced mobility;
- sleep problems;
- breathing difficulties;
- swallowing problems; and
- intolerance to cold.

What causes postpolio syndrome? Doctors do not really know the cause. One theory is that the polio virus has become reactivated. Another theory, perhaps the most widely-held one, is that certain nerve cells, those that took over for cells destroyed by the polio virus, have been overused and, now that the patients are older, at an age when cells die off naturally, the cells are dying at a more rapid rate than normal.

Other theories of the cause or contributing factors of postpolio syndrome include underexertion, overexertion, inactivity because of illness or injury, hypo oxygenation, sleep apnea or deconditioning.

According to Fr. Joe, postpolio syndrome is not a disease at all. He says, "It is a product of what happened to polio victims years ago that is affecting their bodies now. There is no cure for it and we have to live with it. We just have to learn to live productive lives even though we have it and it may possibly shorten our lives."

He said postpolio syndrome is a type of anomaly and will be short-lived. "The syndrome will come and go and that will be the end of it. Since polio is no longer around (to any extent), some of us who had polio will get postpolio syndrome and after we are gone, the syndrome will be gone. But because there is no more polio around, there will be no more postpolio syndrome."

Polio, or poliomyelitis, sometimes called infantile paralysis, is an inflammation of the brain and spinal cord. It may affect people of any age, although most of its victims are children between the ages of four and 15.

Gloria Johnson was five and a half when she had polio. She was paralyzed from the waist down. Fr. Joe was six years old and he was fully paralyzed. Both recovered from the disease and led normal lives until postpolio syndrome struck.

The disease has been around since ancient times, but after World War II it became more and more prevalent in the United States. It reached epidemic proportions in 1952, affecting as many as 60,000 people, most of whom were children. Over 640,000 were afflicted with varying degrees of the disease during the polio epidemic of the 1940s and 50s.

The tiny polio virus is tranferred from person to person through the nose, mouth and intestines. It passes into the bloodstream and from there into the central nervous system. The viruses multiply rapidly and kill the nerve cells. Paralysis occurs as nerve cells die.

Paralysis developed in 47 to 75 per cent of the cases, but many of

Alexandria poet is lauded for poem called Minnesota

Alexandria — Vernon Wigdahl of Alexandria is a finalist in the 1994 North American Open Poetry Contest. He will travel to Washington D.C. in August for the international level award ceremony and has been made a lifetime member of the International Society of Poets. He began writing poetry when he was in the Philippine Islands in 1980. His winning poem is:

Minnesota

Minnesota, land of Sky Tinted Waters
Which is an Indian name
Where among its towering Norway Pines
Begins to flow the mighty Mississippi
On its Southward journey across a nation great
To the Gulf of Mexico.
And from its fruitful plains to the Great Mesabi
Iron Range its resources move eastward
To the Island Sea Port at Duluth
Where ocean freighters await to load their cargo
For their journey across the great lakes
To their distant lands across the sea
That is when I, a Minnesotan
I'm proud that this great state is home to me.

$70,000 is enough

Williams — The Lake of the Wood school board rejected a raise for Superintendent Charles Speiker this year. A committee set up by the school board proposed a raise of $2,100 for Speiker, but concerned members of the community who attended the meeting said that $70,000 is salary enough, citing "poor working conditions at the school" and "poor harmony between the superintendent and the staff." A number of teachers at the meeting voiced opinions that "education didn't seem to be the top priority of the present administration," citing cuts in such supplies as crayons and books.

Women business owners are invited to attend any of the "roundtable" discussions and are reminded there is no cost to join the network.

A meeting will be held on August 9 at 11:30 a.m. at Ada in the Extension office meeting room. The topic will include [illegible] business after hours with Fertile.

A meeting will be held 8 a.m. August 16 in Bemidji at the Mug and Muffin Restaurant. The topic will involve insuring your business.

Aid Association for Lutherans Branch 9591, representative by Patty Schob, presented a $600 donation to Zion Lutheran church students so they could attend the National Youth Gathering in Atlanta, GA. To receive the $600, the student had to raise an equal amount. They were able to raise the funds through such events as a church-wide rummage sale held in May. Cool summer weather slows crop development

Last week's cooler than normal weather slowed crop development, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service on August 1.

The harvest of spring grains, though underway, was also slowed by the weather. Reports on the crop condition vary by location from good to poor due to scab infection, drownout and hail damage. Condition rating on spring wheat of good to excellent dropped 18 percentage points from last week; barley is down 20 and oats is off 23 points.

Rains the past month, which prevented farmers from performing field work, allowed weeds to proliferate in fields.

Farmers made progress putting up the second cutting of hay last week. Though the temperatures were lower than normal, rains let up to allow some work to be done. The hay crop also displays a wide range in quality and quantity.

Condition of the corn and soybean crops remain good to excellent for the state. These crops have been aided by above average growing degree days for the growing season.

As of Friday, July 29, topsoil moisture was 3 per cent very short, 8 per cent short, 72 per cent adequate and 17 per cent surplus.

SOUPCON
Sherry LaCoursiere

Today's recipes are a hodge-podge of whatever I have stolen from area newspapers.

This recipe is easy enough even for Bill, who works with the photos at The Times and has been supplying me with zucchini this year:

ZUCCHINI PARMESAN
4 medium zucchini, sliced into 1-inch pieces
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1/2 cup shredded mozzarella cheese

In 8-inch round micro-safe dish, combine zucchini, Parmesan cheese and tomato sauce. Cover with plastic wrap.

Cook in microwave on high for 10 to 12 minutes, until zucchini is tender, stirring once.

Sprinkle with mozzarella cheese and let stand, covered, for five minutes before serving.

ZUCCHINI BARS
3/4 cup softened butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 3/4 cups flour
1/2 cup white sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3/4 cup raisins
3/4 cup coconut
2 cups shredded zucchini, peeled or unpeeled
3/4 cup cut up dates

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 10x15 inch jelly roll pan and set aside.

Cream butter and sugars together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla, beating well.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt into creamed mixture. Blend well.

Stir in remaining ingredients and spread in prepared pan. Bake 35 minutes or until no imprint remains.

This is an easy pie to make, delicious on a hot summer day:

MILLION DOLLAR PIE
1/3 cup lemon juice
14 ounce can sweetened condensed milk
#2 can crushed pineapple, well drained
1 (8 or 9 ounce size) thawed whipped topping
8 ounces cream cheese, softened
1 cup chopped nuts
Baked graham cracker pie crust

Mix lemon juice and condensed milk. Add pineapple, whipped topping and cream cheese, mixing well.

Stir in nuts and pour into baked pie shell. Chill.

Even if you're watching your fat grams, you can have your hot fudge and eat it too, with this ice cream topping:

WHERE'S-THE-FAT CHOCOLATE SAUCE
3/4 cup sugar
1/3 cup cocoa
4 teaspoons cornstarch
2/3 cup evaporated skim milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a small saucepan, mix sugar, cocoa and cornstarch. Add milk.

Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir for 2 more minutes.

Remove from heat and add vanilla.

Serve sauce warm or cool over frozen yogurt, low fat ice cream, or angel food cake.

(Each tablespoon of sauce contains 55 calories, no fat, no cholesterol 12 grams carbohydrates and 13 mg sodium.)

Joyful Noise group will present children's musical August 10

The children's musical, "The Friendship Company — Open for Business," will be presented by Joyful Noise at the Thief River Falls Public Library on Wednesday, August 10, at 2 p.m. Full of love, joy, fun and friendship, the show is one the whole family can enjoy. There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome to attend.

A Joyful Noise is a Christian musical group from Thief River Falls featuring girls ages eight to 13 who sing, act and dance. The group presented the musical at the Pennington county fair and at churches and camps around the state this summer.

The presentation is about manners, friendship and self-esteem. It features creatures of all shapes and sizes, Beemer — a cheerful monster, Noodles — a lamb who gets her words mixed up, Lucy — a shy lion, Infield — a sports-minded St. Bernard dog, Nibbles — a mouse, Hoppy — a happy kangaroo, Tweet and Twitter — a canary and a blue-jay who are the best of friends, Fergetti — an elephant with a not-so-good memory, Zig — a rabbit who loves to kiss and hug, and Katie — the young lady who becomes friends with all of the creatures and tells the story of how the Friendship Company began.

Everyone is invited to join the friends as they learn about manners and feelings. For more information, contact the Thief River Falls Public Library at 101 East First Street, telephone 218-681-4325.

A Portrait of Rural Minnesota without the Rose Colored Glasses

Blandin Foundation

Not all is well in rural Minnesota, but this reality is often hidden by a still-powerful vision of rural life.

Today's news draws attention to critical urban issues. Not as visible are the many serious rural problems, some of which are old and persistent and some of which are emerging.

Last year, the Blandin Foundation commissioned Hazel Reinhardt to study rural Minnesota and identify trends, challenges and opportunities for this key segment of the Minnesota economy.

She found that the challenges facing rural Minnesota stem from characteristics that distinguish rural areas from metropolitan centers. These include low population density, specialization in a single industry, and remoteness from urban centers.

While these characteristics are not problems in themselves, for many rural areas they have led to a gradual decline in economic prosperity and social well-being. An additional concern is whether they create major obstacles to successful competition in a changing global economy.

While rural Minnesota may be smaller, it remains important. Over 1.2 million Minnesotans live in rural areas. That's almost one-third of the state's population. In fact, industries originating in rural areas contribute more to the total economy than the number of farmers or loggers suggests.

Just as importantly, rural Minnesota will blaze the trail in the transition from a younger to an older society. Its experience in this transition will provide guideposts for the rest of the state.

To maintain and enhance quality of life, rethinking and reorganizing service delivery in a cost-effective manner is essential. Only by understanding the changes already in existence, can we explore opportunities and waste less effort fighting the inevitable.

The picture is not as pretty as we wish: outward migration from rural areas, the aging population, rural poverty . . . problems we'd rather not hear about, much less act on.

But act we must. First to sound the alarm, second to enlist both leadership and followership. Third, provide support. And lastly, to spread hope . . . hope that we can make a difference; hope that we can deal with these trends; hope that community leaders, who are aware of the obstacles, can move people to advance the common good.

The population will continue to shift from rural to the urban and suburban areas. Does this mean we should give up our commitment to help strengthen communities throughout rural Minnesota?

The answer is clear. While some communities may decline in size, many have the opportunity to improve their destiny as good places to live: communities of caring and communities of hope; communities that are adaptable to change.

The responsibility to deal with enormous change is in the hands of community leaders who can and must realistically chart their community's future, predicated upon an awareness of strengths and weaknesses. After this frank assessment, the leaders and followers must create a plan. Success will be measured by movement in the right direction, not perfection.

We need to build for the future and enhance the quality of life today. We need to call to action on many issues.

- We must continue to invest in the children in rural Minnesota. No matter where they settle, they must be as well educated, as highly skilled and as adept in using information as their metropolitan cousins.
- We must focus on developing options that ensure a quality of life for our seniors in rural Minnesota. As more people live long, more creative approaches will be needed. We are experiencing a significant demographic transition. Aging could well be the focus in many rural communities.
- When thinking about economic growth, let's not overlook the underutilized human resources in rural Minnesota. In recent years, states and communities have competed for large scale economic development. Why not stimulate small scale development? It's a strategy that will produce more winners than losers in rural areas.
- As the roles and functions of rural communities change, cooperation and collaboration among communities must be fostered. Large communities as well as small communities must be committed to cooperation so that resources will be used more rationally and amenities and services will be available.
- Science and technology offer the hope for economic viability in the next century. This is as true for rural Minnesotans as it is for metropolitan Minnesotans. We must not get so focused on urban problems that we neglect the social and economic problems of rural Minnesota.

As an era ends and another begins, whether we focus on past images or look for new our emerging images will guide our actions and influence our long-term success.

The strengthening of Minnesota's communities is an effort that calls forth the contributions — intellectual, financial and courage — not of one foundation or agency but from all of us.

National Guard Youth camp at Camp Ripley

Minnesota National Guard's 4th annual Youth Camp is scheduled for August 14-27 at Camp Ripley, the National Guard's 53,000 acre training site near Little Falls.

The camp holds two one-week sessions. The first begins Sunday, August 14 and the second on Sunday, August 21, according to Major John Trombley, state coordinator for the youth camp.

The Youth Camp is for children, ages 10-12, who are family members of National Guard soldiers and airmen. The camp's intent is to provide esteem building experiences for the children, teach them about the military so they gain some understanding of the National Guard, encourage them to avoid the dangers of drug abuse and teach them about the importance of taking care of the environment.

The camp's daily schedule is full. The children will hike, bike and practice archery. They will have a chance to canoe and spend a night out camping in the woods, telling stories around a campfire. The campers will also get to examine different kinds of military equipment.

The youth camp began in 1989 when the Minnesota's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Eugene Andreotti, appointed a family program manager and directed that person to establish a youth camp.

One hundred and four campers attended the first camp held in 1991. Last year, 245 campers attended the two one-week sessions.

The camp also achieved a milestone in 1992 when it was accredited by the American Camp Association which evaluated the camp that year. The Minnesota Camp is the only National Guard youth camp in the United States to hold such accreditation. There are currently about 10 National Guard-sponsored camps in the United States.

The camp is staffed by trained volunteers who are either active or retired Guard members or related to Guard members. More than 130 volunteers will work during the two weeks.

Joyful Noise group will present children's musical August 10

The children's musical, "The Friendship Company — Open for Business," will be presented by Joyful Noise at the Thief River Falls Public Library on Wednesday, August 10, at 2 p.m. Full of love, joy, fun and friendship, the show is one the whole family can enjoy. There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome to attend.

A Joyful Noise is a Christian musical group from Thief River Falls featuring girls ages eight to 13 who sing, act and dance. The group presented the musical at the Pennington county fair and at churches and camps around the state this summer.

The presentation is about manners, friendship and self-esteem. It features creatures of all shapes and sizes. Beemer — a cheerful monster, Noodles — a lamb who gets her words mixed up, Lucy — a shy lion, Infield — a sports-minded St. Bernard dog, Nibbles — a mouse, Hoppy — a happy kangaroo, Tweet and Twitter — a canary and a bluejay who are the best of friends, Fergetti — an elephant with a not-so-good memory, Zig — a rabbit who loves to kiss and hug, and Katie — the young lady who becomes friends with all of the creatures and tells the story of how the Friendship Company began.

Everyone is invited to join the friends as they learn about manners and feelings. For more information, contact the Thief River Falls Public Library at 101 East First Street, telephone 218-681-4325.

A Portrait of Rural Minnesota without the Rose Colored Glasses

Blandin Foundation

Not all is well in rural Minnesota, but this reality is often hidden by a still-powerful vision of rural life.

Today's news draws attention to critical urban issues. Not as visible are the many serious rural problems, some of which are old and persistent and some of which are emerging.

Last year, the Blandin Foundation commissioned Hazel Reinhardt to study rural Minnesota and identify trends, challenges and opportunities for this key segment of the Minnesota economy.

She found that the challenges facing rural Minnesota stem from characteristics that distinguish rural areas from metropolitan centers. These include low population density, specialization in a single industry, and remoteness from urban centers.

While these characteristics are not problems in themselves, for many rural areas they have led to a gradual decline in economic prosperity and social well-being. An additional concern is whether they create major obstacles to successful competition in a changing global economy.

While rural Minnesota may be smaller, it remains important. Over 1.2 million Minnesotans live in rural areas. That's almost one-third of the state's population. In fact, industries originating in rural areas contribute more to the total economy than the number of farmers or loggers suggests.

Just as importantly, rural Minnesota will blaze the trail in the transition from a younger to an older society. Its experience in this transition will provide guideposts for the rest of the state.

To maintain and enhance quality of life, rethinking and reorganizing service delivery in a cost-effective manner is essential. Only by understanding the changes already in existence, can we explore opportunities and waste less effort fighting the inevitable.

The picture is not as pretty as we wish: outward migration from rural areas, the aging population, rural poverty . . . problems we'd rather not hear about, much less act on.

But act we must. First to sound the alarm, second to enlist both leadership and followership. Third, provide support. And lastly, to spread hope . . . hope that we can make a difference; hope that we can deal with these trends; hope that community leaders, who are aware of the obstacles, can move people to advance the common good.

The population will continue to shift from rural to the urban and suburban areas. Does this mean we should give up our commitment to help strengthen communities throughout rural Minnesota?

The answer is clear. While some communities may decline in size, many have the opportunity to improve their destiny as good places to live: communities of caring and communities of hope; communities that are adaptable to change.

The responsibility to deal with enormous change is in the hands of community leaders who can and must realistically chart their community's future, predicated upon an awareness of strengths and weaknesses. After this frank assessment, the leaders and followers must create a plan. Success will be measured by movement in the right direction, not perfection.

We need to build for the future and enhance the quality of life today. We need to call to action on many issues.

- We must continue to invest in the children in rural Minnesota. No matter where they settle, they must be as well educated, as highly skilled and as adept in using information as their metropolitan cousins.
- We must focus on developing options that ensure a quality of life for our seniors in rural Minnesota. As more people live long, more creative approaches will be needed. We are experiencing a significant demographic transition. Aging could well be the focus in many rural communities.
- When thinking about economic growth, let's not overlook the underutilized human resources in rural Minnesota. In recent years, states and communities have competed for large scale economic development. Why not stimulate small scale development? It's a strategy that will produce more winners than losers in rural areas.
- As the roles and functions of rural communities change, cooperation and collaboration among communities must be fostered. Large communities as well as small communities must be committed to cooperation so that resources will be used more rationally and amenities and services will be available.
- Science and technology offer the hope for economic viability in the next century. This is as true for rural Minnesotans as it is for metropolitan Minnesotans. We must not get so focused on urban problems that we neglect the social and economic problems of rural Minnesota.

As an era ends and another begins, whether we focus on past images or look for new our emerging images will guide our actions and influence our long-term success.

The strengthening of Minnesota's communities is an effort that calls forth the contributions — intellectual, financial and courage — not of one foundation or agency but from all of us.

National Guard Youth camp at Camp Ripley

Minnesota National Guard's 4th annual Youth Camp is scheduled for August 14-27 at Camp Ripley, the National Guard's 53,000 acre training site near Little Falls.

The camp holds two one-week sessions. The first begins Sunday, August 14 and the second on Sunday, August 21, according to Major John Trombley, state coordinator for the youth camp.

The Youth Camp is for children ages 10-12, who are family members of National Guard soldiers and airmen. The camp's intent is to provide esteem building experiences for the children, teach them about the military so they gain some understanding of the National Guard, encourage them to avoid the dangers of drug abuse and teach them about the importance of taking care of the environment.

The camp's daily schedule is full. The children will hike, bike and practice archery. They will have a chance to canoe and spend a night out camping in the woods, telling stories around a campfire. The campers will also get to examine different kinds of military equipment.

The youth camp began in 1989 when the Minnesota's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Eugene Andreotti, appointed a family program manager and directed that person to establish a youth camp.

One hundred and four campers attended the first camp held in 1991. Last year, 245 campers attended the two one-week sessions.

The camp also achieved a milestone in 1992 when it was accredited by the American Camp Association which evaluated the camp that year. The Minnesota Camp is the only National Guard youth camp in the United States to hold such accreditation. There are currently about 10 National Guard-sponsored camps in the United States.

The camp is staffed by trained volunteers who are either active or retired Guard members or related to Guard members. More than 130 volunteers will work during the two weeks.

Oklee Children's theatre group to present play

Oklee Community Children's Theater will be presenting the two act play "The Glass Slipper" by Vera Morris on August 12 and 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Oklee School gym and on August 14 with a matinee at 2:30 p.m. This is an adaptation of Cinderella and includes 25 youth from the Oklee, Brooks, and Plummer area.

This classic tale has the cruel stepsisters, Brunhilda and Cleopatra, and an evil Stepmother, who believes her daughters are intelligent, beautiful and witty. They treat Cinderella as a slave because she has all the qualities that they lack.

The news that the queen will abdicate the throne if her son the prince gets married, is spread by the queen's messenger, which sets into motion this entertaining play. In this play, the apprentice tells the fairy godmother about Cinderella's problems. With her magic, she makes it possible for Cinderella to attend the ball. Of course, the magic lasts only to midnight and Cinderella leaves the Prince holding a glass slipper as the only clue to her identity.

Cast members include: Rebecca Anderson and Jennifer Tougas as the cruel stepsisters Brunhilda and Cleopatra; Crystle Moody as the Stepmother; Cindy Lambert as Cinderella; Monica Pendleton as the queen's messenger; Mindy Lundeen as the queen; Adam Swenson as the prince; Adam Stoneouse as the captain; Andy Swenson as the lieutenant; Mitch Rystad as the apprentice; Rachel Schue as the fairy godmother; Jessica Spong as Pumpkinhead; Dale Rystad and Andy Swenson as mice; Kelsey Lambert as Atilla the cat; Amanda Spong as Mistress Haughty; Becky Paquin and Lindsay Hegge as Lady Ursula/Urlaula; Tina Klasen as Lady Blossom; Lynette Lundeen as Lady Vine; Lindsay Vettleson as Lady Beatrice; Amanda Spong as Lady Alice and Andrew Vettleson as Citizen I.

Lars Schue is the assistant director and Michael Swenson is the director.

Admission to the play is $3 for students grade 7 to adults; and $2 for students in grades kindergarten through sixth.

STS completes 15,000 hours of work since Jan.

Sentence to Serve, a program that allows law enforcement offenders to work off their debt to society, has completed 15,000 hours of work since January.

In January of 1994, three area counties, Pennington, Marshall and Kittson, decided to create one Sentence to Serve (STS) program for all three counties. The program is being administered in Thief River Falls at the Pennington county law enforcement center by Scott Peters. He receives assistance from Wayne Nomeland, crew leader, and Darla Swanson.

Wednesday, Marshall County Sheriff Dennis Brekke liked what he saw at Steiner Hall. Individuals serving STS recently re-painted the aging building. Eldon Moe, chairman of Excell township board, had difficulty looking at the building because it was so white.

Peters said six to seven individuals in the STS program spent several hours during three to four days to re-paint the building. The township, however, did not have to pay the individuals working on the project, they only had to provide the materials.

The STS program is a sentencing alternative for the courts. It puts non-violent offenders to work on community improvement projects. Participants are paid by reductions in their jail sentence.

There have been many projects. Steiner Hall, the most recent project, has somewhat of an interesting history. It is currently being used as the town hall and 4-H club headquarters, and has chairs from an old theatre in Thief River Falls that closed many years ago. At one time there were several buildings nearby, but now it stands alone. Moe said it was built during the late 1930s and 40s and was a great place for dances.

Peters said it was one of the more interesting town halls that the STS program has re-painted.

Peters said the STS program has painted over a half dozen town halls. The STS program has also done some watershed work and work at fairgrounds. Visitors to the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls might also be able to observe some of the murals that have been painted in the center.

FmHA gets new state director

Janice Daley of Lewiston, has been appointed by the Clinton Administration to be State Director of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) in Minnesota. Daley began her appointment on July 11, 1994.

As State Director of FmHA Daley becomes responsible for leading the rural development agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture here in the state. In addition to using her vast agriculture experience Daley will have the opportunity to guide FmHA's housing, community and business programs.

"I am very enthusiastic about my appointment as Minnesota State FmHA director", said Daley. "The state of Minnesota is a very strong, and rich agricultural state and FmHA has played an important role in the farm sector. I am committed to ensuring that FmHA's mission of fostering and encouraging the family farm system of agriculture is not diminished."

As a farm advocate in southeaster Minnesota, Daley is very familiar with the programs of FmHA. Daley says, "In working with farmers at the county office level I understand the processes and how sometimes that process can be frustrating." Daley was a farm advocate with the Minnesota department of agriculture from 1984 to 1991 and then continued her advocacy work on a volunteer basis.

Daley was also a field representative of the Minnesota Farmers Union for 15 counties. Being actively involved in various components of agriculture has prepared Daley for her role as State Director, she said.

The term "public spirit" accurately describes the drive of the new FmHA state director. Daley is very involved in issues affecting rural communities and this is demonstrated by her active community life. She has been a very active member of the Lewiston/Altura school board, a member of the St. Rose of Lima Parish and many other community activities.

Daley replaces Lou Anne Kling who left the state to work in the National Office of FmHA in Washington, D.C. Daley is only the second woman to serve as a State Director in Minnesota.

Daley and her husband John operate a 1,200 acre farm raising corn, soybeans, and canning peas. They have five children.

Open house set at Golf Club

■ Expansion project ribbon-cutting/tournament

by Sports Editor Mike Lundgren

Grand opening for the new 9-hole expansion project at the Thief River Golf Club is scheduled for Sunday, Aug 14.

Ribbon-cutting ceremony is planned for 12:30 p.m. An 18-hole five-person team scramble tournament will begin with a shotgun start at 1:30 p.m., followed by a picnic-style dinner. Tournament entry fee is $10, which includes the dinner. A dinner ticket can be purchased by guests not playing in the tournament for $5.

Work on converting the Thief River Golf Club from a 9-hole to an 18-hole course begin in the spring of 1992. Tom Haugen of Shakopee served as the architect for the project. Dick Olson of Thief River Falls was the contractor, and Site Design of Fargo worked on the lay-out of the course.

The project included detailed work with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in preserving wetland areas.

Construction of two bridges presented the major challenge and represented a big part of what will ultimately be a $1 million undertaking when the entire project, including the paving of the entrance road, is completed.

Funding came from Thief River Golf Club member pledges, along with other private donations.

Seeding the new lay-out took place in August/September 1993. Two fairways had to be re-seeded this spring/summer, but the course is now in top-notch shape, thanks in large part to the work directed by Chuck Tuthill, superintendent of grounds and greens.

The recent wind storm that hit the Thief River Falls area downed some 40 trees on the expansion project, but did little to take away from the woody lay-out that will put a premium on accurate drives. Several holes cross water, adding to the challenge.

Club officials stress the fact it is now an 18-hole course. Golfers will have to tee off on No. 1 and cover the front 9 before trying their hand on the new holes – 10-through-18.

Using the men's white tees, the new 3,087-yard, par-36 lay-out, which was measured by Minnesota Golf Association officials earlier this week, is just slightly longer than the current 3,027-yard, par-36 course. The old 9, however, is more wide-open and caters to long drives down the fairways. Combined, the 18-hole course is expected to be an equalizer and a challenge to golfers with varying strengths and weaknesses.

The expanded layout features a 332-yard, par-4 No. 10; 143-yard, par-3 No. 11; 344-yard, par-4 No. 12; 365-yard, par-4 No. 13, a long 570-yard, par-5 No. 14; 128-yard, par-3 No. 15; a split-fairway 532-yard or 507-yard, par-5 No. 16; 322-yard, par-4 No. 17; and the signature 351-yard, par-4 No. 18 that will cross the river and finish behind the clubhouse.

The 18-hole lay-out will be open for public play beginning Aug. 15. Green fees are welcome. Call 681-2955 for tee-times.

Legion loses tournament opener

Roseau dropped Thief River Falls into the loser's bracket of the six-team, double-elimination Ninth District Division I American Legion baseball tournament Wednesday with a come-from-behind 5-4 opening round win at Fergus Falls.

A 2-0 head start and four Roseau errors couldn't secure a Thief River Falls win as Post 117 fell to 16-26 for the year and faced instant elimination the rest of the way. Roseau took a 21-7 record into the winner's bracket of the five-day state tournament-qualifying event.

Thief River Falls opened the scoring with a pair of runs in the top of the second inning when Joby Looker came up with a lead-off single and Andy Peterson reached base on a sacrifice bunt/error. Both runners advanced on stolen bases and scored – first on a sacrifice fly by Adam Henney and then on a single by Chance Keefe.

Held without a hit by Thief River Falls pitcher Brian Minks through three innings, Roseau got on the board with a pair of fourth inning singles by Robert Moser and Mike Benke. Moser broke the ice with a one-out hit, reached second when the winners dodged a potential inning-ending double play, and scored on a two-out bad-hop base hit by Benke.

Singles by Chris Vanyo and Steve Burslie rebuilt the two-run Thief River Falls edge in the top of the fifth, but Roseau used three hits and two walks to score three times in the bottom of the inning for a 4-3 advantage.

Back-to-back doubles by Jeremy Hanson and Aaron Stromlund made it 3-2 and prompted Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager to bring Tim Barry on in relief of Minks. Aaron Larson greeted Barry with a single that was followed by walks issued to Andy Jensen and Moser to force in the tying run. An infield ground-out earned a go-ahead RBI for Jason Pesek.

Thief River Falls came back for a 5-5 tie in the top of the sixth on a two-out walk by Henney, a single by Keefe and an error on a ball hit by Jason Jensen.

But Roseau matched that run in the bottom of the frame on a walk and a two-out drive by Larson that got by the Thief River Falls outfielder for a triple.

Keefe and Larson were the only players with multiple hits, both going 2-for-3.

Minks gave up the three runs and four hits while walking three in four innings of pitching. He struck out one. The loss went to Barry, who surrendered two runs, two hits and four walks in 1 2/3 innings of work. He also had one strike-out. Vanyo pitched to the final batter.

Larson went six innings for the win. He gave up five hits and three walks while striking out two. Stromlund took over in the seventh and earned a save as he walked one and struck out one.

Arizona player signs tender with Pioneers

Arizona high school product James McNeil will bring his game north this winter after signing a letter of intent this week to play basketball at Northland Community College.

A 1994 Chino Valley High School graduate, the 6-5 McNeil averaged 15 points, 9 rebounds, 4 blocked shots, and 5 assists per game last year. He is expected to play the the No. 3 position – ostensibly a guard – in the Pioneers' line-up.

"James is an outstanding addition to our 1994-95 recruiting class," said Northland men's coach Mark Dannhoff, who last spring landed Kittson Central guard Matt Gustafson. Combined with returning sophomores Chad Kujava and Demond Watson, McNeil and Gustafson add depth and talent to the Pioneers' backcourt.

"As they learn from Chad and Demond, Matt and James could form an outstanding backcourt next season," noted Dannhoff. James adds to our depth at the 3-man position. He is a super addition to our team. We expect him to push for a starting role right away."

Dannhoff said he hopes to finish his recruiting for the 1994-95 season within the next couple of weeks.

Ninth District win over EGF...

TRF extends season

A 5-3 Thursday loser's bracket win over East Grand Forks extended Thief River Falls' 1994 American Legion baseball season into Day 3 of the Ninth District Division I tournament in Fergus Falls.

Steve Burslie was 3-for-4 and winning pitcher Chris Vanyo helped his own cause with a 2-for-2 day at the plate as Post 117 eliminated East Grand Forks from the six-team, double-elimination event.

East Grand Forks had plenty of chances with eight hits, eight walks and a hit-batsman. But 13 of those runners were left stranded on the bases, including a second and third situation in the top of the seventh.

Brad Beauchamp and Luke Melquist had two hits apiece for East Grand Forks.

Singles by Vanyo and Burslie gave Thief River Falls a 1-0 first inning lead, which stood until the fifth when an RBI double by Jason Jensen and a run-producing sacrifice fly by Joby Looker helped provide Post 117 with a 5-0 cushion.

A three-run East Grand Forks sixth cut into the lead, but didn't change the outcome.

FmHA continues its tradition of helping rural communities

More than $265 million from the Farmers Home Administration's (FmHA) farm and housing programs have benefited rural Minnesota so far this fiscal year. The majority of the funds assisted family farmers across the state.

"We are very proud to be able to deliver high impact programs for agricultural operators and rural families," said Janice Daley, acting state director of FmHA in Minnesota. "The rank and file of FmHA in the county offices have worked diligently since last fall to meet the needs of family farmers hurt by the Great Floods of 1993. We were able to assist farmers, recover from disaster losses and also actively promote all of our Farmer Programs and Rural Housing loans."

As of the end of July more than 2,500 farm loans have been negotiated, amounting to more than $195 million. "FmHA has made 472 Emergency Loans since October 1, 1993, helping farmers get their operations back up and running," said Daley. "Fiscal Year '94, however, has also seen large increases in program usage of operating loans over recent years." At this same time last year FmHA had executed approximately 525 operating loans. The loan activity of '94 indicates a 56 per cent increase from last year's numbers.

In addition to operating funds made available to operators, nearly 50 per cent of money used by farmers to buy back their farms lost previously to the government has been obligated. Daley says, "That is a very positive indication that our county supervisors are working closely with farm families to keep them on the land."

When the FmHA county offices aren't busy assisting farm families, they are involved in rural development activities through the FmHA Rural Housing program. Here, eligible rural families and individuals in Minnesota have used FmHA's housing programs extensively. This fiscal year $70.3 million or 1,241 loans and/or grants have met a wide variety of housing needs.

"In the program funding allocation for the year here in the state, the housing program receives approximately 18 per cent of the total," said Daley. "That 18 per cent goes a long way in providing families with modest homes, creating a multiplier effect on local economies, strengthening tax bases and enhancing the housing stock of rural communities."

Daley states that the outstanding service provided by FmHA is true to the historical tradition of the agency being there for rural Minnesota. "The Department of Agriculture Reorganization Act of 1994 has created a potential to end FmHA as it is presently known," said Daley. "Despite hiring freezes due to USDA reorganization" Daley says "the FmHA employees have proved to be mission-driven."

The programs delivered by the local FmHA county office effectively assists family farmers and those seeking modest low cost housing. Through its Farmer and Rural Housing programs, the FmHA continues its 60-year tradition of serving rural America.

Sen. Wellstone seeks strike investigation

U.S. Senator Paul Wellstone has asked Attorney General Janet Reno to investigate whether replacement workers from Canada are being used during the current labor dispute between the United Transportation Union and the Soo Line Railroad.

The newly-enacted NAFTA implementing legislation prohibits the classification of persons as non-immigrant workers if a strike or lock-out is currently underway at their anticipated worksite unless they can establish that their entry would not adversely impact the ongoing labor dispute.

In his letter Wellstone states, "As this strike enters its third week, my office has received numerous complaints from Minnesota UTU members who say that they have reason to believe that replacement workers from Canada are being used by the carrier to maintain rail services. These workers have indicated that a number of vehicles bearing Canadian license plates have been spotted by UTU pickets outside the St. Paul Yards, where one of the picket lines is located, and that they believe these vehicles are transporting replacement workers from Canada."

He urges Reno to investigate these allegations to determine whether the Immigration and Naturalization Service should be denying immigration documents to replacement workers from Canada in this case.

Wellstone also said he was sending a copy of his letter to Commissioner Doris Meissner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, INS Regional Director Carl Houseman, and Assistant Secretary of Labor Doug Ross, to ensure that they are aware of his request and to enable them to provide whatever information, especially regarding strike certification, that might be appropriate to help Reno's office investigate the matter and address it under the labor provisions of the NAFTA.

Roseau Artist of the Month

Sue Suess, Malung, has been chosen by the Roseau Area Friends of the Library, as their August Artist of the Month. Suess will display five forged iron wreaths, mostly black and unpainted, for their 1994 Exhibit Series at the Roseau Public Library. Each three-dimensional piece features ornamentation based on a different flower, including daffodil, morning glory, rose and wild rose. Her newest piece, finished just in time for the library exhibit, is the clematis.

After its premiere showing in Roseau, this unique exhibit, titled "The Fragrance of Iron", will move on to the Rourke Gallery in Moorhead where both Suess and her husband have been accepted as regular exhibitors.

Suess' interest in designing metal flowers began several years ago. She has been working with iron since 1982. Suess, who comes from Wisconsin, studied art at the University of Minnesota for seven years, concentrating on ceramics and foundry skills. After earning her bachelor of fine arts there, she moved to Roseau county in 1990.

Since her last Roseau library exhibit, a series of sunflower paintings, Suess has become a mother. These days her creative time must be scheduled around eight-month old Mollie Rae.

Suess is willing to design ornaments too for others who might have an old wheel they want transformed into a wreath to add interest to their surroundings.

She and her husband, Joel Miller, a glassblower and blacksmith, operate Raven Works. They have been doing blacksmithing for about three years. While this craft is basically self-taught they continue learning from others through conferences.

Although they have not appeared at Roseau's Art In the Park the last two years due to schedule conflicts, they remain active in their creative work. They intend to reserve time to exhibit at Art in the Park next year when the event will be one week later in July.

The current exhibit is open to the public during library hours Tuesday through Saturday until August 31. The library opens at 9:30 a.m. each of those days. Saturday closing is 1 p.m. and Thursday at 8 p.m. On other days the library closes at 5:30 p.m.

Monnville was chosen as one of 26 recipients from over 1,300 students who applied to the Foundation for financial assistance. Applicants were judged on scholastic achievement, demonstrated leadership ability and financial need. Ms. Morinville was selected for the scholarship award on the basis of her overall outstanding record.

Farmers try to cope with crop disaster

that they are seeding is in the Minot area. According to research information he has available at his office, the effects will spread no more than one county away from the source.

County Commissioner Ken Murphy said the county applied for an Agricultural Disaster declaration. He explained that they applied earlier this year because they wanted to eliminate some of the confusion experienced last year. He sees the role of the county board, now that the application has been made, as a coordinator. He said the board will try to provide assistance to individuals who run up against obstacles.

Paul Jacobs, the new region 3 emergency services coordinator in Minnesota, was also at the meeting Wednesday night. Jacobs provided information that explained the differences between various disaster declaration applications.

Jacobs explained that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) can provide a variety of assistance to farmers adversely affected by natural disaster. The assistance most commonly provided is the low-interest loan program made available through the Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA). This program is directed at farmers that have sustained production losses (crops and livestock) and physical losses (buildings and machinery).

When a natural disaster occurs in a certain area, the county Agricultural Emergency board (which consists of representatives from FmHA, ASCS, SCS, and also the county extension agent) meets to determine the extent of damage. If the reports indicate severe damage, the board will conduct a more thorough assessment to determine the impacts on the farming community. If production losses are greater than 30 per cent county-wide, the Agricultural Emergency board will recommend to the county board of commissioners that they (the county board) request the county be declared an Agricultural Disaster Area. The request is sent to the governor (through the DEM) and contains the damage assessment information compiled by the Agricultural Emergency board, and also a copy of the resolution passed by the county board of commissioners.

If the above documentation is found to be acceptable, the governor will submit a formal request to the secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to have the county declared an agricultural disaster.

All requests must be made in writing and within 90 days from the date of the disaster. Typically, a final decision by the USDA is not made until late fall or early winter, when the full extent of the crop loss is known.

Willis Eken, from U.S. Congressman Collin Peterson's office, said the House of Representatives had passed a disaster funding bill prior to the disaster in Georgia and sent it to the Senate. He said they were successful in amending it on the senate side and it did pass. It is now in conference committee where differences between the bills will be ironed out.

Eken said it does look promising but he cannot say that it is funded.

Dr. Steve Levinson, director of the Mental Health Division of Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls, addressed how farmers facing disaster can manage personal stress. Levinson defined stress and provided useful tips on how to handle stress. He also handed out his pamphlet on "Suggestions for Managing Personal Stress."

Sheriff Moe coordinated the meeting Wednesday night, but it was directed by Arlene Tucker, rural life outreach coordinator. Rural Life Outreach Project is funded by Catholic Charities, Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund, Bremer Foundation and other small grants. The project has six rural life outreach staff to reach people under stress from the result of last summer's rains. The project encompasses 21 counties of Northwest Minnesota.

Area residents form postpolio support group

those who had polio did not have severe cases. Polio symptoms of fever, headache, sore throat and vomiting could last 24 hours and then disappear. Often the mild forms of polio went undetected. Public health officials stated that there could have been as many as 100 cases of a mild form of polio for every recognized case.

Full-blown polio would begin with the symptoms above, but instead of recovering the patient would begin to experience stiffness of the neck and back, weakened muscles, pain in back and legs and, eventually, paralysis. An iron lung would be brought into use when breathing muscles were paralyzed.

Recovery from polio could take one to two years. Since there were no drugs that could be used for polio, bed rest and hot, moist bandages were used at the onset of the disease. After fever subsided, physical therapy was utilized to relieve pain and compensate for destroyed cells by encouraging new cell growth. Splints, braces and crutches were used to help mobility.

Fr. Joe said despite being fully paralyzed, he recovered completely. "I was kind of clumsy in grade school, but I just kept trying. I played in sports and just kept pushing myself."

Doctors encouraged the "use it or lose it" school of thought for polio patients. They were told to push forward and exercise even when it hurt or they got tired.

However, Fr. Joe says the "use it, lose it" attitude about polio was wrong. He feels that polio patients overused and abused their nerve cells and that is what has caused postpolio syndrome symptoms.

Between 25 and 80 per cent of those who had polio are developing postpolio syndrome today. Patients who had polio before the age of 10 and had severe cases appear to be the most susceptible to postpolio syndrome.

Postpolio syndrome differs from polio in that patients are advised not to overuse their muscles. Exercise and hard work do not help the patient recover or make the disease go away. It has been proven that heavy exercise and physical exertion can make postpolio syndrome worse.

At this time there is no cure for postpolio syndrome. Experimental treatments include a steroid called prednisone to ease fatigue, and a type of nerve growth factor.

Some postpolio patients may be advised in a mild exercise program tailored to each particular patient, practice self-pacing, and rest when fatigued. Some find themselves using crutches and wheelchairs again, devices which they thought were out of their lives forever. The use of supplemental oxygen or a respirator may be encouraged, and pain killers and muscle relaxers may be prescribed.

Fr. Joe said he is learning to live with postpolio syndrome by changing his lifestyle. "I try to avoid stress and rest when I get tired. I'm even learning not to feel guilty when I lay down for a nap."

Postpolio syndrome sufferers and those who are polio survivors are finding assistance and strength in area support groups. Both Fr. Joe and Gloria Johnson are members of the Thief River Falls Area Postpolio Support Group that meets the first Thursday of each month at Northwest Regional Library. Meetings are at 2 p.m. September through April, and at 6:30 pm. May through August.

The club was formed in December of 1993, with Marion Prichard and Ken Murphy as instigators. Newly-elected officers are Allen Lamm and Genevieve Lane, co-leaders, and Gloria Johnson, secretary-treasurer.

Anyone interested in postpolio syndrome is invited to attend a meeting or feel free to call one of the officers, Lamm at 681-7070, Lane at 681-2397, or Johnson at 681-3423, for more information.

Elementary school start

New Challenger elementary school won't be completed; classes to start two weeks late

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

Elementary students in School District 564 will get a two-week extension to their summer vacation as their all-new Challenger elementary school will not be ready for occupancy when high school and middle school classes begin Monday, September 6.

Supt. Bob Duncan announced at a news conference late Wednesday afternoon—following a number of meetings held throughout the day—that the start of elementary school would be delayed until Monday, September 19. Orientation for students is tentatively planned for Saturday and Sunday, September 17 and 18.

Although it had been hoped and planned for some time that the Challenger school would be ready for the September 6 opening, Dr. Duncan said Wednesday that everything would have had to go just right for that expectation to be realized. And it turns out that everything did not go just right.

Extremely cold winter weather that delayed concrete work, extensive summer rains which delayed brick laying and other exterior work and a shortage of qualified workers in skilled construction areas such as carpentry and drywall were listed as the main culprits in causing the late opening.

"While we realize this will create some inconvenience and some difficulty for a certain number of families," Dr. Duncan said, "we do

Challenger elementary school, nearing construction completion on the south edge of Thief River Falls and east of Pennington Avenue, is an imposing building. The area of the building at lower left in the aerial photo above will house pre-school and first grade students. The section in the foreground at right will be for grades two and three and the area in the background at right will be for grades four and five. Media center, music rooms, general office and other rooms are located between the latter two segments. The gymnasium and food service areas are at the upper left. Buses will unload at the rear of the school. General parking will be in the area in the foreground where workers' cars are parked.

Young people attend Atlanta youth meeting

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

Several young people from around the area traveled to Atlanta, Georgia, to attend the ELCA Youth Gathering in July. No doubt the following trip highlights from youth of Trinity, Redeemer, Zion and Black River churches in and around Thief River Falls, St. Pauli church of rural St. Hilaire, and Calvary church of St. Hilaire reflect the feelings of most of those who took part in the trip.

"It was incredible!"

That's the way most of the youth from the area described their busy, hectic, fun-filled, jam-packed-with-activity, two week trip to the ELCA Youth Gathering in Atlanta.

Nearly 100 youth from grades nine through 12 and their chaperones left Thief River Falls in two chartered buses on Saturday, July 16, heading for fun in the sun down south.

A total of eight youth from St. Pauli and Calvary churches in and near St. Hilaire attended the gathering, but they made the trip in a caravan of four chartered buses, attending the event with the Pathways Group, a special organization of young people from all around northwestern Minnesota.

After driving 500 miles, the Thief River Falls group's first night was spent at Midvale Community Lutheran church in Madison, Wisconsin. The second day, Sunday, was spent driving to Louisville, Kentucky, where they stayed at St. John Lutheran church. Highlight of Sunday's trip was seeing a huge gravel pit outside Chicago, and being told they had "cute" accents. The response to such a statement was, of course, that those from Kentucky were the ones with the accents.

Monday's trip took the group all the way to Rock of Ages Lutheran church in Stone Mountain, Georgia. Tuesday was spent in Stone Mountain performing service projects. Some of the youth planted flowers. Others packed food for the needy at a food bank. A bit of fun took place in the afternoon, when they cooled off and had fun at a 40-acre water park.

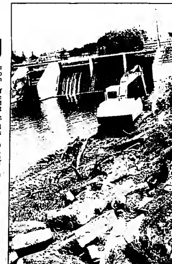
Wednesday was the first day of the youth gathering and everyone was delighted to see that they were going to be housed in a Holiday Inn, where they could have real showers at last, the day before beginning the youth gathering.

The Pathways group chose to forego staying at area churches and instead stayed in motels on their way to Atlanta. They left on Thursday, July 14, earlier than the Thief River Falls group, in order to see the sights prior to the youth gathering rather than afterward.

According to Kim Peterson of Middle River, who was the sole chaperone for the St. Pauli and Calvary youth, the youngsters raised $4,000 to cover the cost of the trip, a figure that did not include kids' meals and "fun money." They held fund raisers and received generous donations to finance the trip.

The first night of their excursion was spent in a suburb of Chicago, Illinois, and the second night in Chattanooga, Tennessee. All of Saturday was spent enjoying Opryland and a theme park in Nashville, Tennessee.

Sunday the buses were onward to Hilton Head, North Carolina, where the kids spent two days enjoying sand and sun by the Atlantic ocean, so they could be refreshed and ready for the youth gathering on Wednesday.



The gathering was a five-day event held at the Georgia Dome, with approximately 37,000 young people attending.

Three large screens allowed all to see the speakers and activities, and the Thief River Falls young people were delighted that their group was

Young people from Thief River Falls and all around the area left for the ELCA Youth Gathering in Atlanta, Georgia, amid tearful goodbyes and many hugs and kisses. The group from St. Pauli and Calvary in St. Hilaire left Thursday, July 14, on four buses with the Pathways Group to see sights prior to the youth gathering on July 20. Thief River Falls youth left in two buses on July 16 and enjoyed their days of fun after the youth gathering.

Pehlen Construction of Plummer was hired by the Red Lake Watershed District and the city of Thief River Falls to conduct landscaping below the reservoir dam in Thief River Falls. Earlier this week, the level of the water behind the dam was lowered and then the flood gates closed so that construction crews could begin work below the dam. The project involves lowering the level of the island below the dam and pushing dirt and debris up onto the riverbank where much of it came from, and then landscaping the riverbank.

After fever subsided, physical therapy was utilized to relieve pain and compensate for destroyed cells by encouraging new cell growth. Splints, braces and crutches were used to help mobility.

Fr. Joe said despite being fully paralyzed, he recovered completely. "I was kind of clumsy in grade school, but I just kept trying. I played in sports and just kept pushing myself."

Doctors encouraged the "use it or lose it" school of thought for polio patients. They were told to push forward and exercise even when it hurt or they got tired.

However, Fr. Joe says the "use it, lose it" attitude about polio was wrong. He feels that polio patients overused and abused their nerve cells and that is what has caused postpolio syndrome symptoms.

Between 25 and 80 per cent of those who had polio are developing postpolio syndrome today. Patients who had polio before the age of 10 and had severe cases appear to be the most susceptible to postpolio syndrome.

Postpolio syndrome differs from polio in that patients are advised not to overuse their muscles. Exercise and hard work do not help the patient recover or make the disease go away. It has been proven that heavy exercise and physical exertion can make postpolio syndrome worse.

At this time there is no cure for postpolio syndrome. Experimental treatments include a steroid called prednisone to ease fatigue, and a type of nerve growth factor.

Some postpolio patients may be advised in a mild exercise program tailored to each particular patient, practice self-pacing, and rest when fatigued. Some find themselves using crutches and wheelchairs again, devices which they thought were out of their lives forever. The use of supplemental oxygen or a respirator may be encouraged, and pain killers and muscle relaxers may be prescribed.

Fr. Joe said he is learning to live with postpolio syndrome by changing his lifestyle. "I try to avoid stress and rest when I get tired. I'm even learning not to feel guilty when I lay down for a nap."

Postpolio syndrome sufferers and those who are polio survivors are finding assistance and strength in area support groups. Both Fr. Joe and Gloria Johnson are members of the Thief River Falls Area Postpolio Support Group that meets the first Thursday of each month at Northwest Regional Library. Meetings are at 2 p.m. September through April, and at 6:30 pm. May through August.

The club was formed in December of 1993, with Marion Prichard and Ken Murphy as instigators. Newly-elected officers are Allen Lamm and Genevieve Lane, co-leaders, and Gloria Johnson, secretary-treasurer.

Anyone interested in postpolio syndrome is invited to attend a meeting or feel free to call one of the officers. Lamm at 681-7070, Lane at 681-2397, or Johnson at 681-3423, for more information.

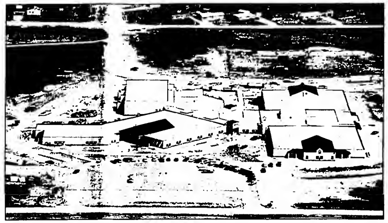
Elementary school start

New Challenger elementary school won't be completed; classes to start two weeks late

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

Elementary students in School District 564 will get a two-week extension to their summer vacation as their all-new Challenger elementary school will not be ready for occupancy when high school and middle school classes begin Monday, September 6.



Supt. Bob Duncan announced at a news conference late Wednesday afternoon—following a number of meetings held throughout the day—that the start of elementary school would be delayed until Monday, September 19. Orientation for students is tentatively planned for Saturday and Sunday, September 17 and 18.

Although it had been hoped and planned for some time that the Challenger school would be ready for the September 6 opening, Dr. Duncan said Wednesday that everything would have had to go just right for that expectation to be realized. And it turns out that everything did not go just right.

Extremely cold winter weather that delayed concrete work, extensive summer rains which delayed brick laying and other exterior work and a shortage of qualified workers in skilled construction areas such as carpentry and drywall were listed as the main culprits in causing the late opening.

"While we realize this will create some inconvenience and some difficulty for a certain number of families," Dr. Duncan said, "we do

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

Several young people from around the area traveled to Atlanta, Georgia, to attend the ELCA Youth Gathering in July. No doubt the following trip highlights from youth of Trinity, Redeemer, Zion and Black River churches in and around Thief River Falls, St. Pauli church of rural St. Hilaire, and Calvary church of St. Hilaire reflect the feelings of most of those who took part in the trip.

"It was incredible!"

That's the way most of the youth from the area described their busy, hectic, fun-filled, jam-packed-with-activity, two week trip to the ELCA Youth Gathering in Atlanta.

Nearly 100 youth from grades nine through 12 and their chaperones left Thief River Falls in two chartered buses on Saturday, July 16, heading for fun in the sun down south.

A total of eight youth from St. Pauli and Calvary churches in and near St. Hilaire attended the gathering, but they made the trip in a caravan of four chartered buses, attending the event with the Pathways Group, a special organization of young people from all around northwestern Minnesota.

After driving 500 miles, the Thief River Falls group's first night was spent at Midvale Community Lutheran church in Madison, Wisconsin. The second day, Sunday, was spent driving to Louisville, Kentucky, where they stayed at St. John Lutheran church. Highlight of Sunday's trip was seeing a huge gravel pit outside Chicago, and being told they had "cute" accents. The response to such a statement was, of course, that those from Kentucky were the ones with the accents.

Monday's trip took the group all the way to Rock of Ages Lutheran church in Stone Mountain, Georgia. Tuesday was spent in Stone Mountain performing service projects. Some of the youth planted flowers. Others packed food for the needy at a food bank. A bit of fun took place in the afternoon, when they cooled off and had fun at a 40-acre water park.

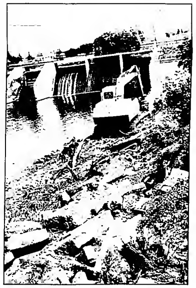
Wednesday was the first day of the youth gathering and everyone was delighted to see that they were going to be housed in a Holiday Inn, where they could have real showers at last, the day before beginning the youth gathering.

The Pathways group chose to forego staying at area churches and instead stayed in motels on their way to Atlanta. They left on Thursday, July 14, earlier than the Thief River Falls group, in order to see the sights prior to the youth gathering rather than afterward.

According to Kim Peterson of Middle River, who was the sole chaperone for the St. Pauli and Calvary youth, the youngsters raised $4,000 to cover the cost of the trip, a figure that did not include kids' meals and "fun money." They held fund raisers and received generous donations to finance the trip.

The first night of their excursion was spent in a suburb of Chicago, Illinois, and the second night in Chattanooga, Tennessee. All of Saturday was spent enjoying Opryland and a theme park in Nashville, Tennessee.

Sunday the buses were onward to Hilton Head, North Carolina, where the kids spent two days enjoying sand and sun by the Atlantic ocean, so they could be refreshed and ready for the youth gathering on Wednesday.



The gathering was a five-day event held at the Georgia Dome, with approximately 37,000 young people attending.

Three large screens allowed all to see the speakers and activities, and the Thief River Falls young people were delighted that their group was

Construction crews scrapped away layers of the island below the reservoir in Thief River Falls. The island was lowered by about one foot below the normal level of the river. Soil and debris from the island were pushed up onto the bank where it will be landscaped.

Much of the soil and debris on the island came from the riverbank. Construction crews were able to get on the island after the level of the river was lowered. The construction company performing the work is Pahlen Construction of Plummer.

Construction crews scrapped away layers of the island below the reservoir in Thief River Falls. The island was lowered by about one foot below the normal level of the river. Soil and debris from the island were pushed up onto the bank where it will be landscaped. Much of the soil and debris on the island came from the riverbank. Construction crews were able to get on the island after the level of the river was lowered. The construction company performing the work is Pahlan Construction of Plummer.

Agassiz Wildlife Refuge will be open to the public August 21 and 22

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will be open to the public on Saturday, August 20, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, August 21, from 1 to 7 p.m.

Visitors are encouraged to stop at headquarters and inquire if any restricted roads are open. Wildlife is active at this time of year with waterfowl returning to the air after the summer molt and some species, such as great egrets, staging for migration. Many plants are also at their peak of growth.

On Sunday, August 21, at 3 p.m. Dr. Steve Maxson, wildlife research biologist with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Bemidji Wetland Research Group will give a one-hour presentation at refuge headquarters on black terns and piping plovers. He is currently studying black terns at Agassiz refuge and piping plovers on Lake of the Woods.

In September, a presentation will be given on the gray wolf, followed by a howling expedition. Opportunity for the public to assist with duck banding will also take place in September.

Refuge personnel invite people to bring their family and friends to enjoy the sights and sounds of nature at the refuge August 20 and 21 and again in September.

Barley Growers upset with U.S., Canada solution

The National Barley Growers Association expressed extreme frustration following the announcement of a negotiated solution between Canada and the United States over Canadian grain exports into the United States.

"We are very discouraged," said Gerald Lacy, president of NBGA from Campbell. "Wheat imports from Canada were capped at a comparatively reasonable level but the U.S. barley market was left completely open to predatory pricing of the Canadian Wheat Board, with no restriction whatever."

It is a devastating blow to our industry," said Lacy, "with one month to go, barley imports from Canada in this marketing year are estimated at 70 million bushels. The quantity is six times higher than last year and makes the U.S. a net importer of barley for the first time in history. Imports will be equal to 17 per cent of U.S. production. No reasonable domestic market can be maintained under the pressure of such additional supplies.

"Capping the Canadian wheat imports while leaving the barley market open is almost certain to shift Canadian Wheat Board marketing strategy to concentrate on the vulnerable U.S. barley market," said Lacy. "We feel the decision to exclude barley from the negotiated solution has placed barley production in the U.S. at extreme risk."

Grinding day at Old Mill Park Sept. 4

Grinding day when the historic old mill at Old Mill State Park will be in operation has been set for Sunday, September 4, with the Larson family mill to operate from 1 to 4 p.m. Mill stones will be turned with power from a steam engine on the grounds.

Fresh ground flour and wheat bran will be for sale at the site and pioneer life demonstrations of period dress, cow milking, weaving and butter churning will be given. Other activities are also planned.

The mill operation is conducted jointly by park staff and the Marshall County Historical Society. Visitors to the park can picnic, hike, swim and camp during the spring, summer and fall. During the winter the park is open to cross country skiing, sliding and snowmobiling with a shelter building available as a warm up site.

Theft of nitrous oxide no laughing matter to police

Police are looking for any information leading to solution of a burglary, which could have serious consequences for the burglar or burglars.

Early Friday morning police in Thief River Falls received a report that someone had broken into a local Dentist's office through a window. Nothing was missing except a tank of nitrous oxide (laughing gas), which had a value of about $90. Police are asking the public to contact them with any information regarding the burglary because if the gas is not mixed properly with other chemicals, it alone could be deadly, potentially fatal.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I read with much interest the feature story about postpolio syndrome in the August 6 issue of the Northern Watch. I don't get the paper, but my daughter does.

I am a victim of PPS and this is only the second time I have seen anything about it in a newspaper. The other time was in the Fergus Falls Daily Journal several years ago.

I don't think the Fosston doctors, even now, want to admit there is such a thing as PPS.

Thank-you
Helen Poppler
Fosston, MN

To the Editor:

The left wing liberal Republicans and Democrats are in a frenzy after losing elections or nominations by whopping margins. The conservatives and religious right have finally refused to sit by while our country goes to hell in a handbasket.

Since the liberals have dominated our government we have seen a moral and spiritual decline comparable to fallen empires of the past.

Day after day we see politicians including our President, and the mass media as peddlers of hate attacking conservatives and the religious right.

An early June Newsweek poll found that 75 per cent of Americans believe America's moral and spiritual values are being eroded and 72 per cent believe because of doubts about his character, President Bill Clinton is unable to meet the demands of his office.

In Minnesota former legislator Allen Quist muted Governor Arne Carlson in the state I-R convention. Carlson is a liberal Republican who favors abortion on demand, outcome-based education, distribution of condoms in schools, gun control, homosexual "rights" and more taxation. Media leftists blame Carlson's troubles on the hard right and his religious-based intolerance.

Very few people realize the terms right and left have been taken from the Bible. Chapter 10 of Ecclesiastes says a wise man's heart leads him to the right and a fool's heart leads him to the left.

Your's truly.
Arnold Honl
Roseau, MN.

Health Care Task Force Records Should Be Open

Just last week Federal district court Judge Royce Lamberth set a trial date for September 12 to decide whether the Clinton health Care Task Force must open its records to the public. It has been more than a year since the suit was brought against the task force by the American Council for Health Care Reform, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons and the National Legal and Policy Center.

The complaint alleges that the task force violated the open meetings provision of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (FACA) which was designed in 1972 by Congress to cover advisory groups such as the Clinton task force. The intent of Congress was that the identity of special interests in shaping public policy would be made public. It was good policy in 1972 and is even better policy now—if it is followed.

"The Clinton Administration has never been able to explain why its task force required such extraordinary secrecy to accomplish its mission," writes Joanna L. Shaker, RN, chief executive officer of the American Council for Health Care Reform (ACHCR), based in Arlington, VA.

"The Clinton Administration first defended its secret task force deliberations in 1993 on the grounds that all the task force members were employees of the federal government and therefore exempt from FACA. Only last week, government lawyers changed their defense strategy. They are now asserting that even though more than 350 task force participants were not government employees, the group did not really influence drafting of the Clinton legislation."

Shaker correctly questions the secrecy of the task force and Sen. George Mitchell's health care deliberations, as well as the rush to act on Mitchell's bill. Not only are the senators and the public uninformed as to which special interests had input into the proposed legislation, the senators have not been given time to read and study the provisions of the Mitchell bill.

"If President Clinton and his allies in the Congressional leadership are sincere in their desire to draft an intelligent and careful plan for health care reform," Shaker writes, "there is no reason to rush a vote before the secret task force records can be made public during the September trial.

"....Judge Lamberth has promised a quick five-day trial in September. Congress should delay final debate on any health care bill until the results of the trial are known in mid-September.."

There are acknowledged problems in the American health care system, but it still remains among the best in the world when viewed in its entirety. It makes no sense to scrap successful components in favor of an entirely new and untried system. It makes infinitely more sense to strengthen weaknesses and correct flaws while preserving the integrity of the overall system which in general works quite well.

And it is not necessary to make all corrections at one time. Defined problems addressed individually can be given concentrated attention that considers all aspects and results of change. Attempting to take on reform of the entire system creates such a complex situation that it is inevitable that more problems will be created than solved.

We don't like any aspect of government operations being conducted in secret, and we agree that people involved in government decision making should be identified. Secrecy automatically creates suspicion, and such suspicion is usually justified.

Disability Sensitivity—Common Sense Dealing With Common People

Dennis West, training coordinator for Options, a resource center for independent living in East Grand Forks, recently responded to a question from someone asking for suggestions to help overcome uncomfortable feelings when meeting a person with a disability.

"The first step is to recognize that people with disabilities are people—who just happen to have a disability," he said. And he offered the following suggestions form an article in the spring issue of the Dakota MS-enger to increase the comfort level:

(1) Speak to the person directly rather than to a companion who may be with him or her.

(2) If you are talking to a person who uses a wheelchair, avoid neck strain for both of you by standing a few feet away or by placing yourself at the wheelchair user's eye level.

(3) Don't be embarrassed if you use common expressions that seem to relate to the person's disability, such as "see you later" or "I've got to be running..."

(4) Don't touch equipment (such as a wheelchair or service animals) without having the permission of the owner. Assistive equipment is considered part of the body space of the people who use it. Working dogs especially should not be distracted from doing their jobs.

"Don't allow a person's disability to keep you from getting to know him or her," West says. "You just might miss an opportunity for making a life-long friend."

Quote of the Day:

"If you think health care is expensive now, just wait until it's free."

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

SOUPCON

Sherry LaCoursiere

I received several calls about the zucchini bar recipe last week. I took the recipes from an area newspaper and guess I should have known there was going to be something wrong with it when they spelled "flour" as "flower" — twice!

Anyway, here is the recipe the way several readers and I have decided to correct it, so throw away the other one — by the way, thanks to all of the readers who called to let me know there was something wrong with the recipe — nearly every one of them was in the middle of baking the bars before they noticed the mistakes:

ZUCCHINI BARS

3/4 cup softened butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup white sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 3/4 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 to 1 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup raisins
3/4 cup coconut
2 cups shredded zuccini, peeled or unpeeled
3/4 cup dates, cut up

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 10x15 inch pan and set aside.

Cream butter and sugars together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla and beat well.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt into creamed mixture, blending well.

Stir in remaining ingredients. Spread in prepared pan and bake about 35 minutes.

Is the weather starting to feel like a cookie jar full of these spicy cookies?

GINGER COOKIES

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup light molasses
1/2 tablespoon vinegar
1 beaten egg
3 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Bring shortening, sugar, molasses and vinegar to boiling. Cool and add egg.

Add sifted dry ingredients, mixing well. Chill.

Roll on lightly floured surface. Cut into desired shapes.

Bake on greased cookie sheet in 375 degree oven 12 to 15 minutes.

REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup brown sugar
3/4 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and sugars. Add egg and mix well.

Add vanilla and nuts, mixing, and then add dry ingredients.

Mix well and shape into rolls one and one-half inch in diameter. Place in refrigerator several hours or overnight.

Slice thin and bake on greased cookie sheet at 375 degrees for 10 minutes or until lightly browned.

(The recipe said to bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes, so you can try it that hot if you want to — I'm not going to.)

If you like dates, here is another recipe for bars with dates — this one better be correct — it is from a cookbook:

DATE BARS

3 beaten eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 1/2 cup cut up dates
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecans or walnuts

Beat eggs with sugar until very thick. Add sifted dry ingredients, beating smooth.

Add dates, vanilla and nuts.

Bake in greased or waxed paper lined 9x13 inch pan at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes.

Cut while warm. (Can roll bars in powdered sugar to make fancy-looking bars.)

One person was taken by ambulance to Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls following this accident. According to police, the accident was reported August 10 at 1:50 p.m. The accident happened when a car owned by Kimberly Wayne of route 1, Goodridge, and driven by Shirley Knoff of Thief River Falls, was going west on First Street and a car driven by Lizzie Kjersten, route 1, Badger, was going south on Arnold and entered First Street. Damage was estimated at $1,500 to the vehicle driven by Knoff, and $1,000 to the vehicle driven by Kjersten. Knoff complained of pain to her right knee and was taken by ambulance to Northwest Medical Center. Kjersten was cited for failure to yield to the right of way.

Elementary school start delayed feel very fortunate to be able to expect completion of the building by as early a date as September 19.

"When the school district's $18 million building project was first in the facility planning stages in 1992-93," he reminded those at the news conference, "It called for completion of the elementary school in December of 1994."

While the September 19 date has been established and all efforts point toward elementary classes starting that date, it is not a certainty.

"All of this depends upon whether or not the Certificate of Occupancy is granted by the city building inspector by that time," the superintendent said. He said that final inspections had to be completed and approval given by state inspectors in the areas of health, fire safety, electrical and plumbing before the building could be considered officially safe and the city's Certificate of Occupancy granted.

"Construction managers and architects are reasonably confident that the building will be ready for occupancy on Monday, September 19," he said. "There will be a couple of areas that may not be ready on that date, including the library and gymnasiums. Completion date for those areas will likely be closer to October 1."

Teachers will begin working in their rooms on September 6. One of the reasons students cannot start then is because all of the safety systems, such as fire alarms, need to be in place for the entire building before it can be used for students. Because of the design of the building, Supt. Duncan said, it is not possible to have all those systems ready by September 6.

Despite the late start, there is no change planned in the remainder of the school calendar for elementary students. Because the School District 564 school day is longer than required by state Department of Education minimum requirements, the district can "bank" enough extra time to allow the delayed opening without making up days or losing basic school aid.

Should further delay in the opening day transpire, however, some adjustments would have to be made in the school calendar later in the year to compensate for the lost days.

"We will make every effort to keep the public as informed as possible about the status of Challenger elementary school," Supt. Duncan said. "Given the previous experience in this district of holding classes in a number of temporary locations while waiting for school construction to be completed, we would also expect the public to be understanding of the situation."

Bill Huttinga, senior project manager for E & G, Inc., the architectural and engineering firm retained by the school district to oversee the project, said that parking lots and streets should be surfaced and ready for use prior to the start of school.

He also said that the electrical contractor and several other contractors had been working overtime for about the past month and a half in an attempt to have the building ready for occupancy, and that the building should be 98 to 99 per cent completed when students arrive September 19.

Glen Espe, elementary principal, said that projected opening day enrollment at Challenger is 1,065 students in pre-school through grade five. Accuracy of that projection won't be known until opening day actually arrives.

Lincoln High School

While there will still be some work to finish at Lincoln, the $2.8 million project there will be substantially completed. Athletic teams will begin using the new lockers on Monday, August 15.

Fitness center equipment will be moved into the new center soon. The music areas are completed except for some work to be done in the vocal area of the facility.

Faculty at Lincoln will begin work in the building on August 29 and students will begin classes on schedule September 6.

Franklin Middle School

Faculty at Franklin middle school will also begin work in that building Monday, August 29, and students will attend beginning September 6.

All classrooms will be ready for classes, according to Franklin principal Bill Hahne, but there will be delays in the media/library, band, choir and orchestra rooms and the new multi-purpose room. He said that alternate spaces can be arranged within the building to accommodate music instruction until those new rooms are completed.

Supt. Duncan said that all three projects—Challenger, Lincoln and Franklin—remain within budget.

Schmitz to seek post of R.L. Auditor

Bob Schmitz, a lifetime resident of Red Lake Falls, has announced his candidacy for Red Lake County Auditor.

Schmitz has a bachelor's degree in accounting from Moorhead State University and has been employed in the accounting field since 1978. He is currently employed with Stuhaug & Smeby PA in Red Lake Falls.

He and his wife, the former Marlys Huot of St. Hilaire, have two pre-school sons and are expecting their third child in November.

Absentee vote procedure for primary noted

"Any voter in Minnesota who will be absent from the precinct or unable to go to the polling place due to illness, physical disability, religious observance or service as an election judge in another precinct may vote by absentee ballot," states Secretary of State Joan Growe in discussing absentee balloting for the September 13 primary election.

County auditors will have extended office hours for absentee voting prior to election day. Their offices will be open on Saturday, September 10, from 1 to 3 p.m. and Monday, September 12, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Eligible voters may request an absentee ballot application from their county auditor or municipal clerk. The last day to submit an application for absentee ballots is Monday, September 12, at 7 p.m.

Visually-impaired voters may receive absentee voting instructions in Braille, audio cassette or in large type format from the county auditor. Eligible voters in health care facilities located in the municipality where they reside may obtain an absentee ballot application from election judges who will visit the facility during the 10 days prior to election day.

Voters should contact their county auditor or municipal clerk for additional information concerning absentee voting in the primary.

THERE'S SOME CONFUSION ABOUT THE NI-CD BATTERY CHARGER.
Some customers have complained that the charger only puts out 10 to 11 volts without a load (instead of the rated 18 volts) which, they believe, provides an insufficient charge to the batteries. While that's not incorrect, it's only part of the story. Here's the rest.
If you measure the transformer's voltage while it's charging, you'll find it really measures about 18 volts! The reason: it uses a half-wave rectifier (as opposed to full wave), which has an unusual waveform that can't be accurately measured out of circuit.

The horse purchased a year ago for an experimental 4-H club horse project in Pennington county was sold at the county fair market sale for $1,525 to George Hanson of Hallock. The horse was trained and cared for by Cindy Carter, county horse project leader for the past year. The original intent was to have 4-H members train and show the horse, but because of the time commitment required to work with an untrained horse, the goal was not met. Another horse will not be purchased, according to Van Swanson, county extension educator for 4-H. He thanked Cindy Carter for her excellent work in preparing this horse for sale.

The Dodgers, a Thief River Falls park and recreation baseball team for 11 and 12-year-olds, won the division championship last week. There were 12 teams in the division. Soo Line train collides with vehicle east of TRF

Pennington county sheriff's department received a report of a car and train accident August 11 at 4:50 p.m.

According to the sheriff's department report, Phyllis Irene Koropatnicki was driving a 1982 Pontiac Firebird east on County road 7, one mile east of County road 17 when she saw a train on the railroad tracks coming out from behind some trees. She attempted to stop but was unable to stop in time and the Soo Line train hit the front right corner of the car. The train whistle had been sounded and the lights were on. The train was traveling at about 40 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

There were no injuries. Damage to the car was estimated at over $500.

City, county select separate architects

Cooperation between the city council and county commissioners was seen as a way to solve problems in a manner most advantageous to taxpayers.

Despite these good intentions, and many meetings to discuss ADA requirements at the city auditorium and county courthouse, it now appears that the two governmental units are trying to solve the ADA conundrum independently.

Tuesday afternoon, county commissioners selected the architectural firm of Foss Associates to study how to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). Tuesday evening, the city council selected the architectural firm of Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke Welch.

Tuesday night, city councilmen were at a loss to explain how this had happened. After all, a subcommittee consisting of city councilmen, county commissioners, and their respective engineering department representatives, interviewed four architectural firms which had been chosen from a list of nine that had responded to a request for proposals. The selection committee agreed upon a method of ranking the finalists during interviews and one firm received the highest rank. The selection committee ranked Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke and Welch as the number one firm. Foss Associates was ranked second. So why did the county board select Foss Associates?

In a letter to the city's Administrative Services Committee, Alderman Milt Burstad wrote, "In the interview process it was brought to the attention of all consultants that there may be a need for individual access as opposed to a common building between the courthouse and city auditorium. One firm had a model of both buildings with a proposed addition with elevator and ramps shown to all floors at both buildings. The elevator and ramps seemed to occupy the major area of each floor on the proposed addition with long hallways showing no use but for the projected handicap usage. Yaeter and Shultz during the interview process indicated that they felt an ideal placement of an elevator in the courthouse would be at the main entrance to the building. They had no recommendation for the city auditorium without more study. They stated, as well as the other consultants, that they felt there would be minimum usage of an entrance between the two buildings with the existing entrances left in place on both buildings."

But the selection of independent architectural firms could also be a result of a misunderstanding. In a letter to county commissioners, Delton Schulz, county engineer, wrote: "Two different processes were used in the evaluation and subsequent selection. After careful deliberation, the committee recommends that the county commission and city council make a final determination of a firm between the two entities of Foss Associates, and Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke Welch."

In an interview Wednesday, Ken Murphy, chairman of the county board, said the fact that two separate firms were chosen is not a big issue. He explained that the county board was more comfortable dealing with a firm it had had a successful relationship with in the past. What the county board wants to do, he said, is make sure that if they are going to spend over a million dollars on a project, that they do things right. He added the county board and city will get together and solve the problem.

At the city council meeting, Alderman Don Barron was angry when he asked, "What are we going to get from what firm, and what is the county going to get from what firm?" He said he found the situation very confusing.

The city council's recommendation was to have their firm prepare a conditions survey and develop a program document prior to planning for ADA compliance construction.

When Barron asked whether that included a feasibility study of a common building, he was told "no".

Alderman Frank Hamerlinck asked how this would impact the city when the January 26 ADA compliance deadline passed?

Alderman Burstad said that it was his understanding that as long as the city was working on plans to comply there would be no penalty because there is no method of enforcing the penalty.

■ The city council has implemented a strategic planning process for the city police department and fire department.

A major recommendation from the DMG study, which involved a restructuring of city government, was to implement a strategic management process. In its study of city government, DMG found:

- That needs assessments, for the most part, are not undertaken for the various departments of the city;
- Goals are not formulated for a majority of departments;
- The budget process includes the review of the department's proposed budget but the analysis appears to be primarily focused on financial information rather than services;
- Management reports by department heads tend to be oral reports at council meetings while other provide year-end summaries;
- An employee performance appraisal process does not exist.

DMG recommended that the city implement elements of a strategic management process. Key components include community driven service needs assessments, detailed goals and objectives, a budget system that links service levels and funding, and an evaluation and management reporting system.

The mayor suggested starting with the police and fire department because of their high visibility.

■ An audit of the city's financial statements did not find any significant errors or irregularities.

Tom Kays of Anderson, Poissant, Kays & Co. presented an overview of the city's annual financial report. Kays concluded that the city has seen a lot of activity in the past year, but perservered. Growth in city funds have been steady and he found no significant problems. He added that city staff were easy to work with and willing to accept criticism constructively. Copies of the report are available at the office of city clerk.

■ City engineering services director Roe Lindberg has been instructed to work with Delton Schulz, county engineer, to identify problems at the fairgrounds.

The city council approved a recommendation to appoint Lindberg to work with Schulz regarding the fairgrounds. Lindberg explained that it involved developing a master plan. He said the county is in the process of getting a topographic study completed. The study is being conducted because of what several councilmen described as a lot of good ideas they saw in a letter from Art Heinze.

■ The water towers in Thief River Falls will be inspected.

The city council approved a recommendation to hire AEC Engineering to conduct inspections of the city's watertowers. The company will inspect the inside and outside of the towers. Water in the towers when the inside inspection is conducted will be flushed through the storm sewer. Arlo Rude, superintendent of utilities, said he believes the two towers will have to be re-painted very soon, and noted that lead paint had been used to paint each tower.

In other business, the council: appointed Ken Froschheiser to a five year term as police chief; rejected bids for the reservoir project at the airport; awarded a bid for the 1994 water and sewer extension project; approved placement of a stop sign at Centennial and Oak, and a yield sign at Cartway and Sherwood; tabled discussion of amending the parking violation ordinance; approved a list of election judges and polling places for the primary and general election; approved a request to advertise for a park and maintenance worker; approved a request to advertise for two liquor store workers; approved the park and recreation director job description and referred it to the Administrative Services Committee for a DBM job description format; approved membership in the International Coalition for Red River Basin Land/Water Stewardship; hired a company to conduct monthly and annual inspections of the water treatment plant freight elevator; approved bids for the purchase of street lights, but rejected bids for the street poles; and approved the city administrator DMB job description and evaluation by Ernst and Young.

National wildlife refuge compatible use study underway...

Refuge use will be unchanged this fall

No hunting programs on national wildlife refuges will be halted this fall, it was announced recently by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Director Mollie Beattie.

"I wish to clarify this situation for the many sportsmen and women who have become concerned by the inaccurate reports that the Fish and Wildlife Service is planning to end hunting on national wildlife refuges," Beattie said.

"The Service must continue with its review of refuge funding and compatibility issues, but will not be making any final decisions until late this year," Beattie said. "Any changes I propose to make in the refuge public uses as a result of our funding review will be submitted to the Congress for review according to the rules of the sppropriations process. In addition, we will involve the states and the affected public before proceeding on any decisions that affect public use or refuges," Beattie said.

"I want to emphasize that the Fish and Wildlife Service has not changed its longstanding policy of supporting compatible outdoor recreation such as hunting and fishing within the National Wildlife Refuge System," Beattie said. "Hunters and anglers have been in the vanguard of the wildlife conservation movement since its very beginning, and have willingly provided enormous financial support for wildlife management programs. There is no way we are going to turn our back on this vital constituency."

About half of the 499 refuges are open to hunting and fishing.

Beattie said the public concerns are being generated by two separate reviews the Fish and Wildlife Service is conducting – the "compatibility" of recreational and economical activities permitted on national wildlife refuges, and refuge funding.

Compatibility review is being conducted by refuge managers to comply with federal requirements, and to meet terms of a compatibility lawsuit settlement agreement. The lawsuit, settled in October 1993, was brought against the Fish and Wildlife Service by several environmental groups who charged that contrary to the requirements of federal wildlife refuge law, the Service was permitting recreational and economic activities on refuges that were not compatible with the purposes for which those refuges were established.

Under the Refuge System Administration Act and the Refuge Recreation Act, activities are not to be allowed within wildlife refuges unless they have first been found to be compatible with the purpose for which the refuge was established. Refuge managers are now making these required compatibility findings in writing. The refuge managers also must certify in writing that adequate funds are available to manage recreational programs that are not directly related to the primary purposes and functions for which a refuge was established.

"The fact is, the Service has made compatibility and funding determinations about recreational programs on refuges for years," Beattie said. "The difference now is that we are making sure we have all of these determinations in writing. I also want to stress that the compatibility review applies to all economic and recreation activities on refuges, not just hunting and fishing. We do not expect this review to turn up more than a small handful of wildlife-dependent recreation programs that are incompatible."

Beattie said the Service is also conducting a review of refuge funding because the 91 million-acre National Wildlife Refuge System is experiencing strains brought about by the growing number of new refuges and environmental mandates and other increases in the costs of doing business. As a result, the Service has been reviewing activities on the refuges to ensure the limited funds and staff as being used to address the highest priority fish and wildlife conservation needs.

Beattie said she has instructed regional directors not to stoff 30 recently established national wildlife refuges and to leave some staff positions at existing refuges and central offices vacant until further notice, in order to focus resources on high priority activities at existing refuges.

"In the past, we have often taken money from established refuges to meet the costs of opening new refuges. This practice simply robs Peter to pay Paul," explained Beattie.

However, Beattie said the Fish and Wildlife Service will continue to acquire land as authorized by the Congress and the Cabinet-level Migratory Bird Conservation Commission.

"Often the opportunity to acquire important wildlife habitat comes along only once, and you must take advantage of those opportunities when they occur," Beattie said. "Therefore, we do not believe it would be wise to halt our land acquisition program, and we will continue to acquire lands for those authorized refuges."

The National Wildlife Refuge System presently includes 499 national wildlife refuges, 51 coordination areas, and many waterfowl production areas that together encompass some 91 million acres throughout the United States, its commonwealths, and territories.

The refuge system has grown by more than 3.6 million acres and 76 new refuges in the last decade. While operational funding has nearly doubled during this period, from $64.6 million in Fiscal Year 1984 to $112.4 million in Fiscal Year 1994, purchasing power per refuge has been eroded by inflation, start-up costs for the new refuges, and other factors, despite efforts made by the Service to save funds through reduced travel, deferral of equipment replacement, and other actions. Although some refuges generate entrance and user fees, in fact these revenues equal less than 1 percent of the annual budget of the refuge system. Also, these fee programs are often costly and inefficient to administer.

Refuge open for hunting

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has announced that Rydell National Wildlife Refuge will be opened to limited white-tailed deer hunting beginning with the 1994 deer huntings eason. The 2,120-acre refuge, which is administered by the wildlife service as part of the National Wildlife Refuge system, is located near the cities of Erskine and Mentor.

The refuge and surrounding area attracts an especially large population of white-tailed deer. In recent years, the deer population has become so large that wildlife habitat is being damaged on the refuge and neighboring farmers are experiencing extensive crop losses.

To manage the deer herd, the service is opening the refuge to limited white-tailed deer hunting. The main body of the refuge will be opened to antlerless deer hunting by special permit during the state's 4A and 4B firearms seasons. Thirty special permits to take antlerless deer will be issued for each hunting season. Management permits to take one additional antlerless deer per hunter will also be available to those who receive the special permits. In addition, three small tracts on the periphery of the refuge will be opened to all archery and firearms deer hunting that is legal in hunting zone 4.

Hunters may apply for this hunt by following the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Special Permit Hunt application instructions outlined in the 1994 Minnesota Hunting and Tropping Regulations booklet. For more information, contact the Detroit Lakes Wetland Management District Office at 1-800-529-7576

Minnesota Deer Hunters Association, Thief River Falls Chapter, donated 13 video tapes on hunting and gun safety to the Thief River Falls public library recently. Money for the video tapes were raised through a local fund-raising raffle. Pictured above, Dana Klosa of the Deer Hunters, presents the video tapes to Haidi Hoks of the public library.

Licenses and regulations are available for Minnesota deer season

Minnesota's 1994 regulations, deer hunting licenses, and applications for antlerless permits and special hunts are now available from county auditor offices, license vendors, and the Department of Natural Resources' License Bureau at 500 Lafayette Road in St. Paul.

The application deadline for antlerless permits and special hunts is Thursday, September 8, except that applications for the Camp Ripley archery hunt must be received by August 19.

The firearms deer season will open November 5. The archery deer season will open September 17, and the muzzleloader deer season November 26.

A total of 199,650 antlerless permits are being offered, down 15 per cent from last year, but still the third highest total ever in Minnesota. Compared to 1993, permit numbers are down about 34 per cent in Zone 1 (northeastern Minnesota), down 17 per cent in Zone 2 (northwestern to east-central transition areas), down 20 per cent in Zone 3 (southeastern Minnesota), and down three per cent in Zone 4 (southern and western Minnesota). In addition, there are 38 special hunts being offered to archery, firearms, muzzleloader hunters in parks and refuges that are not normally open to hunting and where hunter numbers must be limited.

Hunters who applied for either an antlerless permit or firearms special hunt in 1993 have been mailed a DNR postcard with a peel-off label for use on the permit application form. These labels are bar-coded. Hunters are encouraged by the DNR to use the labels to minimize the possibility of errors and reduce data entry costs. Hunters are also encouraged to mail their permits early to avoid the last-minute rush, and to reduce the chances of applications being lost or misplaced in the mail.

A preference system will be used to draw successful applicants for both antlerless and special hunt permits.

The most significant regulation changes for deer hunters this fall:

- Blaze orange is required for all hunters and trappers in areas open by law or ordinance for firearms deer hunting; red is no longer a legal color.
- The muzzleloader season is now statewide, except for areas closed to protect yarding deer.
- Restrictions on possession of firearms capable of taking deer have been relaxed for the muzzleloader season.
- New "Intensive Harvest Permits" allow taking of additional deer in some urban and special areas.
- Archery deer license no longer must be purchased before the firearms season.
- Archers are no longer restricted to bucks-only during the firearms deer season.
- Pennington county has been added to the experimental two-deer area in the northwest.
- A person with disabilities who has a permit to shoot from a motor vehicle may take a deer of either sex, but party hunting is restricted.
- Non-residents may now obtain multi-zone buck licenses.
- Antlerless permit areas 170-174 and 244-245 have been subdivided.

Organ donations increase in upper midwest

LifeSource, the organ donation program for Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, has announced that the number of organ donors during the first six months of 1994 increased more than 40 per cent compared to last year at this same time. As of June 30, 1994, LifeSource reported 82 people within the three-state region became organ donors compared with 57 people who became donors during the same period in 1993.

LifeSource believes the increase in organ donors this year is due, in large part, to the hospitals in the region who support organ donation and call LifeSource with potential organ donor referrals. Organ donation referrals have increased substantially, not only from metropolitan hospitals in the larger cities within the region, but also from the smaller hospitals throughout North Dakota, South Dakota, and Minnesota.

In addition, more hospital staff members are realizing the benefits organ donation offers to grieving families who have lost a loved one. According to Susan Gunderson, executive director of LifeSource, "Surveys tell us again and again that family members appreciate the opportunity of organ donation because it often helps them through their grieving process. It helps make something positive out of something tragic. Many families are comforted by the fact that their loved one hasn't died in vain because the donation has helped give others a second chance at life through organ transplantation."

The increase in the number of organ donors correlates to an increase in organ transplants performed in the region. Within the first six months of 1994, a total of 272 transplants were performed in the Upper Midwest. This number compares with 223 transplants in the region within the first six months of 1993.

Although the increase in the number of donors and transplants is encouraging, the numbers are far less than what is needed for the more than 35,000 Americans who are on the national organ transplant waiting list. Within the three-state region alone, nearly 1,000 people are currently waiting for organ transplants and approximately 8 people across the country die each day waiting.

Become a donor is as easy as telling your family your wishes," added Gunderson. "Noting your wishes on your drivers license or signing a donor card are good steps but it's important to remember that they serve only as indications of your wishes. In the case of organ donation, next of kin give the final consent. That's why it's so important to tell loved ones of your decision so they are better prepared to honor your request."

LifeSources is the non-profit, federally designated organ procurement organization for the Upper Midwest and its headquartered in Minneapolis with regional offices in Rochester, Fargo, Bismarck, and Sioux Falls. For more information about organ donation, call 1-800-24-SHARE.

"Welcome Home" signs and a vehicle cavalcade were happy sights when the youth who attended the ELCA Youth Gathering in Atlanta, GA, returned home. After two weeks of travel kids and chaperones were delighted to be home and had plenty to talk about.

shown on the big screen several times. They blamed the exposure on the fact that they were wearing tie-dyed T-shirts that they had made themselves especially for the trip. The T-shirts also aided in keeping track of one another in the huge crowd.

The Jay Beech band performed at the event that first night. Afterward, it took everyone nearly an hour to get to the subway so they could return to the motel.

The following morning, devotions and Bible study were held at the Nikko hotel, followed by a selection of workshops. Some chose to tour CNN to watch a live news broadcast, some toured the Martin Luther King Airborne Center, others toured the Coca Cola factory or the Georgia World Congress Center.

Several chose to enjoy or take part in a floor hockey tournament at Noah's Park in the World Congress Center. Another event was a trip to the underground mall.

In the afernoon, the group returned to the Georgia Dome to hear Boua Sy Ly Huneycut speak, and found a downpour when they left to begin the trip back to the motel.

Friday's events also began with Bible study at the Nikko hotel followed by a free time. The afternoon session at the Dome included Tony Campolo, who talked abut dedication and service to Christ.

Everyone then went to another gathering called "The Party of Your Life," which featured bands, displays and all types of music. As a grand finale to the party, 17,000 balloons were released over the crowd.

After Bible study at the Nikko Hotel, everyone enjoyed the big floor hockey tournament finale. The sticks that were used were shaped like field hockey sticks, and a whiffle ball was used for a puck. To the delight of all from northwestern Minnesota, the team from Thief River Falls won the tournament.

At the Dome that evening, Martin Luther King's daughter, Bernice King, was the featured speaker. Kim Peterson said she felt that King's talk was the highlight of the event and most of the others thought so too. "When everyone in the Dome started clapping for her, my insides just shook," she said.

Sunday, July 24, was the last day of the youth gathering. Homilist was former ELCA vice president, Christine Grumm. The contemporary worship service was put together by Jay Beech, concluding with Holy Communion.

After the finale, the Pathways group, tired, but happy and uplifted, headed back home to St. Hilaire. The Thief River Falls group boarded the buses for Orlando, Florida.

The major stop in Orlando was the Hard Rock Cafe, where waiters sang and danced to, what else, rock music. On to Trinity Lutheran church in Kissummee for a much-needed rest.

On Monday, alarms went off at 7 a.m., but seven hours of sleep were a treat for some, since most of the group had been averaging only four to six hours of sleep a night.

At 10 a.m. the crew boarded the bus for the Magic Kingdom of Disney World. Splash Mountain, exciting rides, pictures taken with Disney characters, fun, food and gift shops were just a few of the attractions for the youth. The SpectroMagic Light Show and parade were both hits.

Tuesday the group was on the way to Daytona Beach to swim and have more fun in the sun. As soon as the bus stopped, the midwestern kids ran for the ocean. They said the best things about it were the warm sun, white sand and a taste of the salt water. Several enjoyed riding boogie boards.

Under light-hearted protest, the group boarded the bus for a long, eight-hour trip back to Stone Mountain. Trouble struck before the group left Stone Mountain, however, when it was discovered that one of the buses needed repairs.

After departing from Stone Mountain two hours late, they were on their way to Fishers, Indiana, and then onward to Eau Claire, Wisconsin. Home was getting nearer and nearer and most of the kids, despite wanting to get home, were beginning to hate to see the trip end.

Pastor Ron Calven wrote a brief summary of his view of the trip, no doubt also expressing the feelings of Kim Peterson and many of the others who gave their time and talents in chaperoning youngsters to the gathering:

This, the last day of the trip, is filled with anticipation of getting back to our families and friends, most importantly getting off the buses.

Everyone is still civil to each other but the natives are getting restless. Everyone has cooperated and worked well with each other throughout the trip. The word, "community," has taken on a new meaning for me. After traveling for the past 14 days with 92 persons, my awareness of what it means to be "together" has been tested, stretched, and even changed somewhat.

(We were) tested in that it was a whole new ball game traveling to a large city with 92 (people.) You just aren't in control! If we thought we could be, those pipe dreams were thrown out the first evening. But amazingly, we did all arrive, where we were supposed to, each time.

My awareness of community was stretched by the fact that folks who come from a variety of different backgrounds and who have several different agendas can, if they want to, come together and work together.

This was hard for me because I was still viewing most of these young folks the same way as I did when I first arrived in Thief River Falls five years ago — as kids. But they proved me wrong. They are young adults who have made good chances.

As I said, we had no choice but to trust because of the size of the group. But they responded well to the trust we gave them.

And finally, my awareness of community has changed, because before I always operated under the assumption that "community" took a long time to develop, that trust was something earned.

These youth, with the help of our Lord's guidance, have come together quickly, depending on each other and working together. If only we could share their willingness to risk and reach out to one another! We, the older generation, I suppose, could and still can learn from this.

The parents of these young people can be happy and proud of their sons and daughters because they have represented them well.

Our reception back in Thief River, with "Welcome Home" signs along the highway and an auto escort waiting for us, was a great sight to behold. We were really missed. It's great to be back home.

Amen.

SWCD filings are open

Candidates for supervisor in the state's 91 soil and water conservation districts may file for election until September 8, according to the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources.

Soil and water conservation district lines usually coincide with the county's boundaries. One of the exceptions is the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD with offices in Grygla which serves parts of both Marshall and Beltrami counties.

In that district this year, the term of Oliver Howland expires and he has announced he will not seek reelection. Howland, 92, has served on the board since the district was organized in 1950. He represents the Beltrami county townships of Hamre, Steenerson, Minnie and Spruce Grove and four townships in the Beltrami Island State Forest which are unnamed.

In Pennington county Harry Hanson of Trail has not decided yet whether he will seek another six-year term. He represents the townships of Goodridge, Reiner, Star and Hickory.

Two supervisors will be elected in Red Lake county's soil and water conservation district. The term of Ron Weiss of Red Lake Falls expires in the district including Lake Pleasant and Terrebonne townships. Dave Miller of Red Lake Falls was appointed to fill an unexpired term in the district including Oervais, River and Emardville townships and an election will be held to fill the last two years of that term.

In the Marshall County SWCD, which has offices in Warren, the term of Leonard Yutrzenka of Argyle expires this year. Yutrzenka serves the townships of Wright, East Park, Lincoln, Nelson Park, New Maine, Wanger and West Valley and the City of Strandquist.

And in Roseau county the term of Jay Estling of Roosevelt expires. Estling, who succeeded his father on the SWCD board, represents the townships of Lake, Moranville and Laona.

Candidates for supervisor on soil and water conservation district boards must have residence in the specific parts of the districts listed, although all residents of the county are eligible to vote in the SWCD election. Supervisors are elected for six-year terms.

SWCD supervisors must determine local conservation priorities and allocate funding based upon those priorities. Some of the programs administered by SWCDs in different areas of the state include Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) Reserve, a land set-aside program; the state cost-share program, which pays part of the cost for landowners to install conservation practices, the water planning program, under which local leaders develop and carry out plans to protect and improve water quality; a tree-selling and/or planting program and others.

Supervisors meet monthly to conduct SWCD business. They do not receive a salary but are compensated for meeting attendance and reimbursed for expenses.

Anyone eligible and interested in filing to run in the November 8 election should contact their local SWCD office by September 8. Telephone numbers include the following: Pennington County SWCD, 681-3348; Marshall County SWCD, 745-5010; Marshall-Beltrami SWCD, 294-614?; Red Lake County SWCD, 253-2593; and Roseau County SWCD, ?63-1903.

Construction in TRF moves ahead

Latest obstacle to traffic in downtown Thief River Falls should have been cleared away by Friday provided things go much better than they did Tuesday.

Mike Miller, superintendent of the project, explained Wednesday morning that just about everything that could go wrong at Third and Davis project in front of the old Soo Line Depot Monday went wrong.

Part of the 1994 street and utility project includes replacement of a water line beneath the railroad tracks. This involves removing a section of the road and tunneling underneath the railroad tracks.

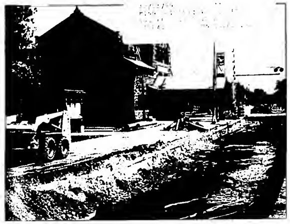
Miller explained that the construction crew working on the project ran into some difficulties when they were tunneling under the railroad tracks.

Ron Lindberg, engineering services director, said they had received a request to close the intersection at Third and Davis. He said a compromise was reached and no right of left turns will be allowed by trucks. Cars can still make a left turn onto Davis. Lindberg said they prefer that traffic avoid turning at the intersection and use Atlantic instead.

Traffic, however, was also encountering obstacles at Atlantic and Horace, one block further west. Motorists and pedestrians are being asked to exercise caution and to be patient.

Construction crews are also working on an intersection at LaBree and Second. Miller said that by Friday they should begin the sub-cut for the 100 block of LaBree. He said, they should have gravel in by Wednesday of next week.

Miller said they have encountered only a few complaints about utilities at downtown business. The problems were minor and basically involved someone forgetting to turn on water or someone accidentally turning off water.



Lindberg said the public has been very patient, perhaps too patient. He encourages anyone with a problem to contact his office or construction workers if problems with utilities develop.

Despite work on utilities, fire protection is still available to downtown business. Fire hydrants are operational.

Miller said construction workers might begin work in the 200 block of LaBree next week.

Miller said hopefully, Horace will be passable before work begins in the 200 block of LaBree.

Construction crews in Thief River Falls were busy replacing a water line near the Soo Line depot last week. They met with some difficulty digging under the railroad tracks earlier in the week, and expect to be done with the project sometime next week. Trucks are not being allowed to turn onto Davis from Third and other motorists are being asked to use Atlantic or another north and south route instead of Davis.

Ammonia tanker overturns in Stephen

Stephen — 20,780 tons of anhydrous ammonia could have forced evacuation of the city of Stephen when an anhydrous tanker overturned in front of the Cenex station on Wednesday afternoon. However, the safety valves on the tanker worked properly and contained the gas. The driver of the truck, Clint Uhrich of St. Paul, had backed onto the highway and then proceeded to try to reenter the station lot when the back wheels of the truck slipped into the ditch, causing the load to shift and the vehicle to turn over on its side. The weight of the truck and recent rains caused the truck to slide into the ditch, according to Bill Bartels, manager of Cenex. The Stephen police, volunteer ambulance and fire department were dispatched to the scene and the tank was emptied of its load. No one was injured in the incident.

Firearms transfer questions arise

Effective August 1, the laws in Minnesota regarding the purchase and carrying of firearms came into compliance with the Brady Law.

For the past year, gun dealers and law enforcement officials have been snowed-under a pile of state and federal firearm registration requirements. Much of the paperwork was created because of conflicts between state law and the Brady Bill.

Confusion over some of the requirements of the law was eliminated when the state adopted provisions of the Brady Bill. Nevertheless problems exist that gun owners and dealers should be aware of.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser explained that newly amended state law still allows automatic purchase when an individual is in possession of a one-year permit to purchase.

There were many differences including separate forms for the state and federal government. The Brady Bill said anyone convicted of a felony was prohibited from the purchase of a firearm. Minnesota state law said individuals were prohibited from purchase of a firearm only if they had been convicted of a crime of violence. An example of where the laws came into conflict could be seen when an individual was convicted of felony theft of a motor vehicle. Under Minnesota law, the individual would still be eligible to purchase a firearm if their rights had been reinstated.

These conflicts were always resolved with federal law taking precedence.

Firearm dealers are still required to fill out forms and bring them to the police or sheriff's department for a records check. The dealer is required to wait five days before issuing the handgun, unless a permit to purchase has already been obtained. If the police or sheriff's department does not respond to the records check, the dealer can issue the weapon. If officers find a violation or something in the individual's background that would prohibit transfer of the handgun to the purchaser, they will contact the firearm dealer and inform them not to transfer title.

Individuals can still obtain a permit to purchase which is good for one year. The waiting period for this permit is seven days.

Police Chief Froschheiser noted some interesting difficulties arising out of the legislation. Students, for example, who move to Thief River Falls to attend school, cannot obtain a permit to purchase here. They have to obtain a permit to purchase where they have established residency.

Another example would be if a resident goes anywhere else in Minnesota and goes into a shop and decides to purchase a weapon, they won't be able to take it with them.

How does all of this effect the private individual who wishes to sell a gun to a friend, acquaintance or at a gun show? Police Chief Froschheiser advises individuals to obtain the proper forms at the law enforcement center to sell the weapons and to follow the laws for transfer of firearms.

Under the Brady Bill — and now in Minnesota — an individual who transfers a handgun or semiautomatic military-style assault weapon to another individual without conducting a background check and filing the proper forms, can be charged with a crime if that individual goes out and commits a crime with the firearm.

Specifically, the law states that "a person, other than a federally licensed firearms dealer, who transfers a pistol or semiautomatic military-style assault weapon to another without complying with the transfer requirements . . . is guilty of a gross misdemeanor if the transferee possesses or uses the weapon within one year after the transfer in furtherance of a felony crime of violence, and if the transferee was prohibited from possessing the weapon under the law at the time of the transfer; or it was reasonably foreseeable at the time of the transfer that the transferee was likely to use or possess the weapon in furtherance of a felony crime of violence."

The Minnesota Uniform Firearm Application/Receipt Transferee Permit or Report of Transfer for Firearms requires the applicant to sign a Data Practices Act advisory, which informs the applicant that the information on the form will be used to conduct a background check. It informs the applicant that they may refuse, but if the investigation cannot be completed, it will result in the application not being processed. In addition, the form requires the applicant to authorize a release of commitment information, which authorizes the Commissioner of Human Services to disclose commitment information as it relates to eligibility to possess a handgun or semiautomatic military style assault weapon.

Chief Froschheiser noted that the information contained in the application can only be kept for 30 days before having to be destroyed, which he finds disturbing because it places his office in the position of proving that the applicant should have received a permit of the applicant goes out and commits a crime with a firearm.

Several restrictions are listed at the end of the form. Many of the restrictions answer questions asked in the application. The application lists the following restrictions:

'Building Better Business' theme for TRF seminar

To assist community business people in gaining new expertise in building a better business, The Times is sponsoring a "Building a Better Business" seminar on Thursday, September 15, at the Best Western Inn with a choice of two sessions offered.

Participating businesses may be represented at an 8:30 a.m. session at which coffee, juice and rolls will be served, or a 4:30 p.m. session at which a salad bar or soup and sandwich with beverage will be available.

Presenting the information and ideas at the seminar will be Peter W. Wagner, a nationally acclaimed business and community promotional expert. Using local and area examples, he will discuss selecting a proper media mix for advertising, improving a business firm's image, producing better advertising and community promotions that build business.

"It is rare that community business people have an opportunity to hear a presentation of the professional caliber Peter Wagner offers without having to travel a long dis-

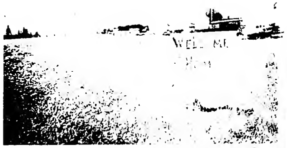
At the end of last week the 100 block of LaBree Avenue in Thief River Falls was really a mess as construction crews were in the midst of replacing the street and utilities under the street. They hope to have Horace Avenue completely open to traffic before they begin on the 200 block of LaBree Avenue. It may be another week before they begin that phase.

City and county select architect

Representatives of the Thief River Falls City Council and Pennington County board of commissioners met Tuesday afternoon to discuss selection of an architect to address the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) needs of both units of government. Independent action the previous week seemed to indicate that the two governmental units were going to attempt to solve their ADA problems independently as they had approved hiring of different architect firms.



Possible solutions to ADA, which requires compliance by January 26, 1995, included a building between the city auditorium and the county courthouse, and/or elevators and ramps at each building. For months the two units of government have been discussing the matter and recently appointed a selection committee to interview four architectural firms which had been chosen from a list of nine.

The selection committee agreed upon a method of ranking the finalists during interviews and one firm received the highest ranking — Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke and Welch. The firm of Foss Associates was ranked number two.

One week ago Tuesday, the county commissioners selected the firm of Foss Associates, but the city council selected Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke and Welch.

Tuesday, representatives of the city council and county board held a joint meeting and ironed out differences of opinion. The county rescinded its earlier motion, and approved a motion to accept the firm of Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke and Welch as the architectural firm to study ADA needs.

The fact that one firm will be working on solutions to the ADA problems for both governmental units, does not automatically mean that the proposed building between the city auditorium and county courthouse will be built. The firm will exam many different options and the final decision as to which option to select, will be up to the representatives of the two units of government.

"Welcome Home" signs and a vehicle cavalcade were happy sights when the youth who attended the ELCA Youth Gathering in Atlanta, GA, returned home. After two weeks of travel kids and chaperones were delighted to be home and had plenty to talk about.

shown on the big screen several times. They blamed the exposure on the fact that they were wearing tie-dyed T-shirts that they had made themselves especially for the trip. The T-shirts also aided in keeping track of one another in the huge crowd.

The Jay Beech band performed at the event that first night. Afterward, it took everyone nearly an hour to get to the subway so they could return to the motel.

The following morning, devotions and Bible study were held at the Nikko hotel, followed by a selection of workshops. Some chose to tour CNN to watch a live news broadcast, some toured the Martin Luther King Airborne Center, others toured the Coca Cola factory or the Georgia World Congress Center.

Several chose to enjoy or take part in a floor hockey tournament at Noah's Park in the World Congress Center. Another event was a trip to the underground mall.

In the afternoon, the group returned to the Georgia Dome to hear Boua Sy Ly Huneycut speak, and found a downpour when they left to begin the trip back to the motel.

Friday's events also began with Bible study at the Nikko hotel followed by a free time. The afternoon session at the Dome included Tony Campolo, who talked abut dedication and service to Christ.

Everyone then went to another gathering called "The Party of Your Life," which featured bands, displays and all types of music. As a grand finale to the party, 17,000 balloons were released over the crowd.

After Bible study at the Nikko Hotel, everyone enjoyed the big floor hockey tournament finale. The sticks that were used were shaped like field hockey sticks, and a whiffle ball was used for a pock. To the delight of all from northwestern Minnesota, the team from Thief River Falls won the tournament.

At the Dome that evening, Martin Luther King's daughter, Bernice King, was the featured speaker. Kim Peterson said she felt that King's talk was the highlight of the event and most of the others thought so too. "When everyone in the Dome started clapping for her, my insides just shook," she said.

Sunday, July 24, was the last day of the youth gathering. Homilist was former ELCA vice president, Christine Grumm. The contemporary worship service was put together by Jay Beech, concluding with Holy Communion.

After the finale, the Pathways group, tired, but happy and uplifted, headed back home to St. Hilaire. The Thief River Falls group boarded the buses for Orlando, Florida.

The major stop in Orlando was the Hard Rock Cafe where waiters sang and danced to, what else, rock music. On to Trinity Lutheran church in Kissummee for a much-needed rest.

On Monday, alarms went off at 7 a.m., but seven hours of sleep were a treat for some, since most of the group had been averaging only four to six hours of sleep a night.

At 10 a.m. the crew boarded the bus for the Magic Kingdom of Disney World. Splash Mountain, exciting rides, pictures taken with Disney characters, fun food and gift shops were just a few of the attractions for the youth. The SpectroMagic Light Show and parade were both hits.

Tuesday the group was on the way to Daytona Beach to swim and have more fun in the sun. As soon as the bus stopped, the midwestern kids ran for the ocean. They said the best things about it were the warm sun, white sand and a taste of the salt water. Several enjoyed riding boogie boards.

Under light-hearted protest, the group boarded the bus for a long, eight-hour trip back to Stone Mountain. Trouble struck before the group left Stone Mountain, however, when it was discovered that one of the buses needed repairs.

After departing from Stone Mountain two hours late, they were on their way to Fishers, Indiana, and then onward to Eau Claire, Wisconsin. Home was getting nearer and nearer and most of the kids, despite wanting to get home, were beginning to hate to see the trip end.

Pastor Ron Calvert wrote a brief summary of his view of the trip, no doubt also expressing the feelings of Kim Peterson and many of the others who gave their time and talents in chaperoning youngsters to the gathering:

This, the last day of the trip, is filled with anticipation of getting back to our families and friends ... most importantly getting off the buses.

Everyone is still civil to each other but the natives are getting restless. Everyone has cooperated and worked well with each other throughout the trip. The word, "community," has taken on a new meaning for me. After traveling for the past 14 days with 92 persons, my awareness of what it means to be "together" has been tested, stretched, and even changed somewhat.

(We were) tested in that it was a whole new ball game traveling to a large city with 92 (people.) You just aren't in control! If we thought we could be, those pipe dreams were thrown out the first evening. But amazingly we did all arrive, where we were supposed to, each time.

My awareness of community was stretched by the fact that folks who come from a variety of different backgrounds and who have several different agendas can, if they want to, come together and work together.

This was hard for me because I was still viewing most of these young folks the same way as I did when I first arrived in Thief River Falls five years ago — as kids. But they proved me wrong. They are young adults who have made good choices.

As I said, we had no choice but to trust because of the size of the group. But they responded well to the trust we gave them.

And finally, my awareness of community has changed, because before I always operated under the assumption that "community" took a long time to develop, that trust was something earned.

These youth, with the help of our Lord's guidance, have come together quickly, depending on each other and working together. If only we could share their willingness to risk and reach out to one another! We, the older generation, I suppose, could and still can learn from this.

The parents of these young people can be happy and proud of their sons and daughters because they have represented them well.

Our reception back in Thief River, with "Welcome Home" signs along the highway and an auto escort waiting for us, was a great sight to behold. We were really missed. It's great to be back home.

Amen.

SWCD filings are open

Candidates for supervisor in the state's 91 soil and water conservation districts may file for election until September 8, according to the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources.

Soil and water conservation district lines usually coincide with the county's boundaries. One of the exceptions is the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD with offices in Grygla which serves parts of both Marshall and Beltrami counties.

In that district this year, the term of Oliver Howland expires and he has announced he will not seek reelection. Howland, 92, has served on the board since the district was organized in 1950. He represents the Beltrami county townships of Hamre, Steenerson, Minnie and Spruce Grove and four townships in the Beltrami Island State Forest which are unnamed.

In Pennington county Harry Hanson of Trail has not decided yet whether he will seek another six-year term. He represents the townships of Goodridge, Reiner, Star and Hickory.

Two supervisors will be elected in Red Lake county's soil and water conservation district. The term of Ron Weiss of Red Lake Falls expires in the district including Lake Pleasant and Terrebonne townships. Dave Miller of Red Lake Falls was appointed to fill an unexpired term in the district including Gervais, River and Emardville townships and an election will be held to fill the last two years of that term.

In the Marshall County SWCD, which has offices in Warren, the term of Leonard Yutrzenka of Argyle expires this year. Yutrzenka serves the townships of Wright, East Park, Lincoln, Nelson Park, New Maine, Wanger and West Valley and the City of Strandquist.

And in Roseau county the term of Jay Estling of Roosevelt expires. Estling, who succeeded his father on the SWCD board, represents the townships of Lake, Moranville and Laona.

Candidates for supervisor on soil and water conservation district boards must have residence in the specific parts of the districts listed, although all residents of the county are eligible to vote in the SWCD election. Supervisors are elected for six-year terms.

SWCD supervisors must determine local conservation priorities and allocate funding based upon those priorities. Some of the programs administered by SWCDs in different areas of the state include Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) Reserve, a land set-aside program, the state cost-share program which pays part of the cost for landowners to install conservation practices, the water planning program, under which local leaders develop and carry out plans to protect and improve water quality; a tree planting and/or planting program and others.

Supervisors meet monthly to conduct SWCD business. They do not receive a salary but are compensated for meeting attendance and reimbursed for expenses.

Anyone eligible and interested in filing to run in the November 8 election should contact their local SWCD office by September 8. Telephone numbers include the following: Pennington County SWCD, 681-3348; Marshall County SWCD, 745-5010; Marshall-Beltrami SWCD, 294-61[illegible]; Red Lake County SWCD, 25[illegible]; and Roseau County SWCD, [illegible]-1903.

Construction in TRF moves ahead

Latest obstacle to traffic in downtown Thief River Falls should have been cleared away by Friday provided things go much better than they did Tuesday.

Mike Miller, superintendent of the project, explained Wednesday morning that just about everything that could go wrong at Third and Davis project in front of the old Soo Line Depot Monday went wrong.

Part of the 1994 street and utility project includes replacement of a water line beneath the railroad tracks. This involves removing a section of the road and tunneling underneath the railroad tracks.

Miller explained that the construction crew working on the project ran into some difficulties when they were tunneling under the railroad tracks.

Ron Lindberg, engineering services director, said they had received a request to close the intersection at Third and Davis. He said a compromise was reached and no right of left turns will be allowed by trucks. Cars can still make a left turn onto Davis. Lindberg said they prefer that traffic avoid turning at the intersection and use Atlantic instead.

Traffic, however, was also encountering obstacles at Atlantic and Horace, one block further west. Motorists and pedestrians are being asked to exercise caution and to be patient.

Construction crews are also working on an intersection at LaBree and Second. Miller said that by Friday they should begin the sub-cut for the 100 block of LaBree. He said, they should have gravel in by Wednesday of next week.

Miller said they have encountered only a few complaints about utilities at downtown business. The problems were minor and basically involved someone forgetting to turn on water or someone accidentally turning off water.

Lindberg said the public has been very patient, perhaps too patient. He encourages anyone with a problem to contact his office or construction workers if problems with utilities develop.

Despite work on utilities, fire protection is still available to downtown business. Fire hydrants are operational.

Miller said hopefully, Horace will be passable before work begins in the 200 block of LaBree.

Construction crews in Thief River Falls were busy replacing a water line near the Soo Line depot last week. They met with some difficulty digging under the railroad tracks earlier in the week, and expect to be done with the project sometime next week. Trucks are not being allowed to turn onto Davis from Third and other motorists are being asked to use Atlantic or another north and south route instead of Davis.

'Building Better Business' theme for TRF seminar

To assist community business people in gaining new expertise in building a better business, The Times is sponsoring a "Building a Better Business" seminar on Thursday, September 15, at the Best Western Inn with a choice of two sessions offered.

Participating businesses may be represented at an 8:30 a.m. session at which coffee, juice and rolls will be served, or a 4:30 p.m. session at which a salad bar or soup and sandwich with beverage will be available.

Presenting the information and ideas at the seminar will be Peter W. Wagner, a nationally acclaimed business and community promotional expert. Using local and area examples, he will discuss selecting a proper media mix for advertising, improving a business firm's image, producing better advertising and community promotions that build business.

At the end of last week the 100 block of LaBree Avenue in Thief River Falls was really a mess as construction crews were in the midst of replacing the street and utilities under the street. They hope to have Horace Avenue completely open to traffic before they begin on the 200 block of LaBree Avenue. It may be another week before they begin that phase.

City and county select architect

Representatives of the Thief River Falls City Council and Pennington County board of commissioners met Tuesday afternoon to discuss selection of an architect to address the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) needs of both units of government. Independent action the previous week seemed to indicate that the two governmental units were going to attempt to solve their ADA problems independently as they had approved hiring of different architect firms.

Possible solutions to ADA, which requires compliance by January 26, 1995, included a building between the city auditorium and the county courthouse, and/or elevators and ramps at each building. For months the two units of government have been discussing the matter and recently appointed a selection committee to interview four architectural firms which had been chosen from a list of nine.

The selection committee agreed upon a method of ranking the finalists during interviews and one firm received the highest ranking — Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke and Welch. The firm of Foss Associates was ranked number two.

One week ago Tuesday, the county commissioners selected the firm of Foss Associates, but the city council selected Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke and Welch.

Tuesday, representatives of the city council and county board held a joint meeting and ironed out differences of opinion. The county rescinded its earlier motion, and approved a motion to accept the firm of Yaeter Hennings Ruff Shultz Rokke and Welch as the architectural firm to study ADA needs.

The fact that one firm will be working on solutions to the ADA problems for both governmental units, does not automatically mean that the proposed building between the city auditorium and county courthouse will be built. The firm will exam many different options and the final decision as to which option to select, will be up to the representatives of the two units of government.

MN/DOT plans workshops on qualifications

Driver qualifications, record-keeping requirements, medical certification, and drug testing requirements of intrastate truckers in Minnesota will be topics covered at a series of workshops sponsored jointly by the Association of General Contractors and the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

According to Gilbert Wiedenhoeft, enforcement supervisor at MNDOT's office of motor carrier services in St. Paul, the workshops will inform truckers of new rules effective in Minnesota as of August 1, 1994. Workshops in northern and central Minnesota will be held on August 30, in Detroit Lakes, in Duluth on August 31 and St. Cloud on September 1. Other workshops are scheduled in the Twin Cities and southern Minnesota. Each runs from 5:45 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Certain intrastate carriers have not been subject to these driver qualifications in the past. As of August 1, private carriers who operate a motor vehicle with a gross vehicle weight greater than 10,000 pounds become subject to the rules for driver qualifications. Included are drivers of vehicles employed by public utilities, cooperative electric associations, telephone companies and those engaged in the transportation of construction materials, tools and equipment from shop to job site or job site to job site. These carriers include solid waste transporters, transporters of dirt and sod, transporters of sand, gravel bituminous asphalt mix, concrete ready mix, concrete blocks or tile and mortar, or crushed rock and transporters of pulpwood, cordwood, mining timber, poles and posts.

Workshop registration forms can be obtained at the Minnesota Department of Transportation permits office at the MN/DOT office in Crookston, 1320 Sunflower Street, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily or by calling (218) 281-3503. Questions regarding the workshop can be answered by Todd Goderstad at AGC, (612) 291-1102, or by calling Mary Meinert at MN/DOT at (612) 285-5142.

Celebration set for Piney Pine Creek Airport

The Piney Pine Creek Airport Commission is planning a grand re-opening celebration for Saturday, August 27. The Piney Pine Creek Airport is located on Minnesota Highway 89 at the U.S.-Canadian border, between Pine Creek, MN, and Piney, Manitoba. The event is a drive-in, fly-in celebration sponsored by the Piney Pine Creek Airport Commission, according to Curt Larson, Minnesota Department of Transportation maintenance supervisor in Roseau and commission member.

The pancake breakfast runs from 8 to 10:30 a.m. and is sponsored by the Piney Community Club. A short program will be held at 11 a.m. At 12:30 p.m. a barbecued turkey lunch will be served by the airport commission and airplane rides will be offered.

The Piney Pine Creek Airport re-opening celebrates the completion of paved and extended runways, improved runway lights, the addition of a fuel station and a new Canadian customs building. The improvements were funded by both the Minnesota Department of Transportation and the Canadian government, according to Larson.

Pilots flying across the U.S.-Canadian border are able to stop at the Piney Pine Creek Airport and clear both U.S. and Canadian customs and proceed on to their destinations without further stops. The airport is run by a commission comprised of three Canadians and three U.S. citizens.

VA disability compensation is available for veterans involved in atomic tests

Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jesse Brown has announced that VA supports providing disability compensation for U.S. veterans who suffer from medical conditions that may be a result of radiation exposure they received while participating in atmospheric nuclear weapons tests conducted by other countries.

"Although they may have been present at tests conducted by foreign governments, these veterans faithfully performed prescribed duties as American service members," Brown said. "they are entitled to the same benefits afforded their fellow veterans who participated in U.S. atmospheric testing."

Current law qualifies veterans for disability compensation if they participated in atmospheric nuclear tests as part of the U.S. nuclear weapons testing program or in the American occupation of Hiroshima or Nagasaki, Japan, and suffer from certain diseases that may be attributable to ionizing radiation exposure. This presumption of service connection does not cover U.S. military veterans who were detailed to military forces of other Allied countries and participated in tests by those countries.

VA has prepared an amendment to an existing regulation extending eligibility for presumptive service connection and compensation to U.S. veterans who participated in foreign atmospheric nuclear testing.

VA will ask the Department of Defense to assist in obtaining dates and sites of tests conducted by other countries and in identifying U.S. military personnel who participated in the tests.

Veterans or their survivors with claims as a result of participation in foreign atmospheric nuclear tests are urged to contact the nearest VA regional office by calling 1-800-827-1000.

Tractor accidents are leading cause of accidents on farms

Although today's tractors are more efficient, productive and safer than ever before, accidents involving tractors remain the leading cause of farm work-related fatalities.

In fact, the National Safety Council reports that overturns, runovers and power takeoff accidents account for almost 80 per cent of tractor-related deaths.

Overturns cause 55 per cent of all tractor-related fatalities.

As the number one cause of farm work-related deaths, tractor overturns are a serious concern for farmers. Tractors overturn when improperly hitched or when operating on rough terrain or around roadside ditches. "Use extra caution in these situations," advised Steve Burdette, Case Corporation manager, product safety. "And keep RDPS in place to prevent injuries or death in the event of a tractor rollover."

Runovers account for 23 per cent.

All too often, operators think they can save time by starting a tractor from the ground. But if the machine is in gear and the operator tries to start it from the ground, it may move unexpectedly, seriously injuring the operator. "Many equipment dealers offer protective start/solenoid/relay cover kits to help discourage this hazardous practice," said Burdette.

"Additionally, make sure the area is clear of bystanders before starting equipment."

PTO entanglements rank third. Although advances in shields and guards have reduced the dangers of working around PTO shafts on new equipment, many farmers still use older tractors with modified or unguarded shafts. Burdette recommends replacing missing or damaged guards and shields on tractor and implement drive lines to help prevent PTO accidents. He also cautions farmers to shut off the PTO before investigating a problem.

To help customers operate their equipment more safely, many equipment dealers provide counsel, recommendations and even free services. Case IH dealers, for example, offer free installation of starter/solenoid/relay cover kits to help discourage bypass starting.

"I'd recommend that farmers work closely with their equipment dealer to help ensure their work environment is as safe as they can make it," said Burdette.

18 ND counties are named primary disaster areas

Eighteen counties in North Dakota were named primary disaster areas by President Bill Clinton July 1. As a result, the three contiguous Minnesota counties of Polk, Marshall and Kittson are eligible to receive Farmers Home Administration emergency loans due to severe storms, flooding and ground saturation due to high water tables which occurred March 5 and continuing.

Farmers in the three counties have until March 1, 1995, to apply for loans to help cover their physical and production losses. The current interest rate for emergency loans is 3.75 per cent. To be eligible, farm operators must have suffered a 30 per cent loss of normal production in any major crop, be able to repay the loan and any other loans, be unable to secure credit elsewhere and provide adequate security.

Treat Yourself To An Agassiz Refuge Tour

Anyone with an appreciation for and enjoyment of wildlife owes it to himself or herself to take a trip to Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge during the special visitor hours this weekend, August 20 and 21. The refuge will be open to the public and refuge staff members on duty from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 7 p.m. Sunday.

The main roads at the refuge are always open to the public, but during the special hours this weekend—depending on the weather—other roads normally used only by refuge personnel may also be open for vehicle travel by visitors. This will give the public access to viewing areas not available on a day-to-day basis. The key to this access is condition of the roads, which at this writing is excellent.

Refuge personnel are correct when they say this is an exciting time of the year to observe the birds and mammals and even the plants. Agassiz is home to a large variety of waterfowl and they are once again taking to the air after their regular summer molt. This spring's broods are rapidly approaching adult size in a growth rate that never ceases to be amazing.

Visitors to Agassiz are encouraged to stop at headquarters and inquire if any normally restricted roads are open. Headquarters is located near the fire tower on Marshall County Road 7, which leads directly to the refuge from highway 32 just north of Holt. As noted above, refuge personnel will be at headquarters during the special weekend hours to answer questions and provide suggestions and information.

In fact, this weekend would be a good time for persons who normally drive through the refuge when staff is not on duty to stop and have their questions answered or to make their own observations and suggestions.

Many of us who live in the area fail to realize what an attraction this wildlife refuge actually is. Records maintained at Agassiz indicate an average of more than 15,000 visits per year with visitors from approximately 30 states and five foreign countries each year.

Inclined to take a summer drive one day this weekend? Why not make it through Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge?

Grand Forks' Homeless Drunks Cause Concern

Wednesday's issue of the Grand Forks Herald contained a news story and public opinion comments regarding that city's problem with "homeless inebriants" and the question of whether or not the city should provide a detoxification center to deal with the problem.

One of the concerns expressed is that with the advent of colder weather that one or more of these persons may come to harm from being outdoors overnight with no place to sleep. It is a problem certainly not unique to Grand Forks and, like so many social problems, keys on the question of money and the apparent necessity for the public to be responsible for people who are not responsible for themselves nor members of their families.

Who should pay to provide for "homeless inebriates" is at question in Grand Forks. Perhaps the obvious is being overlooked.

States tax motor vehicles and fuels to provide for needed roads and highways. A portion of state lottery funds is set aside to deal with compulsive gamblers. The first place to look for funds to help drunks should be those who profit from that drunkenness—the manufacturers, distributors and retailers of the products that cause the problem.

It is assumed here that the "homeless inebriates" who are the subject of concern are not provided with free alcohol that creates their seemingly daily condition. Somewhere they have to get the money it takes to get drunk and they have to spend it to get drunk. And other people profit from that expenditure.

Beer and liquor companies seem to have ample funds for publicity efforts and advertising and slogans to promote the sale of their products. Shouldn't they also have funds to help alleviate some of the problems those products create? Just think of the slogans that could be modified and used in promotion if the beer companies, for instance, took over support of an overnight shelter for "homeless inebriates" and advertised it as they do their sales.

We can see them now: "It's pillow time".... "Know when to say flop"...."This bed's for you" .....and, of course, one that needs no modification—"It doesn't get any better than this."

The Essence of Politics—Defeat A Bad Bill, Then Pull Out All Stops To Pass It

Obviously there are lots of reasons to be irritated by Congress and its "system" for enacting the laws of the land. The political adversary role and its counter-productivity is just one of these. Another is the ability to resurrect a bad bill after it has taken a deserved defeat and barter it into law.

Such is the effort being made on the so-called Crime Bill which was appropriately rejected in the House of Representatives on a strong bipartisan vote. Plain and simple, it's a lousy bill. It is loaded with expensive programs that offer little if any effective effort toward crime control. It deserves to be scrapped and the committee should go back to the basics and start over.

But the Clinton Presidency won't accept defeat, even when it is deserved. All stops are being pulled out to resuscitate the corpse of the Crime Bill and turn it loose on the American people. It shouldn't happen, but you can bet it will. That's the way things happen in Washington.

Soil Conservation Service to recruit for AmeriCorps

U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service in Minnesota will recruit 20 AmeriCorps national service participants, according to Al Gustafson of the Pembina Trail Resource Conservation and Development Association with offices in Red Lake Falls.

AmeriCorps is the national service initiative that allows people to earn money for college tuition or to repay college loans while performing public service for the environment, health, public safety or education. Participants in the AmeriCorps program work for a year, earning between $7,600 and $12,000 plus an educational award of $4,725.

The SCS in Minnesota has been approved to hire 20 AmeriCorps participants, according to Gary Nordstrom, SCS state conservationist for Minnesota.

"These positions focus on helping rural and urban residents understand the values related to soil and water conservation resource management, trail development, grassland and pasture management, animal waste storage and waste utilization plans, public information and technical assistance related in watershed project areas," Nordstrom said.

Minnesota's SCS AmeriCorps participants will be headquartered in several locations, including Twin Valley, Rochester, Lewiston, Cloquet and Thief River Falls.

Application deadline is fast approaching. To apply for a USDA AmeriCorps position in Minnesota, applicants can request an application by contacting the Pembina Trail RC&D at 253-2646, by calling any of the SCS field offices (located in county seat towns) or by contacting the SCS state office in St. Paul at (612) 290-3677.

Veterans Administration extends benefits to two civilian groups

Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jesse Brown has announced that two civilian groups that provided critical support to U.S. military efforts during World War II have been granted veteran status and are potentially eligible for VA benefits.

"We welcome the opportunity to extend to these new veterans the same benefits earned by their more than 27 million fellow American veterans as a result of dedicated and unselfish service," Brown said.

A recent decision by the Secretary of the Air Force certified the service of members honorably discharged from the U.S. civilian flight crew and aviation group support employees of Northwest Airlines who served overseas under the airlines' contract with the Air Transport Command from December 14, 1941, through August 14, 1945, and U.S. civilian female employees of the U.S. Army Nurse Corps who served in the defense of Bataan and Corregidor from January 2, 1942, to February 3, 1945.

These newly designated veterans, or their survivors, can apply for the same benefits currently available to other World War II veterans, including service-related disability compensation, pension, medical care, certain survivors' benefits, VA-guaranteed home loans, and burial benefits.

To receive a discharge certificate, application must be made on DD Form 2168, which is available from the U.S. Air Force or by calling the nearest VA Regional Office toll free at 1-800-827-1000. The completed form should be sent to HQ AFMPC/DPMARS2, Randolph, Texas 78150-6001, Attention: Sgt. White.

Some documentation is required with the application. For further information, contact Lt. Col. Robert Dunlap, Secretary of the Air Force Personnel Council (AFPC), 1535 Command Drive, 3rd Floor, EE Wing, Andrews AFB, MD 20331-7002; telephone (301) 981-3504/5750.

Once the Air Force issues the discharge certificate (DD 214), it can be presented to VA in applying for veterans' benefits.

Wellstone is seeking documents on chemical spray

The U.S. Senate has accepted an amendment offered by U.S. Senator Paul Wellstone calling upon the Department of Defense to submit all documents pertaining to chemical/biological warfare tests involving the use of zinc cadmium sulfide conducted anywhere in the United States.

"For some reason, the Department of Defense seems incapable or unwilling to give me a time certain for the delivery of these documents," Wellstone said. "Department officials made a commitment to provide these documents by August 15, 1994, but now claim — without even offering a reason — that they cannot meet that deadline."

"As far as I am concerned, this amendment is a matter of accountability," Wellstone said. "We need all the information available about the spraying."

The Defense Department still is committed to provide Wellstone with all Minnesota-specific documents on August 15, 1994.

In 1953, the U.S. Army conducted chemical and biological warfare experiments in Minneapolis that involved the spraying of zinc cadmium sulfide over the city. Wellstone first contacted Defense Secretary William Perry asking for all documents relating to those experiments on June 10, 1994.

The amendment Wellstone offered was accepted as part of the Department of Defense Appropriations bill. The amendment calls for the release of the documents "not later than 90 days" after the Department of Defense Appropriations bill is signed into law by President Clinton.

Lindsay Johnson, daughter of Jeff and Loras Johnson of Thief River Falls, says, "Please don't tear down the depot." She's wearing a Save the Depot button now on sale at area merchants.

Save the Depot buttons are being sold for $2 at Home Sweet Home, Hugo's and Jubilee Foods, and at all Thief River Falls banks and radio stations. For more information on fund-raising, tax deductible contributions, and memorials, call 681-2500.

Campaign to save Soo Line Depot gets under way

A Thief River Falls committee out to beat the odds kicked off a mission of historic preservation this week — a campaign to save the Historic Soo Line Depot on Third Street in Thief River Falls. The depot, built in 1913, is scheduled for demolition in November unless a group of officials and civic leaders can successfully raise $200,000 in private donations.

Mayor Bob Reeve says they're counting on the community. "The outcry against the destruction of this landmark forced us to do all we could to save it." At the same time, Reeve says his committee is determined to keep the property on commercial tax roles. "That means private development. Things looked pretty bleak, until a private benefactor came forward last summer, offering to match public fund-raising up to $200,000." That offer put new life into the effort with the committee working against a Thanksgiving deadline to pull together enough private donations to save the depot.

Reeve says the project needs visibility, and is encouraging everyone to support a Save the Depot Button Drive. "We need to gain momentum. If everyone buys one and everyone wears one that gives us a fund-raising start and adds a little excitement and fun to a very serious campaign."

Reeve says the committee invites community clubs and organizations to join the effort and plans long term recognition, such as engraved track rails, for memorials and contributions.

"Save the Depot" buttons are available at Home Sweet Home, Hugo's and Jubilee Foods, and at all Thief River Falls banks and radio stations. The $2 donation goes to the preservation fund. For more information on fund-raising, tax deductible contributions, and memorials, call 681-2500.

1994 Golf Club finals to be played Sunday

Jeff Hendrickson will face either Stan Sjoberg or Tom Williams in the championship flight finals of the 1994 Thief River Golf Club tournament Sunday.

Results of a scheduled Friday Sjoberg/Williams semifinal match-up completes the elimination rounds for the tournament. Hendrickson defeated Jeff Wiltse in an earlier semifinal match.

Start of the 18-hole match-play championship flight has been moved up to 11:15 a.m. Finals of the other flights will precede the title showdown.

Williams is the defending champion. He also won the tournament in 1989. The title would be a first for Hendrickson or Sjoberg.

It will be the first final played following the recently-completed expansion project that converted the Thief River Golf Club from a 9-hole to an 18-hole course.

Northern Municipal Power Agency (NMPA), the municipal corporation which was organized in the late 1970s to assure a continuous electrical power supply to a dozen participating communities in northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota, recently sponsored a three-day bus tour to the Coyote Electric Generating Station and Knife River Coal Mining Company near Beulah, ND. Those on the tour included directors of the NMPA board, community advisors, officers of the cities served by the agency, consultants and other guests. Among those attending from Thief River Falls were Sen. LeRoy and Carol Stumpf, Jerry and Marilyn Wigness, Jean Heinrichs, Roger and Carol DeLap, Paul and Carol Ihle and children and Darryl and Debbie Tveitbakk and children. Others were from Bagley, Baudette, Halstad, Hawley, Roseau, Stephen and Warren, as well as the North Dakota communities of Grafton and Park River. Representatives of newspapers in Grafton, Stephen, Warren, Fosston and Thief River Falls flew to the plant on a Minnkota Power Cooperative plane Thursday to join the group for tours of the generating plant and coal mine. This photo was taken of the group by the 78-yard bucket of the dragline used in the Knife River Coal Mine's strip mining operation. A story on how Thief River Falls and area communities get their electric power, along with other photos from the tour, will be published in the August 24 issue of The Times.

RC&D Association annual meeting set at Mille Lacs Resort

Minnesota Association of Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Councils will hold its annual meeting August 29 and 30 at Mille Lacs Lake Resort.

The association is a statewide organization of the six individual RC&D councils in Minnesota and provides leadership and direction at the state level.

According to Allan Gustafson of the Pembina Trail RC&D, the councils provide a framework for dealing with many rural issues through citizen participation. "RC&D is a people's program that makes things happen," Gustafson said.

The annual meeting opens with an informational program on building a strong and health rural economy at 12:30 p.m. August 29. Featured speakers will be Randy Cantrell of the Humphrey Institute and Greg Hohlen of Mille Lacs Area Community Development Corporation.

Joining in the panel discussion will be Jeanne Endahl, Central Minnesota Initiative Fund; Vern Busho, Brainerd/Staples Technical College, and Sandy Voigt, Minnesota Technology.

Business meeting of the Association of RC&D Councils will start at 7:30 a.m. August 30. Two optional tours will feature either the Mille Lacs Band of Ojibwe Community Development projects or a hybrid poplar plantation, both starting at 1:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend any part of the two-day meeting. For additional information calls Robert Hoefert at Mors, phone (612) 679-4604.

MATCH THE HARDWARE TO THE SOFTWARE!
While the "Big Boys" are out there shoveling PC's out the door at bargain prices, their customers are being met by poor performance when the PC is loaded up with all the latest software.
Prices are down on start-up systems (486SX/25's with 4Meg RAM), but software is requiring more memory to work. The hardware companies are reluctant to up their costs to add more memory, while the software is requiring more than the standard 4Meg that comes with the "bargain" boxes.
At Computer Run/Radio Shack, we take the time to learn more about you the customer. Mass discounters are cheaper, but are also less likely to point out memory problems in order to move "boxes" out of the warehouse. We make sure you get only what you need, and also give you expansion options for the future, thus making your computer cost effective.

Experience, size are Prowlers' top assets

■ Football team looks to be among Section 8A leaders

There was no shortage of experience or size when Thief River Falls players reported to head coach Jeff Mumm Aug. 15 for the start of preseason high school football practice.

The Prowlers were 6-4 a year ago, and although they lost 14 seniors to graduation, return full-time or part-time starters up and down the line-up on both sides of the ball.

Best of the bunch is John Davis, a 6-0, 190-pound senior guard/linebacker, who collected a bundle of awards at the 1993 post-season banquet when he was named the Prowlers' most valuable player, most valuable offensive lineman and most valuable linebacker.

"John is an outstanding football player," said Mumm. "As a coach, you feel fortunate to have a kid like that to work with."

But Davis does not stand alone. The other guard is 5-10, 170-pound senior Jason Hruby, one of the team's strongest players, while the Prowlers' biggest players are 290-pound tackles Cayler Olson and Mark Spyhalski. Olson is listed at 6-1; Spyhalski was measured an inch taller. Both are seniors.

It's a line that will protect quarterback Eric Bjorgaard while opening holes for runningbacks like Tony Halsa, Brian Howe and Steve Burslie.

The 6-1, 185-pound Bjorgaard completed 34 of 60 passes (56 percent) for 433 yards last year while sharing the quarterback job with now-graduated Jeff Twomey.

In Howe (5-10, 205) and Halsa (5-9, 177) the Prowlers have two straight-ahead power runners who combined for 1,402 yards in 1993. Howe rushed for 673 yards and averaged 6.7 yards per carry in six games before going down with a hip injury. Halsa wound up as the team's leading rusher with 729 yards and a 6.5 yards-per-carry average.

Burslie provides the Prowlers' only real speed in the backfield, but the 6-4, 161-pounder is a genuine breakaway threat as a runner or receiver. He rushed for 269 yards, averaging 6.4 yards per carry, and caught 18 passes for 226 yards last year.

Bjorgaard, Halsa, Howe, and Burslie are all seniors, along with 6-1, 162-pound Nathan Anderson, a versatile athlete who could emerge as a top-notch wide receiver and defensive back.

Jason Homme, a 6-2, 178-pound senior who played extensively in the defensive line last fall, has been added to the offensive line at tight end.

On defense, Davis, Halsa and Howe will provide the Prowlers with a set of aggressive, hard-hitting linebackers; Hruby's strength and quickness at nose guard keys the defensive line; while senior Adam Henney and juniors Nick Chiodo and Jason Breiland saw plenty of playing time in the secondary in 1993.

"We've got a lot of kids back both ways," acknowledged Mumm, who is beginning his ninth year as Thief River Falls head coach. "We don't have a lot of speed, but we're big and we're physical. We should have a good year. We'll set our sights high. Our goal, again, is to be one of the top four seeds in Section 8A."

The Prowlers reached the Section 8A finals in 1992 before losing to Detroit Laker and lost in the semifinals last year to East Grand Forks.

Detroit Lakes is the two-time defending Class A state champion, but coaches throughout Section 8A are hoping the Lakers' juggernaut will finally come back to earth this fall, opening the playoff door for a number of potential contenders.

Thief River Falls will have the first shot at the Lakers, who have won four straight Section 8A titles, in a Thursday, Sept. 1, season opener at Detroit Lakes.

"It looks like Detroit Lakes is finally going to be beatable," said Mumm. "We'll find out just where we fit in and just how good Detroit Lakes is right away."

New tennis coach has veteran team

The 1994 Thief River Falls girls high school tennis program will feature a new coach but a familiar line-up.

Jim Bitzegaio is the newcomer, taking over the coaching reigns from Jay Forney, who resigned this summer.

The former Indiana state high school tennis tournament qualifier is taking his first shot at high school coaching – a task being made easier by the fact that nine of last year's 10 letter winners return.

Jami Dehnert was the only senior on a 1993 team that went 6-8 in dual meet competition and was eliminated by Moorhead in first round North Sub-Section 8AA tournament play.

Letter winners who greeted Bitzegaio at the start of practice Monday included senior Jami Premstad; juniors Bobbi Dahlstrom, Shari Evenson, Kiki Goddard, Lisa Ostby, Anne Padilla, and Kamie Twomey; along with sophomores Tiffany Brouse and Kelly Natvik.

Padilla and Evenson reached the Section 8AA tournament as a doubles team last fall.

"It's been a long time since I talked tennis, but I'm really enjoying it," said Bitzegaio. "We have some kids who played a lot of tennis this summer and really worked on their game. They all work hard and have a good attitude."

And with the Prowlers having a single senior on the roster for the second straight year, the bulk of the line-up should remain intact for 1995 as well as the upcoming 1994 season.

"Thief River Falls tennis should be strong this year and next year," acknowledged Bitzegaio. "I think we should be pretty competitive."

The 1994 Thief River Falls tennis program also includes juniors Vicki Bitzegaio, Kate Nordin and Becky Phillips; sophomores Pauline Cullen, Trisha Harbott, Kate Ihle, Heidi Johnson, Erin Liden, Elizabeth Odette, Kyla Skiple, Laura Steiger, and Teresa Swanson; freshmen Beth Goddard, Stephanie Leach, Allison Rantanen, and Eeva Young; eighth graders Ann Gustafson, Katie Harbott, Lesley Ihle, and Bridgette Stock; seventh graders Deirdre Dally, Jenni Gonsorowski, Jennifer Kimball, Kimberly Kirkeide, Rebecca Leach, and Kara Skiple; plus sixth grader Heidi Young.

The Prowlers will get just six days of practice under their belt before opening the schedule with three consecutive outings next week – a Tuesday dual at Roseau, a Wednesday dual at home vs. Alexandria, and the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational on Thursday.

Girls have strong cross county line-up

High school cross country practice officially opened August 15. But runners who waited until the Minnesota State High School League starting date to work themselves into shape will have some catching up to do if they want to stay with the top teams and individuals this fall.

Thief River Falls cross country coach Lynn Dyer, who welcomed a group of 25 boys and girls in grades 7-through-12 to practice Monday, knows conditioning and not speed work will take up much of the Prowlers' early-season drills.

"We're not in very good shape," said Dyer. "If we could just get the kids to report in shape, we accomplish a lot more and be a much better team. It takes time to get into competitive shape, and the season just isn't that long. The teams who are in shape at the start of the season really have an edge."

On paper it looks like a solid season for the Thief River Falls girls, while the boys search for runners to fill a competitive varsity line-up.

Dan Bjerknes and Lisa Swanson are the top returning runners.

Jon Hendrickson was last year's No. 1 runner for the boys, but was one of four seniors lost to graduation.

There were nine seniors on the girls' roster last fall, but only April Klinker and Heather Thornton were varsity regulars.

Bjerknes, Nathan Anderson and Jessica Bugge are the only seniors out for the sport in 1994.

Junior Kyle Sanden, sophomore Stefan Ronchetti and freshman Brian Unbehaun join Bjerknes and Anderson as returning lettermen on the boys' team.

Swanson, Leah Helgeset and Angie Klinker were the Prowlers' top three runners as sophomores last fall. Other letter winners on hand are sophomores Angie Edlund and Jocelyn Helgeland. Freshman Becky Mooney is out for cross country after enjoying spring success in track as an eighth grader.

"With virtually everyone back, I would sure hope the girls will be competitive this year," said Dyer. "I thought we would be pretty decent last year, too, but it just didn't happen. Lisa had a real good season last year, but we had too big of a gap between her and our No. 2-3-4 runners."

Rest of the boys who reported for the start of practice include sophomores Ryan Hendrickson, Jordan Goldesberry, Chris Pribals, and Nels Brown; freshmen Brandon Gerardy and Hamilton Keefe; along with seventh graders Seth Harlow, Brady Anderson, Zach Olson, and Matt Tronvet.

Other girls on hand for the first drills were juniors Lisa and Lori Risdahl, along with seventh grader Emily Mugaas.

Awaiting National Hockey League deal before start of training camp...

Bergland remains in free agent market

by Sports Editor Mike Lundgren

Tim Bergland will likely stay relatively close to a telephone over the next couple of weeks, hoping to hear from a National Hockey League team before the start of training camps early next month.

The 29-year-old Bergland, a Thief River Falls native, is currently listed as a free agent without compensation – meaning any NHL team can sign him without losing a player or a draft choice.

Bergland has played seven years in the pro ranks with Washington and Tampa Bay, splitting time between the Capitals and Lightning and their minor league teams.

Originally drafted by the Capitals, Bergland played four years of hockey at the University of Minnesota before signing a professional contract. He spent five years in the Washington organization before being picked by Tampa Bay in the expansion draft. Late in the 1993-94 season Bergland found himself back with the Capitals, who claimed him on waivers from the Lightning.

However, instead of being part of the Capitals' stretch run and post-season line-up, Bergland wound up watching more hockey than he played. Instead of utilizing him on the ice, Washington apparently acquired Bergland as an insurance policy for injuries or for trades that never materialized.

Bergland had worked himself into the Tampa Bay line-up, but wasn't that upset leaving a last place team to return to familiar surroundings in Washington, a legitimate playoff contender.

"I played a lot in Tampa Bay and was pretty happy there," said Bergland. "I played some in Washington, but not that much. I was excited to go back to Washington at the time, but it just didn't work out, as fas as playing time goes."

Bergland isn't sure what the free agent market will bring, but he's confident that he will be in an NHL training camp in September. His employment status is in limbo due in part, figured Bergland, to current labor talks between the players and the National Hockey League.

"It's kind of slow right now," admitted Bergland. "Not a lot of players have been signed yet. But my agent and I are currently in the middle of negotiations with a number of teams. I think we'll be able to work something out in the next couple of weeks."

Bergland has no real preference to what team he signs with, and the length of the contract. "I'll go to whoever wants me," he quipped. "The longer (the contract), the better."

When a contract is finally signed, Bergland said he will be ready for camp. Summer conditioning has featured weight room work, running and biking. He will be heading to Bloomington shortly to begin a couple of weeks of on-ice training with some 25 to 30 other players who live in the area. "It's pretty competitive," said Bergland. "We run through some drills and scrimmage. It's good conditioning."

Although he is looking to finish three classes that would complete his business degree work at the University of Minnesota, Bergland said he hopes to stay involved in hockey in the future. Coaching or scouting might follow his playing career.

Lincoln swimmers have numbers and talent

Quality and quantity will be featured when the Thief River Falls girls hit the water for the 1994 high school swimming season.

Thirty-five were on the preseason roster (grades 6-through-12) when practice opened Aug. 15, and head coach Ryan Lokken figures the list will have close to 45 names when summer vacations are completed.

Eighteen of them are returning letter winners, led by senior Theresa Olauque, who was the Section 8 champion in both the 200 and 500 freestyle last fall, and junior Jennifer Olin, a state meet qualifier as a diver.

"We should be pretty solid," acknowledged Lokken, who is beginning his fifth year as the Prowlers' head coach, a role he also fills during the winter for the boys.

Only seniors on a 1993 team that went 2-4 in dual meet competition were Lisa Ulrich and Jane Bentson, a pair of consistent point-producers.

Joining Olauque and Olson as returning letter winners are seniors Sarah Harger, Mandy Johnson and Mandy Sjasheim; juniors Robin Bollesen, Becky Mattson, Myndy Olson, and Cami Sorenson; sophomores Alicia Bakken, Gretchen Batalden, Kristin Chrzanowski, Becky Harger, and Melanie Johnson; freshmen Sunny Carlson, Amanda Clark and Wendy Lindquist; plus eighth grader Nicole Kopari.

"We should be okay, but it will depend on how well we develop and how much we improve," offered Lokken. "We have a good group of younger kids who should come around as the season progresses."

Rest of the preseason Thief River Falls roster includes sophomore Kelsy Stalborger; eighth graders Erin Delmore, Marisa Holmstrom and Katrina Holtan; seventh graders Julie Chrzanowski, Rachel Harger, Dayna Holland, Ericka Hudson, Andrea Olin, Meghan Reed, Stephanie Scullhorp, Andrea Sorvig, and Jenny Sorvig; along with sixth graders Melisa Clark, Ayla Donlin, Kelsi Holland, and Ammie Tuthill.

It should be a well-rounded team, according to Lokken. "We've got a lot of good strokers, and we've got a couple of good divers."

Thief River Falls was an eighth place finisher in the 16-team Section 8 meet last November.

Minnesota farm numbers down from '93 figures

The number of Minnesota farms this year is 85,000, down 2,000 from 1993, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

Minnesota's total farmland at 29.7 million acres, remained unchanged from last year.

The average farm size is 349 acres, up 8 acres from last year.

The number of farms by sales groups in Minnesota showed farm numbers in the $1,000 to $9,999 group at 30,000 down 1,000. Farm numbers in the $10,000 to $99,999 group remained the same at 34,000. Farm numbers in the $100,000-plus group dropped 1,000 to 21,000.

The number of farms in the United States in 1994 is estimated at 2.04 million, down 1 per cent from 1993.

Total land in farms is 975.0 million acres, down 2.9 million acres from last year.

Since the number of farms has continued to decline faster than the land in farms, the average farm size increased from 473 acres in 1993 to 478 in 1994.

Counties share in distribution from DNR fund

Twenty-one counties in northwest and west-central Minnesota recently received a total of $1,439,316 from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources under the state's in-lieu-of-tax payment program.

The $1.4 million was part of more than 56.5 million distributed statewide this year to Minnesota counties, in-lieu of real estate taxes for land owned or administered by the DNR.

Included in the program are state forest lands, wildlife management areas/public hunting lands, consolidated conservation lands, state trails, DNR-owned public water-access sites, county-managed tax forfeit lands, school trust fund lands, and state parks. Payments also include a portion of funds derived from the sale of state timber; plus agricultural, mineral and miscellaneous leases.

This is the 15th year that counties have received in-lieu-of-tax payments from the state.

DNR Commissioner Rod Sando said, "Each year the department makes a significant contribution to the budgets of counties throughout the state through the in-lieu-of-tax payments. Our partnership with the counties and the local governments is important to the DNR."

Local dollar distribution is based on the total acreage of state and county-administered land in each county.

By law, counties are required to deposit 40 percent of the funds received into the county general revenue fund. Another portion must be deposited into a county resource-development fund for use in forest management, fish and wildlife habitat improvement, recreational development and maintenance of county-administered natural resource lands. However, counties receiving less than $5,000 annually for resource development may elect to deposit those funds into their general revenue accounts.

Organized townships also receive a portion of the payment for road and bridge projects.

Concordia plans family weekend Sept. 11-18

Families of students attending Concordia College, will have an opportunity to experience campus life during the 1994 Family Weekend September 16-18.

Centered on the theme "Family is Forever," Family Weekend is an informal event bringing parents and siblings to campus to share their student's college experiences. In addition to attending classes and chapel services, family members will be able to visit with faculty.

Events for the weekend include an ice cream social, the President's brunch, the Family Festival, a Cobber football game with Augsburg College, and a talent showcase Saturday evening. The weekend concludes Sunday with an all-campus worship service in Memorial Auditorium.

For the fifth year, local families can participate in the "Adopt-A-Cobber" program by adopting a student whose family is unable to attend.

Heather Olson, a senior from Thief River Falls, is chair of the 1994 planning committee that consists of 28 students.

We encourage all businesses to be represented at one of the seminars."

Cost for attendance at the seminar is $50, with each business represented receiving $100 in advertising credits with The Times publications.

Artist Brad P. Jirke of Northfield gives a close-up view of his sculpture on the aviation mechanics hanger at the Thief River Falls regional airport to Dr. Orlay Gunderson, president of the Thief River Falls campus of Northwest Technical College. The sculpture was created and installed with funds from the "per cent for the arts," a percentage of public project funds required in state building expenditures. Funds available for this project totaled $18,005. The sculpture is most impressive at night when it is colorfully illuminated with neon. Additional photos and story will be published in the August 31 issue of The Times.

Rip rap project for TRF dam progresses

Thief River Falls will provide more rock for the rip rap project being conducted below the dam. Lawell Enerson of the Red Lake Watershed District appeared before the city council Tuesday evening to request assistance from the city. He explained that the contractor needed an additional 500 yards to complete the project.

The project has run into a few problems. Recently they had to take extra time to clean rock for the rip rap project. However, with the assistance of the city the contractor could have the project completed seven days from Thursday.

Enerson said he appreciated the cooperative spirit of city employees especially Ron Lindberg, engineering services director.

The city agreed to provide the additional rock for the project after Lindberg explained that he had already discussed the problem with other city employees and they thought it could be accomplished. Lindberg also added his thanks to all of the farmers who came up with the rock for the project.

■ The city will act as a facilitator for a golf club project.

The city has also agreed to participate in cost share with the Soil and Water Conservation District for a riverbank project at the Thief River Falls Golf Club. The city will act as a facilitator and no city funds will be used in the project. Gary Lane of the SWCD explained that he had received money for the project, which involves 700-feet of rip rap along the riverbank at the golf club.

■ Several variances to zoolog were discussed.

The city council approved a number of Board of Zoning Appeals and Planning Commission recommendations at the city council meeting. One of the requests was for a variance by Dee's Kitchen at 811 Atlantic Avenue North to construct a handicapped accessible restroom and an additional sales area.

The council denied a variance request by Janet Shaw at 314 Merriam Avenue North. However, it was explained that after review by staff, it was discovered that Shaw did not need a variance to complete the construction.

The city council also approved a conditional use permit request for Family Bowl Inc. to construct another storage facility.

■ Forty-five or so have filed for the city administrator position.

The city was informed that about 45 applications for the city administrator position have been filed with the Job Service department in Thief River Falls. The deadline to file for the position is August 31.

■ The parking violation ordinance has been amended.

An amendment to a parking violations ordinance changed classification of an ordinance violation from a misdemeanor to a petty misdemeanor. Under the ordinance now, the owner is presumed to be the person who parked the car.

■ A hearing date to discuss a Small Cities Development Program grant appliextion will be on September 13.

The council approved a hearing date to discuss an application grant for a downtown business district business and rehabilitation grant. The hearing date to discuss the Small Cities Development Program application will be 5:30 p.m. September 13. The public is invit-

Polaris announces plan to convert to corporation

Polaris Industries Partners L.P. has announced a plan to convert Polaris from a publicly traded limited partnership to a publicly traded corporation. The plan was proposed by W. Hall Wendel, Jr., Polaris' chief executive officer, and other members of the senior management of Polaris Industries L.P. Wendell owns approximately 5.4 per cent of the outstanding units.

The plan contemplates that the holders of currently outstanding units would receive 88.6 per cent and EIP Associates L.P., Polaris' General Partner, would receive 11.4 per cent respectively of the stock of the newly formed corporation. Any conversion of Polaris into corporate form would be subject to, among other factors, satisfactory structuring and documentation, receipt of appropriate tax opinions, receipt of regulatory approvals and a second investment banking fairness opinion and the favorable vote of unit holders.

Polaris intends to operate in the ordinary course and to continue its current distribution policy up until the time the transaction is closed.

Polaris has received the advice of Smith Barney Inc., its financial adviser, that the terms of the transaction are fair to the unitholders from a financial point of view.

Although Polaris is publicly traded, it is treated as a partnership, rather than a corporation, for federal income tax purposes under a grandfather provision of the Internal Revenue Code enacted in 1987. Under current tax law, this grandfather protection ends immediately if Polaris engages in a substantially new line of business, and, in any event, at the end of 1997, at which time Polaris will be treated as a corporation for tax purposes. Polaris has participated in efforts to have the grandfather protection for existing publicly traded partnerships made permanent or further extended, but the outcome of these efforts is uncertain.

Additionally, the General Partner believes that Polaris would derive a number of benefits from a conversion to corporate form. It would enable the company to enter into new lines of business without involuntarily jeopardizing its tax status. Conversion to corporate form should also provide Polaris greater flexibility to consummate acquisitions or obtain financing through the issuance of stock.

Importantly, at the present time, Polaris is not a suitable investment for pension plans and other tax exempt institutions. Upon conversion to corporate form, Polaris will become a suitable investment for tax exempt investors, thereby greatly expanding the number of investors to whom Polaris could be an attractive investment.

Furthermore, because Polaris is a partnership, its income is taxed currently to unitholders regardless of the amount of cash distributions which are made to them. Starting this year and for the foreseeable future, Polaris expects that there will be increasing differences between taxable income and cash available for distribution arising from capital investment necessary to continue growth of the business.

Street construction in downtown TRF ahead of schedule

Mike Miller, project superintendent for Christiansen Industrial Developers, Inc. of Bemidji, said Wednesday morning that they were a little ahead of schedule on the downtown business district street and utility project.

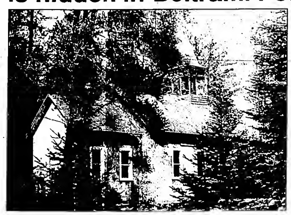
Miller said they were about one to two weeks ahead of schedule. Construction crews will continue to work in the 200 block of LaBree this week and will finish Second Street from LaBree west to the alley to accommodate United States Postal traffic. Once that is complete all that will be left is work in the 300 block of North LaBree and the east half of Second Street east of Main.

Traffic control at Davis and Atlantic on Third Street was removed earlier this week after construction on a watermain under the road was completed. Some cleanup work will be conducted in that section. Motorists will also see construction crews return to the area to work on a valve, which was not part of the watermain project.

Ron Lindberg, city engineering director, explained that the city did not want work on both projects at the same time because it would have meant closing Davis Avenue at Third Street.

Street lighting on LaBree may be back in place sometime next week. The city learned Wednesday that the apparatus and equipment for the lights had been delivered. Once the bases are prepared the lights can be put up.

The hot mix plant for the entire downtown street, sidewalk and utility project is in the process of being moved into the area. Class five gravel will be put on Horace and part of Second Street sometime in the next two to three weeks and then the hot mix will be poured on the streets.



Miller and Lindberg wanted again to remind residents and merchants in the project area to contact them if any problems arise. Many times the problems are simple and easy to resolve.

Penturen "Church of the Pines" is hidden in Beltrami Forest

The Penturen "Church of the Pines" is hidden in the western part of Beltrami Island State Forest. It is one of only three known buildings remaining of several communities of settlers and homesteaders who lived there prior to 1935. The Beltrami Island Forest Historical Restoration Society has begun restoration of the three buildings and has installed a new altar, windows and bell in the steeple. The church was once a Catholic church, but is now interdenominational. Several area churches have held special services there.

Church bells rang once again last Sunday in a clearing hidden deep in the pine forest of Beltrami Island State Forest to call people to worship at Penturen church. Penturen "Church of the Pines" is one of the few remaining buildings that show a civilization once lived and thrived in the area that is now a state forest.

Several towns, including post offices, stores and schools, grew up in the wilderness. Some of them were named Penturen, Clear River, Bankton, Elkwood, Famerer, Faunce, Hiwood, Oak, Rapid River, Winner and Schilling.

Similar to the Mud Lake territory that is now Agassiz Wildlife Refuge, settlers once flocked to the pine forests in an area stretching from Fourtown and Skime to Baudette, Roosevelt and Warroad, including parts of Roseau, Lake of the Woods and Beltrami counties.

In the 1890's up to 160 acres of cheap land were offered to each family who would come and settle in the area. And they came, bringing their families and worldly goods: cows and chickens for milk and eggs, oxen and horses to plow the virgin land, seeds to plant crops, and saws and hammers to build homes. At one time, there was a family on each quarter section of land in the three-county area of Beltrami Island State Forest.

They came and built their homes from the plentiful pines, some one-room log cabins with dirt floors, others more elaborate, multi-

Woodcrafters next meeting to be Sept. 26

There will be no August meeting of the Northland Woodcrafters which normally meets on the last Monday of each month. Next regular meeting of the group will be on Monday, September 26, at 7 p.m. at the Occupational Development Center.

"It seems that summer activities keep members too busy to be involved in woodworking or to add to another meeting," noted club president Marvin Lundin.

DOING IT RIGHT

SOUPCON

Sherry LaCoursiere

Here are some old-fashioned casserole dishes that will probably bring back memories of your childhood, and you can use your fresh garden produce in some of these recipes.

Make this old-fashioned, tasty favorite for dinner tonight:

BAKED MACARONI AND CHEESE

1 (8 ounce) package macaroni
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper
1/2 pound grated American cheese
1 cup dry bread crumbs

Cook macaroni as directed on package; drain and rinse. Place in greased casserole.

Make white sauce of butter, flour, milk and seasonings. Add 2/3 of the cheese and stir until melted.

Pour over macaroni in casserole. Sprinkle remaining cheese and crumbs over top.

Bake at 325 degrees for about 30 minutes.

Bet you had this old favorite when you were growing up:

HAMBURGER PIE

1 medium onion, chopped
1 pound ground beef
Salt and pepper
1 can (2 1/2 cups) green beans (or 1/2 pound fresh — cooked)
1 (10 1/2 ounce) can tomato soup
5 medium sized potatoes, cooked
1/2 cup warm milk
1 beaten egg

Brown onion; add meat and seasonings and brown.

Add drained cooked green beans and soup. Pour into greased casserole.

Mash potatoes with milk, egg, salt and pepper. Spoon in mounds over meat.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Heaven is a prepared place for the redeemers of the Lord. Jesus said in John 14:2 "In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."
Heaven will be a place where all our fears and insecurities will be gone. Problems such as energy crisis, financial pressures, murders, and poverty will all be gone. We will have an intimate and direct relationship with Jesus when we, as His redeemed, enter into eternal life.
I am looking forward to that glorious and blessed day. How about you?

ed and encouraged to attend. The city applied for a similar grant last year, but was turned down. The grant has been re-written and refined. Money from the grant would help finance rehabilitation projects in the downtown business district.

■ Citizens affected by city projects will be asked to attend an assessment hearing October 18.

Assessment hearing for the improvement projects conducted this summer will be held October 18 beginning at 7 p.m. At 7 p.m., the assessments for the southeast area storm sewer improvements will be discussed. At 8 p.m., assessments for the 1994 street, sidewalk and utilities improvement project will be discussed. At 9 p.m., the assessments for the 1994 sanitary sewer and watermain extension project will be discussed.

The council is expected to adopt assessment rolls for the projects on October 25.

■ The Minnesota department of transportation expects to resurface Highway 32 from Thief River Falls to Middle River in 1995.

Ron Lindberg announced at the city council meeting that he had been told that Highway 32 from Thief River Falls to Middle River would be resurfaced in 1995.

In other business, the council: authorized the fire department to advertise for a volunteer firefighter to replace an individual who resigned; authorized the public works committee to advertise for a custodian/meter reader to fill a vacancy created by a resignation; approved several dance permits; noted the city had received donations of $10,000 for the Riverwalk bridge, and $25,000 for the golf course from Hartz Foundation; noted that with the installation of automatic door openers at the library, the library would be totally handicapped accessible.

Teach youngsters early about school bus safety

Although more than 22 million pupils nationally ride school buses each day, including almost 732,000 here in Minnesota, being transported to school generally poses few dangers, according to the AAA Clubs of Minnesota.

However, it is not completely without risk. During the 1991-92 school year (the latest for which national statistics are available), an estimated 110 persons, including 35 pupils, were killed in school bus accidents. Another 8,300 students were injured.

Although there were no Minnesota students killed in school bus accidents that year, 145 students were injured.

Knowing where to stand and being alert to traffic while waiting for the bus, behaving while riding it and exiting safely can make an important difference in a student's life.

As might be expected, students are injured most often when the school bus approaches or leaves a loading area. Incidents usually occur when children near the bus move out of the driver's line of sight. This might happen when they bend down to pick up a dropped article or walk behind the bus where they can't be seen by the driver.

In an effort to help make the ride to and from school as safe as possible, the motor club offers these safety tips for parents of first-time school bus riders:

- Make sure the student leaves home early enough to arrive at the bus stop on time;
- See that the child waits for the bus in a safe place well off the roadway and remains quiet and orderly. Remind him or her that horseplay can cause someone to fall or be pushed into the path of the bus or another vehicle.
- Tell youngsters to remain seated while the bus is in motion.
- Stress the importance of keeping the aisles clear at all times. Bookbags or lunch boxes should never be left where someone might trip over them.
- Make sure the child knows the dangers of throwing things inside the bus or out the window. An object might hit the school bus driver or another motorist who might lose control and cause a collision.
- Let children know it's important to always keep their head and arms inside the bus.
- Remind students to avoid snagging backpack straps, drawstrings or loose clothing on bus handrails when exiting the bus. If they need to cross the street, tell them to do so well in front of the bus where they can see the bus driver. This way, there's a good chance the driver can see them, too.

Getting new students off to a safe start is among the most valuable lessons they will learn.

The following tips for motorists are also offered:

- Obey posted limits in school zones.
- Be alert to directions from school crossing guards.
- When a school bus is loading or unloading children, motorists must stop 20 feet away and remain stopped while the bus displays its stop arm sign and flashing red signal.
- Stay back at least four to six seconds when following a school bus.

Some Random Thoughts On Strikes Of Sorts....

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

Strikes are in the news these days, ranging from the UTU strike against the Canadian Pacific Railroad's Soo Line railway to the players' strike against major league baseball to the "three strikes and you're out" provisions of the highly controversial Crime Bill in the U.S. Congress. It is virtually impossible to keep the word "strike" out of any conversation of current events.

The Crime Bill's provision for extensive sentencing for persons who commit a third felony offense is of itself offensive to us. We prefer a "one strike and you're in" policy, whereby the first violent felony offense is severely punishable by a long time behind bars. Why give a criminal a "grace period" to find more victims and subject more innocent people to criminal activity? How do you explain to a second and third victim that someone with a demonstrated criminal behavior has been given the opportunity to prove just how bad he or she can be?

The baseball strike seems to be getting little enough attention, and fittingly so. While we admit to enjoying watching professional baseball, we really have no interest in how two groups of millionaires settle their differences on how to divide the spoils from ripping off the fans. And if you want a surefire way to avoid baseball withdrawal symptoms, take on a house painting project. We can tell you from firsthand experience that you won't give a second thought to who the Twins might have lost to today.

The UTU strike against the Soo probably hits a lot closer to home than either of the strikes mentioned above. There is a significant number of railroad people in our community, many of whom we know personally, and most of whom are off the job either as UTU members or as members of other railroad unions in sympathy with the UTU position. And it is only natural that those on strike feel justified in their action and would like to be supported in it. In fact, they have openly asked for support in the community.

Personally, we don't have a very high opinion of strikes. Too often they create more problems than they solve and they allow emotions to impede reason. They contribute to bitterness and animosity and spiteful actions such as name-calling and taunting that no one needs in their lives. And they make pawns of the rank and file as officials play power struggle games in an attempt to justify their existence.

That said, it is still possible to be supportive of the people if not of the action, strange as that may seem. We can understand how workers feel the necessity to make a statement to employers they have never met personally and do not deal with directly. We can empathize with those who have placed their livelihoods on the line and who have opted for a strong commitment to effecting change by collective action. A lot of good people went on strike. They are still good people, and as long as they continue to exercise good judgment, they will remain good people. Good people are deserving of understanding and support.

Labor union leaders do not have a history of being 100 per cent truthful with their members. It is easier to suppress dissent if they can create an attitude of oppression by management, thereby maintaining a unified resentment by the workers. And by the same token, management presents only the side it wants portrayed. That's why we believe trying to achieve settlement by confrontation is rarely in anyone's best interest, and is seldom the way differences would be resolved on a person-to-person basis.

Warranted or not, labor strikes are stressful actions. Those involved are deserving of understanding.

U.S. Stature Diminished As International Power

Stature of the United States of America as an accepted leader in international circles has been diminished over the past few years, partially due to the emergence of other industrialized nations and partially due to the inability of our federal government to provide clear and decisive leadership on its own domestic front.

Elmer L. Andersen, publisher of the ABC Newspapers, writing in the Anoka Union, calls attention to the importance of regaining some of that stature. A former governor of Minnesota, Andersen is a student of government with a keen awareness of how it should work in our country. He writes as follows:

"Our recent national efforts in world affairs have done little to improve our own international situation, add to our stature in world affairs, or had much effect in the areas where we have participated or led intervention and activity. It is hard to avoid the conclusion that our efforts have been more designed to create the public perception of international leadership and strength without undertaking the serious long-range commitments that many situations require.

"There is a certain arrogance in feeling that we are the only ones who care and must respond. It is time for a clearer realization that we cannot solve the whole world's problems. Other nations may have a truer idea of the scope of undertakings and a truer and franker realization of their own limitations and thus, regretfully, do not take on every unfortunate situation that develops.

"In more than one case we have expended resources, risked and sacrificed lives, then withdrawn, with little or no long range gain to show for our efforts. We have sought United Nations Security Council approval for nearly unilateral action without a careful study and commitment to the long range need. Sometimes we have bluffed ultimatums only to have them called, to our embarrassment.

"There would be a great advantage in getting grass roots expression of just what role American citizens would like the nation to play, how to play it, and what resources to bring to bear—having in mind the state of our own national finances and the many domestic problems needing attention.

"Conferences could be initiated in counties, moved to congressional districts, then to state meetings and finally a national conference on America's role in world affairs. Something must be done. We need a national course that is stable, predictable and long range, with full consideration of our own national self-interest and realistic appraisal of our current capabilities.

"We emerged as the victor in the cold war. Concurrently democracy was on the increase throughout the world. Our nation had the best opportunity in this century to exert a shared world leadership for our own and the common good. We have failed to grasp that opportunity. It is time we developed a strategy and insisted on bipartisan implementation."

Child support laws changed to protect Minnesota taxpayers

by Hubert Humphrey III
Minnesota Attorney General

Child support is a private matter, right? Wrong. When child support goes unpaid, many families are forced to go on welfare. These child support deadbeats cost Minnesota taxpayers over $400 million.

August is Child Support Awareness Month, a good time to renew our commitment to the victims of non-payment — taxpayers, custodial parents, and most importantly, our children.

Last February, we proposed a package of legislative initiatives to strengthen, streamline, and restructure the child support collection system. Starting this month, we now have some tough new laws to protect the rights of children and taxpayers:

- It is now a felony to neglect to pay child support for more than 180 days. This will not only serve as a strong deterrent to non-payment, it will also allow us to more effectively track down the 30 per cent of non-payers who live outside Minnesota. Once a felony warrant is transmitted to other state's law enforcement officials, the non-paying parent can be identified if stopped for a traffic offense or any other violation. He or she then can be extradited to Minnesota to set in process an automatic income withholding procedure.
- The court-based child support system is currently being redesigned as an administrative process that is more user friendly and less dependent on expensive lawyers. Parents should not have to spend thousands in attorney's fees to collect what is legally their children's.
- Professional licenses issued by the state can now be revoked or suspended for child-support non-payment. Licensed professionals, such as doctors, plumbers, and realtors, now have a powerful economic reason to pay attention to their parental responsibility. The mere threat of suspension has greatly increased collections in other states.

The message is clear: child support collection is serious business in Minnesota. For more information about the rights of the 185,000 Minnesota children involved in the state's child support system, please contact my office.

Kay Wedul earns awards

Katherine Wedul, FIC, of Thief River Falls, recently earned two awards from the National Association of Life Underwriters. Wedul is a district representative of Lutheran Brotherhood's Donald P. Johnson Agency in Fargo, ND.

The National Sales Achievement Award honors those in the insurance business who achieve production standards of 100 paid policies in a 13-month period. Paid policies refers to policies that have gone into effect.

The National Quality award honors those in the insurance business who write a minimum of 25 policies and who achieve 90 per cent persistency for a minimum of 13 months. Persistency refers to the number of policies that remain in force during a specified time period.

Gas prices high for motorists on Labor Day

Minnesota motorists will pay more for gasoline this Labor Day than they did during the Fourth of July holiday. The AAA reports that the average price of unleaded self-serve gasoline is $1.274 per gallon. This is an increase of .132 cents.

Prices have climbed throughout the country this summer, especially in the East and Midwest. According to Ron Siegmund, AAA spokesperson, several factors have contributed to a strong demand, low supply market. A number of Midwest refineries have had minor problems throughout the summer, and several pipelines that supply gasoline and crude oil to the area have been shut down due to repair leaks. The six-week Nigerian oil-workers strike continues to have a strong influence on our market. Furthermore, after a couple of poor summers for driving, demand for gasoline has been high this year.

Compared to a year ago, when unleaded, self-serve gasoline was $1.129, the price of gas has increased by .145 cents.

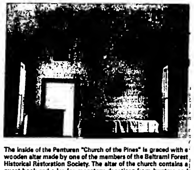
Polaris announces plan to incorporate reducing each unitholder's net after tax distribution amount.

If Polaris were to convert to corporate form, its income would be taxed at the corporate level, and investors would only be taxed on any amounts actually distributed to them.

Lastly, conversion to corporate form will simplify tax reporting, including the elimination of the requirement to distribute K-1 reports to investors, and will otherwise significantly simplify the organizational structure of Polaris resulting in substantial administrative and other savings.



It should be noted, however, that conversion to corporate form would result in taxation at the corporate level and, to the extent of cash dividends, on distributions at the shareholder level. Company policies relating to cash distributions to equity holders, as well as other policies, which would be established by a board of directors elected by shareholders rather than by a general partner, could change substantially.

Polaris said it intends to proceed promptly to finalize the conversion arrangements and implement the transaction, which it anticipates completing within six months.

Polaris also announced that it will pay its regular third quarter distribution of $0.63 per unit to holders of record on September 15, 1994. The units go "es-dividend" on September 9, 1994. Payment of this distribution will be made on or about November 15.

Polaris Industries Partners L.P. is a master limited partnership which owns and operates Polaris Industries L.P. Polaris designs, engineers, manufactures and markets snowmobiles, all-terrain vehicles and personal watercraft for recreational and utility use. Polaris is the world's largest snowmobile manufacturer, and one of the largest U.S. manufacturers of ATVs and personal watercraft. Polaris Industries Partners L.P. trades on the American Stock Exchange and Pacific Stock Exchange under the symbol "SNO".

Help when you need it

The inside of the Penturen "Church of the Pines" is graced with a wooden altar made by one of the members of the Beltrami Forest Historical Restoration Society. The altar of the church contains a guest book and a jar for monetary donations from hunters and other visitors who pass by and stop in. Donations are used by the Restoration Society to make repairs on the church and two other buildings, the Winner silo and a log cabin located northeast of Clear River, that are the only remnants of several communities that once flourished in the Beltrami Island State Forest.

Plummer school to start classes on September 6

Classes for students in first through 12th grades at the Plummer school will begin Tuesday morning, September 6, according to Richard Lorenson, superintendent. Kindergarten classes will begin on Wednesday, September 7.

School hours will be from 8:25 a.m. to 3:06 p.m. Kindergarten will meet for full days on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week.

School fees may be paid at any time before September 6. Individual students meals will cost 90 cents for elementary students and $1 for high school students. A five per cent discount is given when a 43-meal full-price ticket is purchased (actual cost will be $36.77 for elementary students and $40.85 for high school students). Annual meal tickets are also available at $147.06 for elementary and $163.40 for high school students.

The school also serves breakfast at a cost of 50 cents per student, high school or elementary. A 43-day breakfast ticket is $20.43 and a full year's ticket is $81.70.

Milk for break time is being sponsored by the Plummer Lions club.

Activity tickets which provide admission to athletic and other student events are available at a cost of $10 for students, $20 for adults, $30 for couples or $40 for families.

Individual admission prices will be $3 for adults, $2 for senior citizens and $1 for students. Preschool children are admitted free of charge. Students in grades 7-12 must also pay a $10 athletic participation fee if they take part in the school's athletic program. The fee must be paid prior to the first contest of the participant's sport.

Supt. Lorenson noted that if school students are sent home due to emergency weather or other conditions, a notice will be broadcast on radio stations KTRF and KKAQ in Thief River Falls. If weather or roads are unsafe for bus travel, students will be provided storm homes for the duration of the emergency.

Each student will receive a student handbook with guidelines that will apply to students at both the Plummer and Oklee schools. Staff, students and parents have all contributed to creation of the handbook.

School business can be transacted at the school office from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays. The phone number is 465-4222.

School patrol members from Thief River Falls recently attended the Legionville School patrol Camp under sponsorship of Post 117 of the American Legion and Auxiliary in Thief River Falls. School patrols have performed admirably for many years at local elementary school crossings, but all elementary students will attend the new Challenger elementary school this year. It is expected that some of the school patrol members will be used as school bus patrol volunteers this year on the in-town routes collecting students for bus trips to Challenger. Motorists are advised to be aware of the new transportation system and drive with care in bus loading and unloading areas. Girls who attended Legionville are pictured in the top photo and include (left to right) Karla Zblewski, Janea Harlow, Lisa Carlson, Nicole Ryan, Miriah Johnson, Beth Padilla and Nickie Amundson. Not pictured is Chelsea Haviland. Boys who attended are in the bottom photo and include (left to right) Joseph Donarski, Brent Fulton, Cody Knutson, Michael Kimball, Jason Blakely and Beau Bergner.

Business financing for new or expanding business

Financing assistance for new or expanding businesses in northwestern Minnesota is available through the Northwest Regional Enterprise Fund. Loans are available to fill the gap between the total cost of a project and the amount that is available through owner investment, bank financing and other private sources.

This loan program can finance, at a reduced interest rate, up to one-third of the total cost of a project. The program provides this funding to encourage the creation of jobs and the investment of capital in the area.

Financing for this program originated through federal funding from the Economic Development Administration in the amount of $1,025,000 and with local matching funds of $392,000.

The Enterprise Fund is a non-profit organization which provides gap financing to businesses in Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, and Roseau counties.

For additional information, contact Linda Nelson at the Northwest Regional Development Commission, 218-681-2637 or 1-800-450-2637.

New coach leads Wolverines in '94

A veteran Grygla/Goodridge team has a new coach heading into the 1994 high school volleyball season.

The coaching duties fall to Katrina Rode, who succeeds Tim Mostrom. She is a Benson native and a Concordia College graduate who coached seventh grade volleyball in West Fargo last year.

Rode inherits a program that won just one match in 1993, but it's also a team that did not have a single senior on the 1993 roster.

Restoring confidence was going to be a priority item in early practice sessions, acknowledged Rode, but that task has been made easier by Wolverines themselves. "I think the girls have looked good," said Rode. "Their attitude has been great."

The list of returning players is headed by hitters Jodi Manderud, Oeanna Koirbe and Rachel Rychlock, along with setters Jamie Berndt and Shauna Thomas. Manderud is a senior; the others are juniors.

Mustangs return two starters in volleyball

Senior Rachel Demarais and junior Marie Austad are returning starters who will be expected to lead Red Lake County during the upcoming 1994 high school volleyball season.

Austad and Meckenzie Malwitz figure to be the Mustangs' top hitters. Demarais and Patty Greenwald will do the setting. Malwitz and Greenwald are juniors.

Coach Nancy Bray will be looking to improve on the Mustangs' 8-16 finish a year ago.

"We're inexperienced, but it's one of the taller teams we've had," explained Bray. "We've got a couple of good hitters and a couple of setters. It's a good bunch of kids to work with."

High school volleyball...

TRF should have solid line-up

Helen Anderson feels good about her 1994 Thief River Falls high school volleyball team. The Prowlers have experience, they have a handful of strong hitters and they have a couple of quality setters. A combination like that would make most coaches feel good.

There were only two seniors on last year's 12-14 team – Toni Chiodo and Jamie Martell. They were arguably the Prowlers' top players, but what they miss in quality they hope to make up in quantity.

Varsity returnees include seniors Carrie Lawrence, Sarah Hoschle, Kelly Skeim and Jenny Drury, along with juniors Kendra Dimich, Maren Thorson and Heather Holthusen.

"We've got a lot of experience back," confirmed Anderson. "Kelly and Kendra are both excellent setters, and all of the kids can hit the ball. We should be solid. I'm real excited. I think we'll do well."

Rest of the preseason roster for grades 9-through-12 includes juniors Carrie Rud, Sarah Koland and Lisa Odegaard; sophomores Erica Owen, Kim Hook, Danielle Goulet, Katie Kraemer, Alissa Austad, Jenni Eriksen, Angie Erickson, Amy Wessel, Kylie Peterson, Kelly Clark, Missy Hams, Angie Judd, Amber Troy, Stephanie Wold, Vanessa Lundeen, Jessica Brekke, Lisa Simon, Katie Lendobeja, and Erika Allepeter; plus freshmen Michelle Mathson, Desirae Alberg, Jenny Brunkhorst, Becky Hoven, Beth Olson, Monica Schroeder, Brieann Fugelberg, Tina Halse, Jamie Philipp, Kelly Almquist, Becky McKerchner, Heather Torsvelt, Sarah Hagen, Holly Bjorgaard, Amber Klinker, Erica McGeary, Lisa Dicken, Kim Haugen, and Kristen Odegaard.

Nordics look for improvement

■ MCC football team coming off 0-8 season

Marshall County Central will have no where to go but up when the 1994 high school football season opens Sept. 1. After 0-8 finish last fall, even a modest win total will have the Nordics heading in the right direction.

"There's plenty of room for improvement," admitted Marshall County Central coach Kent Warne. "I still set some goals, but they're realistic goals. We want to do well, of course, but it would be great to even get a couple of wins."

Warne said the Nordics appear ready to take on the comeback challenge. "The attitude is improved," he said. "The kids want to play. They're excited about the season."

The Nordics won't beat many teams in a foot race, admitted Warne, but they should be able to hold their own, physically. "We don't have a lot of speed, but we do have size," he pointed out.

Anchoring the line will be a pair of sophomores – 6-6, 345-pound Corey Hanson and 6-2, 220-pound Kevin Engelsrud.

Runningback/linebacker Craig Ranum and offensive/defensive lineman Matt Augustine are the only seniors on the team.

Trever Magner, a 6-3, 180-pound linebacker, led the Nordics in tackles last year as a sophomore.

Terry Olson was used as a defensive back last fall, but the 5-11, 165-pound junior will be playing quarterback this time around.

Hruby, Chiodo are ironman test winners

Jason Hruby was the top-scoring lineman and Nick Chiodo led the backs' point totals in the annual Ironman Championships conditioning tests that kick off the start of Thief River Falls preseason high school football drills.

Testing for all sophomores, juniors and seniors involved timed runs and weight room efforts – when players were required to lift a percentage of their own weight.

Recognition went to the top three scorers for linemen and backs in each class, with overall champion honors going to Hruby, who collected 82 of a possible 90 points, and Chiodo, who scored 81.

G/G Blue Devils will benefit from improved speed

Speed was a missing ingredient last fall when Grygla/Goodridge struggled through a 2-6 high school football season. The 1994 Blue Devils may still find it tough to stay with the really fast teams, but at least the race should be closer.

"Our overall team speed should be better," explained Grygla/Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen. "We were a little disappointed last year. We won't be the favorite, but we hope to be a little better this year."

The offense will be led by senior quarterback Brady Wiseth and junior end Jamie Lunsetter. Seniors Jim Verbout and Ryan Kriel are the top runningback candidates.

Kevin Warne, a 175-pound senior, has been moved from runningback to the line, where Aaron Miller, a 200-pound senior, is the most experienced player.

"We've got a lot of seniors, but they don't have a lot of experience," noted Hagen, who is beginning his 19th years as a coach. "If the seniors play like seniors and the younger kids come around, we could be all right."

Gators' volleyball team is optimistic

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River fell a little short of preseason goals last year, but with four starters returning from a 10-17 team, the Gators are once again optimistic heading into the 1994 high school volleyball season.

"It looks promising," said Owen Borgen, who is starting her 16th year as head coach. "We should be competitive. We've got a good nucleus coming back, and we've got some kids coming up from the junior varsity who are looking pretty good."

Seniors Jessica Borgen, Ali Hietala and Heather Anderson, along with junior Krissi Super, were starters a year ago.

Hietala and Lund are setters.

MCC volleyball squad faces a rebuilding job

A talent search is underway in Newfolden this fall as Marshall County Central volleyball coach Mark Jorgenson tries to find replacements for seven seniors who led the Nordics to a 24-3 record and a Section 8A Sub-Section 4 runner-up finish in 1993.

Several of those seniors were fixtures in the Nordics' line-up for two or three years.

"We've got a lot of holes to fill," acknowledged Jorgenson, who is beginning his sixth year as head coach. "We're inexperienced, and most of the kids we have this year haven't played together at all. Right now, I have no idea what our line-up is going to look like. It's a real coaching experience – It's like starting all over."

The Nordics will build around junior Tricia Pederson, an all-conference pick last year. Senior Missy Lund, a setter, and junior Darlene Nelson saw playing time off the bench in 1993. Senior Erika Halvorson caught the attention of coaches in early drills.

"It's going to take a lot of work," said Jorgenson. "It's going to take time to develop. We'll just try to focus on the positive."

The bell in the steeple of the Penturen "Church of the Pines" called worshippers to service once again last Sunday when the Wannaska Lutheran parish held services there. The church was once a part of the settlement of Penturen, one of several towns that flourished in Beltrami Island State Forest from the turn of the century until 1935, when the government turned the area into a state forest. The church is well hidden in the corner of Elkwood township in Roseau county. The present Penturen church was built in 1926, after the original log church, built in 1908, was demolished by fire.

Penturen "Church of the Pines" hides in Beltrami State Forest

roomed, two-story houses made with logs. Soon stores, schools and churches were built to accommodate the growing population, and a civilization came to be.

Most of the settlers farmed, but many of the men supplemented their incomes by logging, either leaving home for weeks on end and working at the lumber camps, or by selling logs they cut by hand to Marvin Lumber company or the railroad for ties.

Wild game was plentiful and venison, rabbits and partridge made up a great part of the settlers' diets. There were also edible berries and plants to provide nourishment. Berries were picked in season and canned for future meals. Children almost always carried some sort of fruit sauce in their school lunch buckets.

Penturen church is located in the corner of Elkwood township in Roseau county, in the western part of the state forest. To reach the church, from Skime one would travel east on the Winner Forest Road, then south on the Penturen Forest Road, and then east, passing several graveyards marked with small fences. Both the church and its namesake, the town of Penturen, were established about 1908. According to records, the 3.9 acres of land were deeded to the church by Frank Gsoski.

The church was originally a Roman Catholic church called St. James church, made of logs by settlers who wanted a place to worship. The little log church was destroyed in a fire and little is known of it, since all records were destroyed in the fire along with the church.

The Penturen church of today was constructed on the site of St. James church in 1926 by the Warroad Catholic parish. It was then named the Church of St. Joseph. The church did not have a permanent priest, but one from a neighboring parish would come to offer mass for the faithful about six times a year.

Because the Beltrami Island area was swampy and wet, drainage ditches were constructed there just as in the Mud Lake area. But the ditches did not drain the area the way they were expected to. During the hard Depression years in the 1930's, many homesteaders found the area too difficult to farm and left the area. When millions of dollars of taxes were due and owing, several businessmen persuaded the government to buy out the remaining settlers and make the area into a state preserve.

Like the Mud Lakers, settlers in the Beltrami Island State Forest were forced to pack their belongings and move elsewhere, leaving their homes and livelihoods behind. Nearly all of the houses and cabins that remained were burned in order to discourage squatters.

Under the Resettlement Act of 1935, over 1,000 men were hired to work at Norris Camp, building dams and planting trees to restore the area to its natural state.

Only the Penturen church, the Winner silo, and one log house located northeast of Clear River remain to remind us of the Beltrami Island settlement.

In the 1980's, a group called the Beltrami Island Forest Historical Restoration Society undertook the project of restoring the three remaining buildings. The Winner Silo was restored and stands as the only remnant of the town of Winner.

Grant Eismoe of Wannaska, chairman of the Restoration Society, said that volunteers and donations have helped greatly in the restoration of the church. Lumber companies and sawmills donated lumber and shingles, and clubs and organizations gave donations of money to help purchase other materials.

A new altar and pews were constructed, along with new windows. A large wooden cross now hangs above the altar, made by Restoration Society member Harry Olson, and the steeple has a new bell.

According to information in the July 4, 1991, issue of the "Badger Enterprise," a much-needed outhouse mysteriously appeared at the church site about 1989. It was discovered that twin brothers, the Killchowskis from Minto, ND, had been coming to the church to mow the lawn around their grandfather's grave, and they had secretly donated the outhouse. The Killchowskis' grandfather, Jacob Szczesny, had helped build the Church of St. Joseph in 1926, shortly before he died.

In June of 1992, Fr. Duane Pribula, a Catholic priest, conducted a rededication of the church with 120 people attending the service. Although originally a Catholic church, Penturen is now interdenominational. Bethesda Lutheran church of Skime held summer services there in 1992 and 1993, and last Sunday the Wannaska Lutheran parish held special church services at Penturen church.

Last summer a wedding took place at the Penturen church. Gretchen Mehmel, Red Lake Wildlife Manager, and Jeff Birchem, DNR game warden, chose the church as the setting for their wedding.

The church is open for the public to use and enjoy. The state has installed picnic tables there and more and more people are finding their way to the secret place where the "Church of the Pines" is hidden.

Arbitrator rules for RLF teachers

Red Lake Falls — A state arbitrator ruled in favor of the Red Lake Falls Education Association and the teachers in a recent contention between the school board and the Red Lake Falls Education Association. "The school will pay back pay (to the teachers) until something is changed in the ... contract," said Superintendent Russ Sethre. The school board and teachers will now continue to discuss the teacher contracts, which were to be agreed upon by January 19, 1994.

Fire in Roseau destroys business

Roseau — A furniture stripping and refinishing business, Furniture Re-Store, in Roseau, owned by Gordie Broten, burned August 19, destroying the entire rear section of the building. The fire started in a dip tank and caught in the old paint and varnish residue at the bottom of the tank. Antique furniture owned by Broten was destroyed, as well as some pieces that were in the process of being refinished for others. Broten did not have insurance on the business.

Jacinda Bergeron, 8, who received a letter from President Bill Clinton declining her invitation to attend the opening of Challenger elementary school, writes a letter to thank him for his reply. Her mother, Colleen, holds the letter from the President.

Jacinda Bergeron Knows...

President won't attend opening of Challenger

Eight-year-old Jacinda Bergeron, daughter of Gale and Colleen Bergeron, knows that President Bill Clinton won't be attending the opening of the new Challenger elementary school in Thief River Falls. She has a letter from him that says so.

During this summer, Jacinda and her friend Riely Jesme (daughter of Myron and Rose Jesme), age nine, had a project of writing a letter a week. Most of them were written to cousins or friends, but on August 11 Jacinda wrote to President Clinton.

"In the letter she wrote her name and age and told about her letter writing project," states Jacinda's mother, Colleen. "She wrote that the students who went to four grade schools in town would now all be going to one big new school called Challenger. And she invited him to come and visit on opening day, September 19."

On Wednesday, August 31, the Bergeron's mail included a letter to Jacinda from the White House in Washington, DC. The letter reads:

Dear Jacinda:

Thanks so much for asking me to visit your school. I'm glad to know that you are proud of your teachers and classmates. I'm sorry that I can't visit with you at this time. However, I hope that someday I will have the opportunity.

I encourage you to continue to make your school proud of you. By setting goals and studying hard, you can prepare for the time when your generation will be leading America. Become involved in your community, and together we can make a difference.

Sincerely,
Bill Clinton (signature)

Farm Women of the Year are selected in counties

Lauretta Stucy of Goodridge, Janice Larson of Gatzke, Cindy Payment of Red Lake Falls, LaVonne Knudson of Warroad and Tabitha Ubel of Williams are among 12 women from the Red River Valley selected as county winners in the 1994 Farm Women of the Year competition. They respectively represent Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake, Roseau and Lake of the Woods counties.

The Red River Valley selection, made from the county winners, will be announced at the Harvest of Knowledge Agri-Women's conference Friday, October 28, at the Comfort Inn of East Grand Forks.

County winners are guests of honor at the annual evening banquet and the winner is awarded a trip for herself and her spouse to the 1995 National American Agri-Women convention in Portland, OR. Two runners-up will receive a trip to Washington, DC for the annual American Agri-Women Fly-in. Each county winner receives an engraved watch honoring her accomplishments in the agricultural community.

Banquet speaker this year will be George Sinner, former North Dakota governor and current vice president for public affairs at American Crystal Sugar Co. For information on registration for the conference contact Karen Landman at Route 1, Box 141, Northwood, ND 58267 or call 701-326-4523.

Lauretta Stucy and her husband Edward operate a dairy, beef and grain farm at Goodridge with their son Ronald. They also have a daughter, Norma. Among the county Farm Women of the Year candidates, Lauretta leads in years of farming with 41. She is involved in all aspects of the farm operation, working along with her husband and son.

In addition to the farm work, Lauretta is active in her church, 4-H organization, PTA and the Pennington County Fair. She has also given leadership to the local National Farmers Organization and Farmers Union and has taken every opportunity to learn more about record keeping and marketing.

Janice Larson and her husband Wayne are dairy farmers in the Gatzke area east of Middle River. They milk 45 cows, raise their own replacement heifers, raise about 100 dairy beef steers and raise much of their own feed on 865 acres of land.

Janice has been very active in the local American Dairy Association by promoting dairy products in her community and county and chairing the Marshall County Dairy Princess Contest. The county 4-H club program and work in her church have also kept her busy, along with raising their four sons, now ages 16 to 24.

Cindy Payment, her husband Darell and their four children farm about 1,100 acres just east of Red Lake Falls where they raise registered and certified wheat and barley as well as confectionery sunflowers, corn and potatoes.

Cindy and Darell are working partners in their farm, setting goals, planting and harvesting each year's crop. Cindy enjoys working with details, which fits nicely into record keeping for the farm and raising certified seed. The Payments are active members of their church, farm business management association and the Minnesota Crop Improvement Association.

LaVonne Knudson and her husband Clair, along with the youngest of four children, Jonathan, operate a dairy and beef farm where they milk 40 cows and maintain a beef cow herd of 50 animals in a cow-calf operation.

LaVonne spends much of her time on the tractor, planting and harvesting the small grain, feed and hay crops grown on the 520-acre farm. In her "spare time" she keeps the farm records, manages the household and participates in community activities. She serves on the board of the county Farmers Home Administration and works with the local American Dairy Association, Dairy Herd Improvement Association, ASCS and Land O'Lakes milk producer boards.

Tabitha Ubel and her husband Dennis are dairy producers at Williams and have two children. Originally from Iowa, Tabitha has a bachelor's degree in communications from the University of Northern Iowa. She married Dennis in 1989 and joined him in managing the 50-cow milking operation along with a large grain farm.

Another farm goal has now been realized as they are adding a beef herd to the total farming operation. As former Lake of the Woods county King Agassiz participants, they continue their involvement in community leadership through the county fair and their church.

Other county winners from Minnesota are Lori Lee Akre, Hawley, Clay county; Linda Perrine, Perham, Ottertail county; and Donna Ulseth, Crookston, Polk county.

"35 Years of Progress in Floral Reflections"

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

The 35th Annual Horticultural Show of northwestern Minnesota's 13th district was held August 20 at the Goodridge Community Center. Garden clubs from around the area competed in this year's event, which was titled, "35 Years of Progress in Floral Reflections."

Hosts of the event were members of the Moccasin Garden club of Thief River Falls, Deer Park Garden club of Goodridge, and the Viking Town and Country Garden club. Clubs from Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Lake of the Woods, Roseau and Kittson counties took part in the show.

Awards were given to the garden club with the highest number of "points" in the show. This award was presented to the Gro-Rite Garden club of Badger with a grand total of 585 points.

The award to the individual exhibitor with the highest number of points was received by 85-year-old Olga Nelson of Thief River Falls' Moccasin Garden club with 130 points.

The award to the exhibitor with the second highest number of points was presented to LaVonne Knudson of Roseau's Green Thumb Garden club with 120 points.

A special award was given to Beatrice Wilson of the Moccasin club of Thief River Falls for her champion new variety, the Fanfare cucumber.

Many of the awards were given as memorials for Inga Geving, who was the first president of the district, and also in memory of Anna Waale, Luella Peterson, Glen Lendobeja and Herman Christopherson.

Judges for the events were Glenice Johnson of Crookston, Sue Jacobson of Fertile, and Rhonda Amundson of Thief River Falls.

Flower arrangements were judged in four divisions, Class A, or Novice division, for those who have won less than 15 blue ribbons for arrangements; Class B for exhibitors who have earned 15 or more blue ribbons for arrangements at previous shows; and Class C, or Goldies division, for those age 65 or older.

Grand Champion exhibit winner in Class A was Joan Green of Greenbush, a member of Badger's Gro-Rite Garden club, with her arrangement, "Free as a Breeze." She also received the most points.

Grand champion exhibit winner in Class B was an arrangement called "Country, by Helen Erickson of Badger, also a Gro-Rite member. Most points in that class were tied between Dianne Wilson of the Moccasin club and Betty Mohrbacher of Warroad of the Gro-Rite club.

The bell in the steeple of the Penturen "Church of the Pines" called worshippers to service once again last Sunday when the Wanneske Lutheran parish held services there. The church was once a part of the settlement of Penturen, one of several towns that flourished in Beltrami Island State Forest from the turn of the century until 1935, when the government turned the area into a state forest. The church is well hidden in the corner of Elkwood township in Roseau county. The present Penturen church was built in 1926, after the original log church, built in 1908, was demolished by fire.

roomed, two-story houses made with logs. Soon stores, schools and churches were built to accommodate the growing population, and a civilization came to be.

Most of the settlers farmed, but many of the men supplemented their incomes by logging, either leaving home for weeks on end and working at the lumber camps, or by selling logs they cut by hand to Marvin Lumber company or the railroad for ties.

Wild game was plentiful and venison, rabbits and partridge made up a great part of the settlers' diets. There were also edible berries and plants to provide nourishment. Berries were picked in season and canned for future meals. Children almost always carried some sort of fruit sauce in their school lunch buckets.

Penturen church is located in the corner of Elkwood township in Roseau county, in the western part of the state forest. To reach the church, from Skime one would travel east on the Winner Forest Road, then south on the Penturen Forest Road, and then east, passing several graveyards marked with small fences. Both the church and its namesake, the town of Penturen, were established about 1908. According to records, the 3.9 acres of land were deeded to the church by Frank Ososki.

The church was originally a Roman Catholic church called St. James church, made of logs by settlers who wanted a place to worship. The little log church was destroyed in a fire and little is known of it, since all records were destroyed in the fire along with the church.

The Penturen church of today was constructed on the site of St. James church in 1926 by the Warroad Catholic parish. It was then named the Church of St. Joseph. The church did not have a permanent priest, but one from a neighboring parish would come to offer mass for the faithful about six times a year.

Because the Beltrami Island area was swampy and wet, drainage ditches were constructed there just as in the Mud Lake area. But the ditches did not drain the area the way they were expected to. During the hard Depression years in the 1930's, many homesteaders found the area too difficult to farm and left the area. When millions of dollars of taxes were due and owing, several businessmen persuaded the government to buy out the remaining settlers and make the area into a state preserve.

Like the Mud Lakers, settlers in the Beltrami Island State Forest were forced to pack their belongings and move elsewhere, leaving their homes and livelihoods behind. Nearly all of the houses and cabins that remained were burned in order to discourage squatters.

Under the Resettlement Act of 1935, over 1,000 men were hired to work at Norris Camp, building dams and planting trees to restore the area to its natural state.

Only the Penturen church, the Winner silo, and one log house located northeast of Clear River remain to remind us of the Beltrami Island settlement.

In the 1980's, a group called the Beltrami Island Forest Historical Restoration Society undertook the project of restoring the three remaining buildings. The Winner Silo was restored and stands as the only remnant of the town of Winner.

Grant Eismoe of Wannaska, chairman of the Restoration Society, said that volunteers and donations have helped greatly in the restoration of the church. Lumber companies and sawmills donated lumber and shingles, and clubs and organizations gave donations of money to help purchase other materials.

A new altar and pews were constructed, along with new windows. A large wooden cross now hangs above the altar, made by Restoration Society member Harry Olson, and the steeple has a new bell.

According to information in the July 4, 1991, issue of the "Badger Enterprise," a much-needed outhouse mysteriously appeared at the church site about 1989. It was discovered that twin brothers, the Kilichowskis from Minto, ND, had been coming to the church to mow the lawn around their grandfather's grave, and they had secretly donated the outhouse. The Kilichowskis' grandfather, Jacob Szezesny, had helped build the Church of St. Joseph in 1926, shortly before he died.

In June of 1992, Fr. Duane Pribula, a Catholic priest, conducted a rededication of the church with 120 people attending the service. Although originally a Catholic church, Penturen is now interdenominational. Bethesda Lutheran church of Skime held summer services there in 1992 and 1993, and last Sunday the Wannaska Lutheran parish held special church services at Penturen church.

Last summer a wedding took place at the Penturen church. Gretchen Mehmel, Red Lake Wildlife Manager, and Jeff Birchem, DNR game warden, chose the church as the setting for their wedding.

The church is open for the public to use and enjoy. The state has installed picnic tables there and more and more people are finding their way to the secret place where the "Church of the Pines" is hidden.

"35 Years of Progress in Floral Reflections"

by Sherry LaCoursiere
Northern Watch Reporter

The 35th Annual Horticultural Show of northwestern Minnesota's 13th district was held August 20 at the Goodridge Community Center. Garden clubs from around the area competed in this year's event, which was titled, "35 Years of Progress in Floral Reflections."

Hosts of the event were members of the Moccasin Garden club of Thief River Falls, Deer Park Garden club of Goodridge, and the Viking Town and Country Garden club. Clubs from Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Lake of the Woods, Roseau and Kittson counties took part in the show.

Awards were given to the garden club with the highest number of "points" in the show. This award was presented to the Gro-Rite Garden club of Badger with a grand total of 585 points.

The award to the individual exhibitor with the highest number of points was received by 85-year-old Olga Nelson of Thief River Falls' Moccasin Garden club with 130 points.

The award to the exhibitor with the second highest number of points was presented to LaVonne Knudson of Roseau's Green Thumb Garden club with 120 points.

A special award was given to Beatrice Wilson of the Moccasin club of Thief River Falls for her champion new variety, the Fanfare cucumber.

Many of the awards were given as memorials for Inga Geving, who was the first president of the district, and also in memory of Anna Waale, Luella Peterson, Glen Lendobeja and Herman Christopherson.

Judges for the events were Glenice Johnson of Crookston, Sue Jacobson of Fertile, and Rhonda Amundson of Thief River Falls.

Flower arrangements were judged in four divisions, Class A, or Novice division, for those who have won less than 15 blue ribbons for arrangements; Class B for exhibitors who have earned 15 or more blue ribbons for arrangements at previous shows; and Class C, or Goldies division, for those age 65 or older.

Grand Champion exhibit winner in Class A was Joan Green of Greenbush, a member of Badger's Gro-Rite Garden club, with her arrangement, "Free as a Breeze." She also received the most points.

Ray and Helen Juhl and their Natural Ways Mills near Middle River are featured in a recent story in the magazine, "Country Woman."

Each month the editor of the magazine, Ann Kaiser, visits one of its subscribers and their families in a special feature story. In the August, 1994, issue, the editor visited the Juhl farm and flour mill and worked along with the Juhls and their family for a day. The story feature is three pages long and contains 10 color pictures of the Juhls and their operation.

The Juhls started milling their home-grown specialty flour in 1973 and now produce 1,800 pounds of flour an hour. They sell the flour to bakeries and health food stores and also by mail. Whole Wheat and all purpose Gold N White are the most popular kinds of flour, but the Juhls also mill rye, graham, soy, pastry, rice, durum, buckwheat and others.

For more information on the Juhls' flour, contact Natural Way Mills, Route 2, Box 37, Middle River, MN 56737, or telephone 218-222-3677.

Street project has delay

Delays this week on the downtown construction project in Thief River Falls were caused by the discovery of a heating fuel tank below the sidewalk in front of the Falls Mall. The delay, however, will only be for a couple of days and will not affect the project completion date.

Wednesday morning Mike Miller, project superintendent for Christiansen Industrial Developers of Bemidji said he wasn't sure when paving would begin on Horace. He said he hadn't discussed the matter with a representative of Northern Paving, which has the contract for the paving. Once they get started, he said, it won't take long. Horace Avenue along with the 100 block of LaBree Avenue will be done first.

Construction in the 300 block of LaBree Avenue is expected to begin on Wednesday of next week. In order to allow the bank drive-through to remain open for as long as possible, construction is expected to begin closer to Fourth Street. Miller said, hopefully, the 200 block of LaBree will be open to traffic before they begin work on the 300 block.

During the update, one resident complained of the traffic problem developing on Third Street. He had noticed that the timing at Third and LaBree was the opposite of what it should be, and it was causing traffic problems.

Mark Borseth of the city's engineering services department, said he too had noticed the problem and would be in contact with the Minnesota department of transportation about the timing problem.

The sidewalk project is progressing up Second Street between Horace and LaBree and the 300 block of North Horace.

Red ribbon project again will remind drivers to drive safely

To call attention to the importance of safe driving over the Labor Day holiday weekend, a red ribbon campaign is again being conducted in the Thief River Falls community.

Ribbons intended to be tied to the radio antennae of vehicles as a reminder of safe driving are available from display cards being distributed to local retail stores. Everyone is encouraged to take a ribbon from the display to tie on his or her vehicle's antenna.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

It seems by information I have obtained, many people do not know what the candidates for Governor of Minnesota stand for. One of the most important issues is, of course, abortion. What is more important than a life or death issue?

In a couple of weeks (Sept. 13) the primary election will be held. If you do not know what the candidates stand for, your vote will be a hit or miss vote. What a tragedy if the vote goes to a pro-choice-abortion candidate.

As some voters know, but many do not, Gov. (Arne) Carlson is very much for abortion. He vetoed the "Woman's Right to Know" bill even though it was passed by the Minnesota House and Senate. He continually ignores pro-life wishes as if they were not important. He has signed the Gay Rights bill and budgets condom giveaways to school children, to name a few.

On the other hand, candidate for governor Allen Quist is for rights of the unborn and against all of the above. A pro-life vote is a must if we value the future of the country. Politicians have tried every gimmick in the book to make this a better world except the One who can do something about it.

Whether you are President of the U.S. or Governor of Minnesota, you cannot ignore the commandment "Thou shalt not kill" and expect to make this a better world.

Sincerely,
Ray Kolb

Warning—Colliding With This Mailbox Support May Be Hazardous To Your Health

Highway safety is an important matter and we support most efforts to make our roads and highways less hazardous to those who drive, ride or walk on them. Four-lane roadways, passing lanes, turning lanes, surfacing, snow and ice removal, centerline and shoulder striping, easily read signs—all are good contributors to better highway safety, as are efforts to keep drivers who are under the influence of alcohol or drugs off the roads.

But we have to back away from that support to some extent when efforts extend beyond the roadway. For instance, the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) recently announced (the story was published in The Times on Wednesday, August 31) that "non-conforming mailbox supports" may present a safety hazard to motorists and will have to be removed and replaced with "safe" mailbox supports.

According to Jerry Miller, assistant district engineer for Mn/DOT, danger stems mainly from mailbox supports that don't collapse easily when struck by a vehicle. "Because of the design and weight of some mailbox supports, they can be a hazard to motorists and can cause injuries or death if struck by a motor vehicle," Miller is quoted as saying.

He said owners of mailbox supports located along trunk highways where normal speeds exceed 40 miles per hour and that fail to meet acceptable safety standards will be directed to remove them and install a type that does meet standards. New supports are required only when owners have been officially notified and the replacement process will be phased in during the next four years. If the owner does not agree to remove a support, Mn/DOT will do it free of charge—which is a polite way of saying, "you do what we tell you or we'll do it for you!"

In support of the legislative directive to permit elimination of roadside hazards to improve driving safety, Miller pointed out that nationally there have been more than 200 deaths attributed to vehicle collisions with hazardous mailbox supports. Those deaths are certainly unfortunate, but consideration must be given to the fact that the mailbox supports were not on the roadway where those vehicles should have been traveling and the possibility that fatalities of people in those vehicles leaving the roadway may well have happened whether the mailbox support was in their way or not.

One question may well be why people use mailbox supports which are "non-conforming," such as milk cans filled with rocks or concrete or made from farm implements or heavy timbers.

One answer might be that the owner simply wants to have a different or unusual look to catch attention or mark his or her driveway. Another answer might be that it seemed prudent to use the materials at hand. But the most likely answer is that the owner was tired of replacing mail boxes ripped from flimsy supports by the discharge from Mn/DOT snow plows and decided to anchor one more securely. A high speed truck displacing a heavy, wet snowfall can give a mailbox quite a jolt, even if the plow or extended wing miss the box. If you don't want to spend a lot of time looking for it or digging it out, you give it solid support.

Drivers whose vehicles leave the roadway can face a lot of hazards other than mailbox standards. That's why it behooves them to drive in such a manner that they stay on the driving surface. Maybe Mn/DOT should just follow the example of the federal government and, instead of ordering removal of a health hazard, just require putting a label on it. Placing a sticker that says "Warning—Colliding With This Mailbox Support May Be Hazardous To Your Health" would be a lot easier than removing and replacing one.

And it just might not be a whole lot less effective.

Feed Caps Off To Area 4-H Club Members

There are always reasons to be proud of many of our area's young people, and the success of a number of 4-H club members from northwestern Minnesota at the Minnesota State Fair is another one. In Pennington county, for instance, no less than 10 members earned purple ribbon placing —the highest award possible—at the state competition.

Excelling at the state fair in Minnesota is no small feat. Last year there were 310,566 young people from five to 19 years of age participating in the Minnesota 4-H club program. More than half (55%) were in the 9-11 age category. There were 22 per cent in the 12-14 age group, 14 per cent ages 5-8 and nine per cent in the teen level of 15-19.

We were somewhat surprised at the membership distribution of what we had considered to be a farm-oriented organization. Only 10 per cent of the 4-H members in Minnesota live on farms! More than twice that number (24%) live in central cities of over 50,000 population and another 12 per cent in suburbs of cities with more than 50,000 population. The remainder includes 29 per cent in towns and cities of 10,000 to 50,000 and 25 per cent in towns under 10,000 and open country.

Of the total participation of 310,296 young people, 34,296 (11%) were members of 1,486 clubs. There were 228,000 (69%) in 4-H special interest groups and 64,420 youth (19%) involved in 4-H school enrichment programs. Another 3,161 (1%) were enrolled in 4-H individual study programs and 4-H instructional TV programs. Fifty-three per cent are boys and 47 per cent are girls.

The four Hs in the 4-H program include Head (clearer thinking and decision making; knowledge useful throughout life), Heart (greater loyalty, strong personal values, positive self concept, concern for others), Hands (larger service, workforce preparedness, useful skills, science and technology literacy) and Health (better living, healthy lifestyles).

Minnesota 4-H is the state's largest out-of-school youth education program. Its mission is to help young people develop knowledge, skills and attitudes that will enable them to become self-directing, productive and contributing members of society. It seems to be doing well in conducting that mission.

Agassiz refuge open on weekend

Headquarters of Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge east of Holt will be open to the public Saturday and Sunday, September 10 and 11. Hours will be from 1 to 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Visitors are encouraged to stop at the headquarters and inquire about any roads which are normally closed but may be open for public driving during the two days.

Ducks are forming in flocks and concentrating in some areas of the refuge. First migrant Canada geese from the north usually are observed around September 12 with skeins of geese passing through the area until final freeze-up. Sandhill cranes will be utilizing the area through September. Fall colors will be appearing on vegetation and the aroma of the woodlands will be in the air, according to refuge personnel.

On Saturday, September 10, a video showing and information session on gray wolves will be presented by Gary Tischer, refuge operations specialist. At 7:30 p.m. members of the public are invited to travel in their own vehicles to a refuge site and listen to wolves responding to a howling session.

Agassiz is also having an evening of duck banding with public involvement on Tuesday, September 22. Individuals or groups of people interested in observing or participating must call the refuge prior to September 22. All observers and participants need to be at refuge headquarters by 5:30 p.m. and banding will be completed by dark. If it is raining (or snowing?) that day the banding will be canceled.

Participants will learn banding techniques including baiting, rocket and net set-up, caging, handling and sexing and aging of mallard ducks. It will be a good opportunity for people who want to know more about waterfowl to gain actual experience.

This will be the last of the scheduled summer open weekends and activities. The refuge staff hopes that the public has enjoyed and learned from them. Persons who have suggestions for a program in 1995 are asked to contact refuge personnel.

WELCOME TO Computer Run/Radio Shack
"SHACK SHORTS"
Number 006 Of A Series
"SHOULD I BUY A RADIO SHACK BRAND CELLULAR PHONE AT THEIR SALE PRICES?"
Yes and No. Yes if you live in an area that is covered by Radio Shack's contracted cellular carrier, US West Cellular. The phone price is great, and the service will fit you.
However, the answer is a definite NO if you live outside this area - mainly anywhere outside of Grand Forks. The reason is simple, and it's in the fine print. If you look closely at the sales flyer, you'll see a little asterisk (*) next to the sale price directing you to the bottom of the page for the sale requirements. It says that in order to get the sale price the buyer must sign up for a minimum agreement with the Radio Shack carrier. By signing on with this carrier, you would be outside of the carrier covered area, meaning you would have to roam onto another cellular tower. Roaming rates are expensive, and add up quick - over time more than the price of a phone from our carrier, Cellular 2000. Stop in and see how we can make your life easier with Cellular 2000.

Detroit Lakes extends win streak by beating TRF 21-8

And the beat goes on. Detroit Lakes extended the state's longest current unbeaten streak to 28 games Thursday with a 21-8 decision over Thief River Falls in season-opening high school football at Mollberg Field.

Opposing teams had hoped heavy personnel losses would make the four-time defending Section 8 champion and two-time defending Class A state champion Lakers beatable this fall. But the Detroit Lakes well hasn't run dry yet. A seemingly endless supply of talent simply surfaces each August to fill the holes left by the previous year's departures.

The Lakers beat the Prowlers at their own game this time, using size and strength to control the line of scrimmage. "They beat us off the ball," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "Our line has a long way to go. I thought that would be our strong suit. But they were better than we were up front."

Although the Lakers went into halftime with just a 7-0 lead, the outcome might have been sealed by two key second quarter situations, said Mumm.

First, a promising Thief River Falls drive that reached the Detroit Lakes 10-yard line came to a screeching halt on a fumbled hand-off that was recovered by the Lakers with 8:48 to play.

"That was probably the play of the game right there," acknowledged Mumm. "We were moving the football at that point. We were doing some good things. We had a lot of momentum."

If the fumble wasn't the deciding factor, maybe the Detroit Lakes' clock-beating first touchdown was.

After being held to one first down and 28 net yards through the first quarter and a half, the Lakers came alive with a 13-play, 67-yard scoring drive that ended on a one-yard touchdown plunge by Ken Fechtner with just five seconds showing on the clock. Sophomore Todd Steinmetz, who alternated at quarterback with junior Wade Lewandowski on an every-other-series rotation, netted 56 of those yards on three carries – a draw, a sneak and a scramble.

An off-side call against the Prowlers' defense on a fourth-and-three at the Thief River Falls 19 kept the drive alive and Steinmetz' scramble out of the pocket turned a third-and-16 into a first down at the 5-yard line. Fechtner, a 185-pound senior, scored three plays later when he was met by two defenders at the goal line but still nudged into the end zone. Nick Hagedorn added the conversion kick.

If that touchdown wasn't the back-breaker, then the Lakers' first-possession score in the second half was – a dominating 15-play, 68-yard drive that took up the first 8:38 of the third quarter.

It ended on an 8-yard touchdown run by Josh Keyes, a 200-pound junior who put his head down and plunged through tacklers on the right side.

"That drive really did it," said Mumm. "They really took control there. It's tough on the kids to get smashed up front on 15 plays in a row like that. They just killed us."

The Lakers scored on their next possession, too, but this one didn't take nearly as long as Steinmetz found receiver Kregg Wolf wide open behind the secondary for a 59-yard touchdown strike with 10:37 left in the game. Lewandowski came in for the conversion and hit Brett Nansen on a two-point pass.

Thief River Falls was limited to 18 second half rushing yards, but junior quarterback Keith Anderson came on in relief of senior starter Eric Bjorgaard after intermission and was 7-for-15 passing for 130 yards. He found Nick Chiodo in the right corner of the end zone on the final play of the game for a 7-yard touchdown pass that spoiled the Detroit Lakes shutout. Anderson then hit Steve Burslie over the middle for the conversion points.

"I thought Keith threw the ball well," said Mumm. "He stayed calm in there. He did a nice job."

The Lakers netted 230 yards on 50 running plays spread among nine different ball carriers. Steinmetz led the way with 68 yards on 7 carries.

Aaron Ehrenstrom came off the bench to lead the Prowlers with 36 yards on 4 carries. Chiodo gained 35 yards on 5 tries.

Thief River Falls will face Alexandria Friday in its 1994 home opener at Prowler Field. Kickoff is 7:30 p.m.

Beaudry is top trap shooter

Bob Beaudry of Argyle, a member of the Bakke Insurance squad, collected top honors Monday in the 1994 Thief River Falls Trap League city class championship shoot.

Beaudry's 49 was the top score in the 50-bird shoot that also doubled as the final two weeks of regular season league competition.

Winners were also named in Class AA, A, B, C, and D.

It took 100 targets before a champion was determined in Class AA, where Howard Thorson and Fran Johnson first tied at 48, then tied again at 23 in a 25-bird shoot-off before Thorson finally won out 24-23 in the next go-round.

With Beaudry's 49 elevating him from Class A to city championship status, scores of 47 by Al Steinhauer and Walt Leach Jr. produced a first place tie in Class A – a title that went to Steinhauer in a shoot-off, 21-19.

Northland volleyball is short on numbers

A small turnout for the start of practice earlier this week has put the status of the 1994 Northland Community College volleyball program in doubt.

Just four players were ready to start preseason drills Monday. Coach Deb Jacobson and school officials hope additional players surface when students report for the start of classes at Northland Tuesday.

The Pioneers are scheduled to open the season Friday, Sept. 9, against Mesabi in Virginia. They are also scheduled to be part of the Vermilion Northeast-Northwest Invitational the following day in Ely.

"At this point we really don't know what is going to happen to the program," said Northland acting president Sue Minnick. "We won't know until school starts. I'm an optimist. I hope to field a team. If we didn't think that was possible, we would have dropped the program already."

Minnick said an official decision on the status of the program will be made by noon on Wednesday.

Six candidates will seek the Miss Plummer title Sunday, September 18, at 3 p.m. in the Plummer school. Pictured (left to right) are Patty Greenwald, Ginger Froiland, Marci DuChamp, Amy Arlt (reigning Miss Plummer), Meckenzie Malwitz, Beth Killien and Rachel Demarais. It will be the first Miss Plummer pageant in three years and second in the past eight years. Public attendance is encouraged. —Red Lake Falls Gazette photo

Miss Plummer pageant revived after three years

Plummer has not conducted a Miss Plummer pageant since 1991, but will end that circumstance on Sunday, September 18, when the Plummer Lioness club will sponsor a pageant at 3 p.m. in the Plummer school.

Amy Arlt is the reigning Miss Plummer. Candidates to succeed her include Rachel Demarais, Marci DuChamp, Ginger Froiland, Patty Greenwald, Beth Killian and Meckenzie Malwitz.

Arlt said she is glad that the Lioness club has decided to sponsor another Miss Plummer pageant. Not only has it been three years since the last pageant was held, it was five years before that when the previous event took place.

"A person does not realize all the organizing, time, practice and commitment it takes to put on a pageant," states Cindy Arlt, pageant coordinator. "We are off to a good start. It has been a lot of fun, we are all good friends and work well together."

Mary Noel has been working with the group on the opening number, a dance routine to "Rhythm Is A Dancer."

The pageant coordinator said that in the past the Miss Plummer pageant had been tied into the Fourth of July celebration, but it was difficult to find people willing to work on it at that time due to class and family reunions and because it is a prime time for vacations.

"Having a pageant in September isn't so easy either, because of school starting and a busy activity schedule," Cindy Arlt added. "But the girls showed an interest last year and continue to be enthused about the pageant so we knew we couldn't let them down.

"Everyone knows there can be only one Miss Plummer selected," she said, "but any girl who can present herself to the public by taking part in a dance routine, personal interview, speech presentation and evening gown competition will certainly be a winner from the experience. She will have gained self-confidence and self-esteem, learned poise and grace and shown the ability to perform in front of an audience.

"I guess the most rewarding thing is to hear the girls change their viewpoint from 'I think I can' to 'I know I can,'" Arlt continued. The public is invited to support the candidates by attending the pageant on September 18.

Conferences on aging set in NW Minn.

Seven sub-regional conferences of the national White House Conference on Aging have been scheduled in northwestern Minnesota, beginning with a session Tuesday, September 6, from 1 to 2 p.m. at the city council meeting room in Oklee.

Other sub-regional conferences are scheduled as follows:

September 9—9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the library meeting room in Crookston;

September 12—1 to 3 p.m. at the library meeting room in Roseau;

September 15—9 to 11 a.m. at the Newfolden senior center;

September 16—9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Ada senior center;

September 19—2 to 4 p.m. at the Heritage Community Center in Thief River Falls; and September 23—2 to 4 p.m. at the Halma senior center.

President Clinton has announced a fourth White House Conference on Aging to be held in May of 1995. Previous conferences were held in 1961, 1971 and 1981 and produced such outcomes at Medicare, the Older Americans Act, Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, food stamps, transportation services and Supplemental Security Income.

The sub-regional conferences will be a very effective way for local seniors to have a say in how federal and state policies affecting seniors will look over the next 10 years, according to Danica Robson, director of the Northwest Area Agency on Aging.

Topics to be explored will be older persons as community resources, home and community based services, health care reform, elder rights, the future of aging services and employment and continued productivity opportunities for middle-aged and older persons.

Persons who are involved in sub-regional conferences will have the opportunity to represent their community at the state conference in Minneapolis October 31-November 1. Delegates from Minnesota's state conference will be selected to travel to Washington, DC as delegates to the National White House Conference on Aging in 1995.

Older adults, their family members and providers of services to the older population are encouraged to attend any of the sub-regional conferences. For more information contact the Area Agency on Aging at 681-2637 or 1-800-333-2433.

Auditions set for play at Northland

Auditions for Northland Community College's fall play "Count Dracula" by Ted Tiller will be held Thursday, September 8 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and Friday, September 9 from 3 to 4 p.m. in the NCC theater.

Auditions are open to all Northland Community College and Northwest Technical College students, faculty and staff and to all interested community members. Roles are available for nine men and women. Performance dates will be October 27-30.

Based on Bram Stoker's novel Dracula, the play is a witty version of the story of a suave vampire whose passion is sinking his teeth into the throats of young women. His latest victim, Mina, is the lovely young ward of the keeper of the insane asylum outside of London where the terrifying action takes place.

The story is complicated by the arrival of Mina's fiance, a visiting professor who specializes in rare maladies; a sherry-tippling sister; and an asylum inmate who is in league with the vampire.

The play involves mysterious disappearances, secret panels, flying bats, spooky mists and lots of scary fun, according to Janet Haak Aamess, director. She may be contacted at 681-2181, extension 169, for more information about auditions.

'95 CRP contracts may be renewed

Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy has announced that producers holding Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) contracts expiring September 30, 1995 will have the option to modify their contracts to extend the expiration date for a period of one year.

State Executive Director, Wally Sparby asks that all participants with 1986 CRP contracts contact their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office for the dates when they may apply to modify their contracts. About 2 million acres of cropland were enrolled in the 1986 CRP contracts nationwide.

"Today's action will enable producers whose contracts would have expired in 1995 to continue to keep this highly erodible and other environmentally sensitive cropland out of production," the Secretary said. Espy said he is announcing his decision now so that producers can consider this extension option while making long-term decisions concerning this land.

The continuation of the CRP and the extension of contracts will be one of USDA's top priorities during the 1995 Farm Bill discussion. "We plan to work closely with the Congress to continue the CRP in order to achieve our conservation, wildlife and agricultural objectives," Espy said. "However, these first CRP contracts will likely expire prior to passage of the 1995 Farm Bill. To provide the maximum flexibility in continuing the CRP and extending contracts I am offering producers whose contracts expire September 30, 1994, the opportunity to modify their contracts to extend the expiration date."

About 36.4 million acres have been enrolled in the CRP, a program Secretary Espy described as "tremendously beneficial for producers and the general public." He said the CRP has saved soil, expanded wildlife habitat and populations, improved soil air and water quality, enhanced wetlands, and encouraged tree plantings. "At the same time, it has reduced deficiency payments, strengthened farm income, and helped balance the supply and demand of agricultural commodities," he said.

Planned giving roundtable set

First in a series of roundtable discussions on charitable planned giving will be sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund (NWMIF) on Tuesday, September 20, from noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Evergreen Eating Emporium in Thief River Falls.

Registration fee of $5 for the session intended to be of interest to attorneys, certified public accountants and other financial professionals will include lunch. Discussion topic will be "Charitable Gift Annuities."

Steve Joul of the NWMIF said that individuals in increasing numbers are looking at charitable planned giving as a way of achieving maximum income with greater tax benefits. Charitable planned giving vehicles include charitable gift annuities, charitable remainder trusts, lead trusts, life estate contracts and others. Determining which is most appropriate can be confusing and time consuming.

The roundtables are designed to give professionals an opportunity to learn more about these various types of charitable planned giving and their respective income and tax benefits. Each roundtable discussion will focus on a particular topic of interest. For more information, contact Steve Joul at the NWMIF office, phone 1-800-659-7859.

The next event sponsored by the 13th District Horticultural Society will be the Fall Workshop which will be held in Roseau on October 1, when state awards will be given.

Class of 1955 making plans for reunion

Lincoln high school Class of 1955 is beginning to plan for its 40-year class reunion to be held next summer.

An organizational meeting will be held Tuesday, September 13, at 7 p.m. in the loft room at the Evergreen Eating Emporium. Any classmate who would like to help is asked to attend and bring known addresses or other classmates.

Persons with questions may contact Dolly (Kisch) Hallstrom at 964-5277, Bunny (Wilson) Malberg at 681-4667 or Janet (Klefstad) Berg at 745-5778.

Garden oddities begin to appear

The garden of Lester Kolstrand at Goodridge produced an unusual specimen of yellow tomato which was brought to the Times/Northern Watch office Wednesday. It appeared to be two large tomatoes joined near the base with the stem nearly concealed where they were separated at the top.

While the Times/Northern Watch will report on such oddities reported to us, we do not photograph them nor have a place to display them. Persons who bring such items to the office for inspection are asked to take them along when they leave.

Newfolden Newfest

Other attractions will be a miniature replica of Newfolden from 1939 to 1952, built by Lester Lindquist, on display at the senior center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 12 noon to 3 p.m. Sunday; model train displays at the high school; and a flea market on Main street.

Sunday events include a brunch from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the community center with proceeds going to the Newfolden Senior Citizen Building Fund, a music fest from 1 to 4 p.m. at the community center and music in the bandshell at the city park beginning at 4 p.m.

Halma farmer pleads guilty to forging document for ASCS

Halma — Grant Bothum, 40, of Halma, pled guilty to a reduced charge of misdemeanor forgery as part of a plea agreement in which he agreed to pay restitution of over $20,000 to the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and was sentenced to two years probation. Bothum admitted forging an affidavit which he submitted to the Kittson County ASCS office as part of an appeal to obtain over $20,000 in disaster payments. The ASCS found Bothum ineligible for the payments after it discovered over 17,000 bushels of wheat sales which Bothum did not report. Bothum had claimed his harvested wheat production was only three to four bushels per acre. Bothum created an affidavit and forged a signature represented to be from a producer in North Dakota which supposedly explained where Bothum obtained the unreported wheat.

Karlstad — A high speed chase resulted in the injury and arrest of a Reynolds, ND, man last Thursday at Karlstad. Economy needs support structu[illegible] h

Economic developers meeting in Thief River Falls Wednesday were more interested in a support structure for northwestern Minnesota's job growth rather than finding more jobs.

Many of the developers who met with Peter Gillette, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development, and Jenny Engh, deputy commissioner of business/community development division of DTED, wanted to know how Gillette and Engh could help them find housing, improve job skills, connect them with resources, and remove barriers to doing business.

Rhonda Amundson, Red Lake county agriculture extension agent, explained that there is a shortage of labor in the area that they need. For example, she said, elevators are having difficulty finding people who are computer literate.

Another community development director said there is a shortage of labor that we need, not what we don't need. He explained that they have been focused on manufacturing but the available workforce is an educated workforce. They don't have the vocational skills or aren't willing to sacrifice their educational training to perform a job that does not require that they use that education.

Gillette said he believes it comes from long-established cultural values. Historically, in our society, he said, education is seen as very important. He asked, how do you tell a son or daughter that it's okay to go to a vocational technical school, when education is an important cultural value. Gillette thinks the market will work out the problems, but it will be difficult. He added that, with a few exceptions, he doesn't think the state is doing a good job of determining where the state's needs are and encouraging people to fill those needs.

Housing was another issue that many economic developers commented on. Gillette said he heard the same problem everywhere he went Wednesday, which included stops in International Falls, Warroad, and Roseau. Job growth was being limited by a lack of housing for potential employees. The problem is not only limited to job growth, but it is affecting education.

Jean Heinrichs, vice mayor of Thief River Falls, explained that students dropping out of school to return to their homes because they couldn't find housing.

He said the area is operating under a full-employment economy, which is a good problem to have, and thinks the state will work out the problems.

Economic developers at the meeting were also concerned about government bureaucracy and red tape. They are interested in finding ways to access government information that would explain what they need to do to operate a business without having to deal with several different government agencies.

Jenny Engh, deputy commissioner, said a community system is being developed that would provide one-stop government organization, but it won't be in operation for several years.

Gillette said it's still a "vision", which they are working on. In the future, he said, anyone with a modem will be able to access the system.

Chris Twomey, chief executive officer at Arctco in Thief River Falls, explained the process in making a personal watercraft to Peter Gillette, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development, during a tour. The tour was part of a meeting held with economic developers from several communities throughout the region on Wednesday at Northwest Regional Development Commission.

Crafts and goodies at "Everybody's Market" Saturday

Northern Watch Reporter

Everybody's Market is being held Saturday, September 10, in Thief River Falls. At least 77 groups and individuals from northwestern Minnesota and parts of North Dakota have registered to display and sell their produce, crafts and wares at the Floyd B. Olson parking lot between Second and Third Streets on Knight Avenue. If it rains, the market will be found at the Curling Club building at the Pennington County Fairgrounds.

Just as the name implies, there will be a little bit of everything for everybody at Everybody's Market. Participants have registered to sell homemade goodies, floral decorations, clothing, wood products, garden produce, toys, ceramics, all kinds of craft objects, jewelry, books, bird houses and bird seed, plants, greeting cards and more.

Several of the sellers have been participating in craft sales for years and know all of the tricks of the trade, so to speak, such as how to display their crafts and goodies, how many tables to bring, how much to charge, and also know enough to bring an umbrella in case of rain, plenty of soft drinks and sandwiches to snack on, and a blanket or two in case of cool weather. But then again, many of the sellers are brand new to the game.

Valerie Smerek is one of those who is a new craft seller. This is her first year's attempt at having a table and selling her crafts and homemade goodies, but she and a friend, Caroline Carlin, have been preparing for it for months.

Valerie is originally from Warroad, the daughter of Ernest and Judy Dubois. She moved to Thief River Falls a little over two years ago after her marriage to Thor Smerek. She met Caroline while

TRF Kmart remains open, plans expansion

Nationwide, 110 of its discount stores to close by Feb. 12

Kmart Corporation announced Thursday, September 8, that it will close 110 of its discount stores which do not meet the company's sales, profit and return on investment requirements. Closure of the stores, however, will not affect the Kmart store in Thief River Falls. In fact, plans are being studied for the expansion of the store in Thief River Falls.

Mark Little, store manager in Thief River Falls, said the store in Thief River Falls will remain open. Little indicated that although plans have been drawn up and estimates obtained, there has been no news as to when construction on a new store in Thief River Falls might begin.

One of the items under consideration appears to be what to do with the old store. The new store would likely be located nearby or possibly on the same site.

Three stores will be closed in Minnesota — one in Faribault, one in Coon Rapids, and one in Cottage Grove. The closing date for these stores has been set for February 12, 1995.

A news release from Kmart states: "Kmart Corporation's previously announced 'Strategy for the '90's' called for evaluation of its stores for expansion, refurbishment, relocation or possible closing. Kmart will continue to serve the state of Minnesota with 45 stores.

"'Kmart regrets that it must close these stores, but it is a necessary step toward improving the performance of our core discount business,' said Paul J. Hueber, senior vice president, sales and operations. 'Our thanks to the associates and customers for their support over the years.'

"The approximately 249 associates at the Minnesota stores whose jobs will be eliminated when the stores close will receive certain benefits including counseling through the company's Employee Assistance Program and lump sum payments for hourly associates who remain with Kmart until the actual store closing dates.

"Kmart Corporation serves America with more than 4,000 outlets including Kmart, Builders Square, Borders and Waldenbooks, The Sports Authority and OfficeMax. In addition to serving all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands, Kmart operations extend to Canada, Mexico, the Czech Republic, Slovakia and Singapore."

Grygla hosts meet on day care-license Wednesday

Informational meeting on licensing requirements for day care is scheduled for Wednesday, September 14, at 7 p.m. at the community center in Grygla.

The need for day care is growing, and even with more people in the process of becoming licensed family day care providers, there is still a need for additional help.

The Wednesday meeting is intended to provide information on requirements for becoming a licensed family day care provider and who to contact in both Marshall and Beltrami counties.

Linda Torgerson and Julie Olson are currently licensed day care providers in their homes in the Grygla area. They will be in attendance at the meeting to provide input and assist anyone who may be considering day care as an occupation.

In addition, information will be available on the requirements for a licensed day-care facility. Mary Ann Hodge, director of Discovery Place in Thief River Falls, will speak on setting up such a facility.

Sponsoring the meeting, which is for anyone who has an interest in the day care needs of the area, is the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District in cooperation with the Pembina Trail RC&D and the Headwaters RC&D.

Warren hospital making changes

Warren Community Hospital is currently undergoing several modifications, including a name change, as a reflection of the increase in services it provides to area residents, according to Everett Butler, hospital administrator.

Butler said the name change is in order because of the number of diverse patient services presently housed in the building. These include the hospital and its many ancillary services, Marshall County Nursing Service, Warren Community Hospital Clinic, Northwest Eye Clinic and, under an operational agreement, the Warren Clinic.

A contest to name the facility is being held during the month of September. The general public is invited to participate by sending name suggestions on a postal card to the Warren Community Hospital by September 31. Advertisements giving further details on the contest will be in the Thief River Falls Times September 14 and 28.

Butler said the hospital is remodeling to accommodate several necessary health care services in one centralized location.

"The trend is that rural hospitals are health care providers rather than just acute care hospitals," he said. "The remodeling will be financed by the hospital's general funds as well as grants and donations. The work will be done by a combination of in-house and contracted carpenters."

The administrator summarized the facility's health care plans as follows:

Northwest Eye Clinic has offices and examining rooms in the hospital's east wing and makes use of the hospital's surgical suite for same day cataract surgery.

Marshall County Nursing Service, which provides home health and public health care to the area, will move into the south wing of the hospital after five rooms are made ready for the transfer October 1. This will provide the service with more room to fulfill its duties.

Warren Community Hospital Clinic will then move into the nursing service's previous location in the west part of the building by mid-November. Three additional examining rooms will be located there and the clinic plans to recruit an additional physician or nurse practitioner after the remodeling.

Space where the clinic was previously located will be left open for specialized services. Specialists from larger health care facilities will be invited to provide clinical care several days a week at the facility.

Warren Community Hospital services approximately 4,200 people in a 25-mile radius of Warren, Butler said.

Previous conferences were held in 1961, 1971 and 1981 and produced such outcomes as Medicare, the Older Americans Act, Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, food stamps, transportation services and Supplemental Security Income.

The sub-regional conferences will be a very effective way for local seniors to have a say in how federal and state policies affecting seniors will look over the next 10 years, according to Danica Robson, director of the Northwest Area Agency on Aging.

Topics to be explored will be older persons as community resources, home and community based services, health care reform, elder rights, the future of aging services and employment and continued productivity opportunities for middle-aged and older persons.

Persons who are involved in sub-regional conferences will have the opportunity to represent their community at the state conference in Minneapolis October 31-November 1. Delegates from Minnesota's state conference will be selected to travel to Washington, DC as delegates to the National White House Conference on Aging in 1995.

Older adults, their family members and providers of services to the older population are encouraged to attend any of the sub-regional conferences. For more information contact the Area Agency on Aging at 681-2637 or 1-800-333-2433.

Auditions set for play at Northland

Auditions for Northland Community College's fall play "Count Dracula" by Ted Tiller will be held Thursday, September 8 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and Friday, September 9 from 3 to 4 p.m. in the NCC theater.

Auditions are open to all Northland Community College and Northwest Technical College students, faculty and staff and to all interested community members. Roles are available for nine men and women. Performance dates will be October 27-30.

Based on Bram Stoker's novel Dracula, the play is a witty version of the story of a suave vampire whose passion is sinking his teeth into the throats of young women. His latest victim, Mina, is the lovely young ward of the keeper of the insane asylum outside of London where the terrifying action takes place.

The story is complicated by the arrival of Mina's fiance, a visiting professor who specializes in rare maladies; a sherry-tippling sister, and an asylum inmate who is in league with the vampire.

The play involves mysterious disappearances, secret panels, flying bats, spooky mists and lots of scary fun, according to Janet Haak Aamess, director. She may be contacted at 681-2181, extension 169, for more information about auditions.

'95 CRP contracts may be renewed

Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy has announced that producers holding Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) contracts expiring September 30, 1995 will have the option to modify their contracts to extend the expiration date for a period of one year.

State Executive Director, Wally Sparby asks that all participants with 1986 CRP contracts contact their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office for the dates when they may apply to modify their contracts. About 2 million acres of cropland were enrolled in the 1986 CRP contracts nationwide.

Secretary Espy is utilizing authority provided in the Food Security Act of 1985 to authorize the contract modification.

"Today's action will enable producers whose contracts would have expired in 1995 to continue to keep this highly erodible and other environmentally sensitive cropland out of production," the Secretary said. Espy said he is announcing his decision now so that producers can consider this extension option while making long-term decisions concerning this land.

The continuation of the CRP and the extension of contracts will be one of USDA's top priorities during the 1995 Farm Bill discussion. "We plan to work closely with the Congress to continue the CRP in order to achieve our conservation, wildlife and agricultural objectives," Espy said. "However, these first CRP contracts will likely expire prior to passage of the 1995 Farm Bill. To provide the maximum flexibility in continuing the CRP and extending contracts I am offering producers whose contracts expire September 30, 1994, the opportunity to modify their contracts to extend the expiration date."

About 36.4 million acres have been enrolled in the CRP, a program Secretary Espy described as "tremendously beneficial for producers and the general public." He said the CRP has saved soil, expanded wildlife habitat and populations, improved soil air and water quality, enhanced wetlands, and encouraged tree plantings. "At the same time, it has reduced deficiency payments, strengthened farm income, and helped balance the supply and demand of agricultural commodities," he said.

Planned giving roundtable set

First in a series of roundtable discussions on charitable planned giving will be sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund (NWMIF) on Tuesday, September 20, from noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Evergreen Eating Emporium in Thief River Falls.

Registration fee of $5 for the session intended to be of interest to attorneys, certified public accountants and other financial professionals will include lunch. Discussion topic will be "Charitable Gift Annuities."

Steve Joul of the NWMIF said that individuals in increasing numbers are looking at charitable planned giving as a way of achieving maximum income with greater tax benefits. Charitable planned giving vehicles include charitable gift annuities, charitable remainder trusts, lead trusts, life estate contracts and others. Determining which is most appropriate can be confusing and time consuming.

The roundtables are designed to give professionals an opportunity to learn more about these various types of charitable planned giving and their respective income and tax benefits. Each roundtable discussion will focus on a particular topic of interest. For more information, contact Steve Joul at the NWMIF office, phone 1-800-659-7859.

Economy needs support structu[illegible]h

Economic developers meeting in Thief River Falls Wednesday were more interested in a support structure for northwestern Minnesota's job growth rather than finding more jobs.

Halma farmer pleads guilty to forging document for ASCS

Halma — Grant Bothum, 40, of Halma, pled guilty to a reduced charge of misdemeanor forgery as part of a plea agreement in which he agreed to pay restitution of over $20,000 to the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and was sentenced to two years probation. Bothum admitted forging an affidavit which he submitted to the Kittson County ASCS office as part of an appeal to obtain over $20,000 in disaster payments. The ASCS found Bothum ineligible for the payments after it discovered over 17,000 bushels of wheat sales which Bothum did not report. Bothum had claimed his harvested wheat production was only three to four bushels per acre. Bothum created an affidavit and forged a signature represented to be from a producer in North Dakota which supposedly explained where Bothum obtained the unreported wheat.

Is Bigfoot in the Bagley area?

Bagley — Ed Trimble of rural Bagley has become an expert on the subject of Bigfoot. Since he first spotted tracks near his home in November of 1957, he has been gathering all the information he can from other people in Clearwater county, as well as reading books, keeping his eyes open and photographing tracks he thinks might belong to the creature. He has compiled a map showing where unusual tracks or sightings have occurred in the county. Trimble's first experience with a Bigfoot was in 1942 or 1943, in Lake of the Woods county, where he and his wife saw dull red eyes reflecting the headlights of their vehicle. At the time, Trimble did not think of Bigfoot in connection with the eyes, but later realized that red is not the reflection of eyes of a larger mammal. In November of 1957 he found tracks near the north end of Mud Lake, within three miles of his property near Bagley while setting traps for bobcat, and has seen several unusual tracks near his home since that time.

Northcote's only church to be razed

Northcote — Northcote's first and only church will soon disappear, leaving only memories of its near century of existence. The Northcote Presbyterian church was built in 1899. The first pastor was Rev. Hugh McMillian. From 1882 to 1975, the Northcote church was served by 29 pastors who also served the First Presbyterian church in Hallock. In 1975, the church was closed and the congregation united with that of the Hallock church. Plans to tear down or burn the church were recently finalized and the razing will be completed this fall. Rev. David Endrias of Hallock held final memorial worship services at the Northcote church on August 28. Northcote is located five miles north of Hallock.

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in times of trouble. Is Jesus your refuge and your strength? If not, what do you lean on? Do you lean on your job? Relationships? Wealth? These things cannot help you in your times of trouble. We need to trust in the Lord with all our hearts and lean not on anything else for He will make our paths clear. So, when it seems like all the world is coming down on you and you search for those things that you turn to, remember that Jesus is ever present in our time of need.

SOUPCON
Sherry LaCourciere

Since we are starting out with a delicious fudge recipe, we may as well give you recipes for a few more goodies this week.

Here is Valeria Smerek's "guaranteed winner" of a fudge recipe. Not only does it sound delicious, but it sounds easy enough for anyone to make:

FANTASY FUDGE

3 cups sugar
3/4 cup margarine
2/3 cup evaporated milk
12 ounce package chocolate chips (Val likes Nestle's best)
7 ounce jar marshmallow creme
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped nuts (optional)

Stir margarine, sugar and evaporated milk in heavy pan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil.

Boil five minutes over medium heat, stirring constantly, or cook to 234 degrees on a candy thermometer.

Remove from heat. Stir in the chocolate chips and then add marshmallow creme and nuts, if desired.

Place in 9x13 inch buttered pan and let cool before cutting. (Recipe makes three pounds of fudge.)

I've got to try this recipe — my Christmas divinity has turned out lousy the past three or four years, so I really need something better:

EASY, NO-COOK DIVINITY

1 package white fluffy frosting mix
1/3 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup boiling water
1 pound powdered sugar
1 cup nuts, chopped

Beat frosting mix, syrup, vanilla and water at high speed until stiff peaks form. Add sugar and nuts and mix on low speed.

Drop by teaspoonfuls on waxed paper, turning when firm.

Let dry for 12 hours. Store in airtight container.

CHOCOLATE CHERRY CREAMS

1 cup chocolate chips
1/2 cup evaporated milk
2 1/2 cups powdered sugar
1/3 cup nuts
1/3 cup maraschino cherries
1 1/2 cups coconut

Place chips and milk over low heat and stir until chocolate melts. Stir in powdered sugar, nuts and cherries. Chill until firm enough to handle.

Roll teaspoonful of mixture in coconut. Chill 4 hours and store in refrigerator.

CHUNKY PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE

2/3 cup milk
1/3 cup cocoa
2 cups sugar
Dash of salt
1/2 cup crunchy peanut butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup shortening

Cook milk, cocoa, sugar and salt to soft ball stage, leaving on lid for first three minutes only. Remove lid and boil very slowly, stirring occasionally, to soft ball.

Remove from heat. Add remaining ingredients and do not stir for two or three minutes. Then stir constantly until ready to pour into buttered pan. (Add 1-2 tablespoons of hot water and beat well if candy thickens too fast.)
